IF IF IF ALL ALL ALL

If you will seek the Lord and be converted every day; If you will of your own spiritual choice be free and joyous in God; If with gladsome consent of heart to His gracious call you come wearing the yoke of Christ - the yoke of obedience and service - All your murmurings will be stilled, All your difficulties will be removed; All the perplexing problems that now confront you will be solved.

VETS SALUTED WITH VALENTINES – Valentine's Day week was also National Salute to Veterans week. Three 10th and 11th grade English classes of Southern High School teacher Robin Spiker showed their appreciation by making over 160 valentines bearing original patriotic poems for vets residing in nursing homes across the region. Oakland BPO Elks Lodge #1077 helped sponsor the effort, and Jim Cuppett, the local Elks veterans representative and Cuppett & Weeks administrator, and Spiker, a member of the Elks Lodge, have done this for the past several years. Cuppett distributed the valentines to veterans at Cuppett & Weeks, Dennett Road Manor, and the Goodwill Mennonite Home, all in Garrett County, and the nursing home unit of the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Martinsburg, W.Va. Cuppett is shown flanked by Cuppett & Weeks veterans Dewey Keller, left, and Harry Turney.

Colon Cancer Screening: Much More Than A Celebrity Cause

The removal of President Ronald Reagan's colon polyp in the 1980s raised some national colorectal cancer awareness, as did the more recent deaths of Peanuts cartoon creator Charles Schulz and television's Today show host Katie Couric's husband. Still other reports of colon cancer among celebrities like former baseball star Darryl Strawberry and Sharon Osbourne have brought a new face to the disease, heightened by the recent death of Price Is Right announcer Rod Roddy.

However, the idea that the average American should be concerned about colon cancer has never quite caught on, according to Rebecca Parks, RN, of the Garrett County Health Department. "If local health departments across Maryland, the American Cancer Society, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), and the National Cancer Institute have their way, it will catch on," Parks said.

Despite tremendous gains in understanding the genetics of colon cancer, screening for precancerous colon polyps (called adenomas) and early colon cancer remains the best way to reduce colon cancer death. Screening can detect early cancers when cure rates are highest. Parks said that without screening, more colon cancer cells spread outside the colon by the time they are found, causing the death rate to rise significantly.

"Colon cancer often is referred to as the disease nobody wants to think about, in a part of the body no one wants to talk about," Parks said. "After lung cancer, it's the second-leading cause of cancer-related deaths in the United States. But it doesn't have to be that way. When the disease is caught early, it is 90 percent curable. That's why colorectal cancer screening is so critical.

"A big problem with colon cancers is that they usually produce no symptoms early on, when they are small and limited to the colon," said Parks. "The first cancerous cells develop within non-cancerous polyps. Polyps are growths that arise on the lining of the colon. Most colon cancers grow very slowly, and remain confined to the inside of the colon for many years.

By the time most colon cancers cause obvious symptoms, the cancer has often grown through the wall of the colon and spread to lymph nodes or other parts of the body."

Adults age 50 years and older are at risk because of their age. Men and women of average risk for colon cancer should be screened beginning at age 50. This includes colonoscopy every ten years, or having a fecal occult blood testing with take-home "stool cards" every year along with a sigmoidoscopy every five years. These colon cancer screening tests are now covered under Medicare and most healthcare insurance in Maryland.

Yet, recent findings from the Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System and the Maryland Cancer Survey indicate that only about half of this group report ever having had a blood stool test. About the same percentage reports ever having had a sigmoidoscopy or colonoscopy. Over a quarter of those 50 and older report they have never been screened.

"Don't wait for your doctor to speak to you," said Parks. "Everyone age 50 or older should talk to their doctor about getting screening for colorectal cancer. Raise the issue earlier if you have a family history of colon cancer or precancerous polyps, or a personal medical history of inflammatory bowel disease or cancer of the uterus or ovary."

If a person's father, mother, sister, brother or child had colon cancer, screening is recommended beginning at age 40, or 10 years before the age the youngest family member was known to have the cancer — whichever is earliest.

For more information concerning colorectal cancer and the availability of no-cost colorectal cancer screening for qualifying individuals, persons may contact Parks at the health department: 301-334-7770.

Library Board Makes Annual Budget Request

The Garrett County Ruth Enlow Library board of trustees presented its FY 2005 operating budget request to the county commissioners this week. The board is asking for $881,850 from the county, which is $206,850, or about 31 percent, more than it received last year.

For FY '04, the board's budget was about $930,000. It had requested $690,965 from the county, but was allocated $675,000.

The library's total operating budget for FY 2005, however, is $1,114,605. The breakdown is as follows: salaries/benefits, $847,845; staff improvement, $12,250; contractual expense, $34,850; rent/utilities, $80,360; office/building, $39,850; supplies/printing, $94,300; furniture/equipment, $4,200; and other expenses, $950.

This budget reflects the board's goals to bring the staff's salaries and benefits "up to par" with their counterparts at other libraries and to maintain the quality of service for Ruth Enlow Library patrons, noted Madeleine Collins, board president.

Currently, only qualifying library staff receive health insurance. The board would like to start providing health insurance to the staff's family members as well. Providing the health care coverage "will directly improve the quality of life" for the staff, said library director Cathy Ashby.

In initial calculations, the board estimated that insurance would cost about $109,000 for family members, as well as $74,156 for the staff for FY '05.

County administrator Monty Pagenhardt noted, however, that actual insurance costs would not be as much as the board had originally anticipated.

The board also wants to provide the staff with a 3 percent merit pay increase and a 2 percent cost of living allowance, as well as hire two new part-time employees.

For library patrons, the board's FY '05 budget in-

UP A TREE – Spring fever isn't just a human affliction. This feline skittered up the tree and jumped from limb to limb, attracting the photographer's attention. He had no intention of coming down until he was good and ready. The weather continues to warm up, dotted with snow storms along the way — the usual course of events for springtime in Garrett County. Today's weather is to be balmy and pleasant, only to be followed tonight and tomorrow with wind and snow. But the cold will stay only for a little while, as Saturday is to be warmer once again. Keep an eye on the pets as they frolic outside, and remember that March is National Spay and Neuter Month. A neutered pet is a happy pet, and one that will stay close to home. Photo by John McEwen.

PSC Examiner: Allegheny Power Not Responsible For DCL Sailor's Death

A Maryland Public Service Commission (PSC) hearing examiner has declared Allegheny Power not responsible in the electrocution of a boater on Deep Creek Lake in July 2001.

Brian Hatfield, 43, Jamestown, N.Y., was killed when his sailboat mast came in contact with an electric line above the water. The accident took place in the vicinity of the Glendale Bridge. Examiner Dennis H. Sober concluded this week that the sailboat had drifted into an area unsuitable for boating, therefore nullifying the rule requiring lines to be at least 40 feet, 6 inches above the water's surface.

The ruling contradicts an earlier PSC staff report that found Allegheny Energy's subsidiary Allegheny Power at fault for allowing the 7,200-volt line to hang just 26 feet, 3 inches above the water. The accident took place, according to reports, in a shallow and brushy area, which Allegheny Power's attorneys have said was unsuitable for sailing. The characteristics of the accident site, they contend, cause it to be bound by a different rule — one which requires just 17 feet of clearance.

Last week's ruling will have no bearing on the Hatfield family's civil lawsuit against the company and the sailboat owner, according to attorneys. A lawyer for the Office of the People's Counsel said he plans to appeal Sober's finding. The lawyer has until April 3 to do so, as the ruling will become final on that date,

Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. announced this week that the Garrett County Airport will receive a $45,310 grant from the Maryland Aviation Administration (MAA) to fund necessary improvements at the airfield.

"Smaller airports, such as the Garrett County Airport, are critically important to the positive economic climate in the state of Maryland," Ehrlich said on Tuesday. "The state grant funding awarded today will help ensure that the project to improve the airport's existing runway will move forward."

Property Tax Rate Probably Will Not Be Cut This Year

The Garrett County commissioners are considering not reducing the real property tax rate for FY 2005. The officials have cited possible state funding cutbacks and requests from local departments and agencies for more county funding as reasons for not cutting the tax this year.

If the county maintains the current tax rate of $1.036 per $100 of assessment, revenues are expected to increase by approximately $1.25 million, based upon the projected 6 percent increase in the assessable base of real property for FY '05, according to Financial Services.

The department estimates that beginning July 1, the estimated real property assessable base in the county will increase from $2,002,538,018 to about $2,122,896,000.

In order to fully offset the effect of increasing assessments, the tax rate should be reduced to $.977, the constant yield rate, noted Wendy Yoder, director of Financial Services. State law mandates that a public hearing be held if a county proposes a tax rate that is higher than that of the constant yield.

Only two county residents attended last year's hearing when the commissioners proposed keeping the tax at $1.036 for FY '04.

This year's hearing on the proposed real property tax rate will be held Tuesday, April 13, at 10 a.m. in the commissioners' meeting room at the courthouse. The hearing is open to the public, and testimony is encouraged. Persons with questions regarding the hearing may call 301-334-8970 for more information.

Grand Jury Makes Indictments; Three Arrested On CDS Charges

Three persons have been arrested as a result of indictments handed down by the March term of the grand jury: Erica Lynn Robinette, 23, Mtn. Lake Park, and Jimmy Lee Barkley, 24, and Rachel Marie Robinette, 24, both of Morgantown, W.Va.

Erica Robinette has been charged with three counts each of distribution of marijuana and possession of marijuana and one count of conspiracy to distribute marijuana.

After receiving information that Erica Robinette was involved in the sale of marijuana, officers with the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force contacted her in early January and subsequently purchased marijuana from her on three occasions, according to State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch.

A search warrant was executed at her residence on the date a fourth purchase had been planned, which resulted in the conspiracy charge. After an arraignment in Garrett County Circuit Court, Erica Robinette was released on bond.

Barkley and Rachel Robinette were charged with possession with intent to distribute marijuana, possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia, possession within a school zone, and conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute.

Officers learned through their interactions with Erica Robinette that Barkley and Rachel Robinette would be transporting marijuana for sale into Garrett County on a specific date, said Thayer [illegible] vehicle traveling in the Oakland area, officers stopped the vehicle and searched it after a drug-detection dog alerted to the presence of CDS.

Rachel Robinette was released on bond after her arraignment in Garrett County Circuit Court.

Although Barkley posted bond in this case, he remains in the Garrett County Jail in default of $25,000 bond in a separate case. He has also been arrested and charged by officers with the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force for the distribution of marijuana to a police informant last fall.

Salem Children's Trust Supporters Testify In Annapolis For Funding

The Maryland General Assembly's Senate Budget and Taxation Committee heard testimony Monday in support of SB 609/HB 809. The proposed legislation would fund the design and construction of a centralized school building for the Maryland Salem Children's Trust, located near Frostburg.

Friends, supporters, and members of the non-profit corporation traveled to Annapolis in support of the legislation, which is co-sponsored by Sen. John Hafer and Del. George Edwards.

Testifying before the senate committee were Salem founder and executive director Louise Richards, Salem School student David, and former Salem student Makia, who is now enrolled in public school.

"This is a stellar program operating in inadequate facilities," said Richards.

Both students talked about the positive impact Salem School has had in their lives and about the difficulties and embarrassment of attending classes in crowded, temporary facilities.

"Salem is a great place for kids who need help," said Makia. "But kids shouldn't have to go to school where it's so crowded. There's no room for our music, books, or computers. I sang in the choir, and we had to give our programs in front of the blackboard. The adults were sitting in our desks and standing around the room. It's embarrassing."

The library and main entrance to the school share the former living room of a small bungalow residence.

"The only problem with Salem School," noted David, "is that it's not a real school. There's no kitchen at the school. When we try to read and study in the library, people are always going in and out. They almost bump into us. It's hard to concentrate. A lot of us are asking you, 'Please help us get a real school.'"

Also demonstrating support for the legislation were board president Sam Reckley, Salem School education director Todd Mechem, food service coordinator Clare Cooper, teaching parent Jim Thomas, development director Joyce Sauder, Salem friend and supporter Gary Harriger, Esq., and Hafer.

Following their testimony, the Salem delegation toured the Senate building and visited Hafer's office.

SALEM STUDENTS TESTIFY IN ANNAPOLIS – David, a current student at the Maryland Salem Children's Trust School, and Makia, a former Salem student, traveled to Annapolis on Monday with other school supporters. The delegation testified before the Senate's Budget and Taxation Committee to urge the lawmakers to support SB 609/HB 809. Co-sponsored by Sen. John Hafer and Del. George Edwards, the proposed legislation provides funding for design and construction of a school building at the Salem Children's Trust, located near Frostburg. ## Alleged Domestic Dispute Leads To Local Man's Arrest

An Oakland man was arrested following an alleged domestic disturbance at a residence on Plessinger Lane Thursday night, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Timothy Allen Welch, 39, was arrested and charged with disorderly intoxication and disturbing the peace after he reportedly went outside the residence and inflicted extensive damage to his pickup truck with a snow plow skid, police said.

In other police news, two men were arrested on drug charges after their vehicle was stopped on Pysell Crosscut Road near King Reis Lane for an equipment violation early Sunday morning.

A K-9 scan of the vehicle showed a positive alert for narcotics. The driver, Ricky Curry Jr., 19, Oakland, and his passenger, Jon Howell, 18, Swanton, were arrested and charged with possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia.

In another incident, police stopped Erick Richard DeWitt's vehicle for speeding on Sand flat Road.

DeWitt, 19, Oakland, was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana and paraphernalia.

A juvenile was also arrested in the incident, police said.

In other police news, Christopher Troy Bigelow, 24, Boonsboro, was arrested after deputies observed his vehicle swerving and crossing the center of Garrett Highway near Glendale Road early Sunday morning.

Bigelow failed field sobriety tests, and was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI), DUI per se, and driving while impaired (DWI), according to police.

Two Arrested After Police Investigate Noise Complaint

Two people were arrested following an investigation into a loud noise complaint at an apartment complex in Oakland Wednesday night, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

When deputies arrived, they detected an odor of burnt marijuana inside the apartment. They searched the residence and found marijuana and CDS paraphernalia.

Kristina Green, 23, Oakland, and Frederick Helbig Jr., 23, Oakland, were both arrested. Green was charged with possession of marijuana and possession of CDS paraphernalia. Helbig was charged with failure to obey a lawful order and disorderly conduct.

In other police news, several motor vehicle accidents were investigated.

No injuries were reported in a two-vehicle accident Sunday afternoon at the intersection of Oakland Ave. and I Street in Mtn. Lake Park.

Kenneth Lake, 32, Oakland, was operating a 2000 Dodge van with 14 juveniles from the Oakland and Terra Alta, W.Va., area, who were returning from a church service. Lake pulled into the intersection and was struck on the passenger side of the van by a vehicle driven by Thomas Skipper, 61, Parsons, W.Va.

Lake was charged with failure to grant the right of way at an intersection.

In a separate incident, Maxine DeBerry was found at fault and charged with failing to yield the right of way to another vehicle, police said.

DeBerry pulled her vehicle onto Garrett Highway and struck another vehicle operated by Barbara McDonald of the Oakland area. McDonald and her passenger were transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Oakland firefighters also responded to the Tuesday afternoon accident.

In another accident, Mark Keefer, 24, Friendsville, was cited when his truck slid on the icy road and struck the rear of another vehicle that was turning off Route 219 onto Water Wheel Road Monday evening, police said.

Keefer was cited for failing to reduce speed to avoid a collision. No injuries were reported.

Mildred Dunbar, Bea Crosco Named To Garrett Women's Hall Of Fame

BEA CROSCO

MILDREN DUNBAR

The 2004 inductees into the Garrett County Women's Hall of Fame are Bea Crosco and Mildred Dunbar. The 10th annual induction ceremony will take place following the Hall of Fame breakfast at the Will 'O the Wisp in McHenry on Saturday, March 20, at 9:30 a.m.

A co-owner of Flowers by Webers, Bea Crosco has served the people of Garrett County in a variety of volunteer and supporting roles. Her charitable work in the community includes initiating and coordinating the American Association of Retired People tax aide program, long time support for the Business and Professional Women, serving as vice president for the Deep Creek Lions Club, serving as the box office coordinator of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, serving on the American Red Cross Disaster Action Team, and supporting the Relay for Life and the Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Club.

The honoree is currently president of the Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Club. She is also currently the only women on the Garrett County Liquor Control Board.

"She is a rare melding of an artistic person who is also well-organized," said the community member who nominated her for the Hall of Fame.

"Mildred Dunbar loves and acts on that love, has wisdom and is willing to share, strives to do right and to bring goodness, lives her faith, laughs kindly, and lives a balanced life despite the difficulties that life has given her," said Dunbar's nominator. "From an early age, Mildred has demonstrated her love and goodness by providing medical care for the Garrett County community."

Mrs. Dunbar worked her way through nursing school and became a registered nurse. For a number of years, she helped to deliver babies at Garrett County Memorial Hospital (GCMH). She served as director of nursing at GCMH and helped to improve healthcare in the area by serving as director of nursing at Hopemont for 17 years.

The honoree has volunteered her time to help the community by serving as a den mother for the Cub Scouts, 4-H leader, and by supporting the PTA and band boosters. She has taught classes in first aid and basic patient care for the Red Cross, and gerontology, physician support skills, and other topics at Garrett College, while providing support and coaching for other women seeking careers in health care.

Mrs. Dunbar is currently giving free massages to the elderly and helping to provide healthcare at Underwood South. She has been an active member of BPW, the League of Women Voters, and the Mountain Laurel Garden Club. She currently volunteers at the End of the Line Bookstore.

"When she sees a job that needs doing, she simply starts," said her nominator.

"Both of these women have been a gift to Garrett County and they are excellent role models for the young women of Garrett County," said a Hall of Fame spokesperson.

Previous Hall of Fame inductees include Polly Hanst, Dr. Alta Schrock, Beverly Beard, Roberta Andersen, Jane Avery, and others.

Friends and family of the inductees and all interested community members are invited to attend the breakfast and ceremony to honor these women. Registration for the breakfast and induction ceremony will begin at 9:30 at Will O' the Wisp on Saturday, March 20. The cost is $12 for adults and $6 for children 12 and younger.

Post Office Food Drive Kicks Off This Saturday

The "Harvest for the Hungry" spring food drive of the U.S. Postal Service will get under way this Saturday, March 13, and continue through the following Saturday, March 20.

Persons wishing to donate can leave nonperishable food donations at their mailbox for pickup by their letter carrier, or within specially marked containers in post office lobbies and at the office of Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty, located along Garrett Highway at the McHenry Plaza. All donations made in Garrett County will stay in the county to be divided evenly between the House of Hope and the Garrett County Community Action Committee's Food Resources office for distribution to local citizens in need, according to GCCAC food coordinator Sandy Park.

The annual effort helps restock the shelves of food banks across the state, many of which are drawn on heavily throughout the winter months when the poor and senior citizens spend money on heating needs. "Every spring, year after year, we rely on the success of this food drive," stated Maryland Food Bank executive director Bill Ewing. "The food comes in at the perfect time. A time when our holiday food drive collection is just about gone. We challenge the public to give generously as this food will help restock our shelves."

Harvest for the Hungry is a year-round volunteer effort by various corporations and organizations to raise food, funds, and awareness for the Maryland Food Bank and its counterparts throughout the state. The effort began in 1987 as a holiday food drive, and was extended because its founder, Larry V. Adam Jr., believed that "hunger takes no holiday."

In fiscal year 2002, Harvest for the Hungry raised nearly $100,000 and collected more than 600,000 pounds of food for Maryland's hungry. The campaigns have collected food and funds worth a total value of $34,731,551.

Teets Named To Governing Board Of Administrators

The Public School Superintendents Association of Maryland (PSSAM) recently announced that Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of Garrett County Public Schools, has been elected to serve on the governing board of the American Association of School Administrators (AASA), the professional organization for more than 14,000 public school system leaders across America and in many other countries.

Teets, a native of Aurora, W.Va., received his doctorate from the West Virginia University. He currently serves as PSSAM past president and chair of the Maryland Public Secondary School Athletic Association committee.

Since his appointment as superintendent of Garrett County Schools in 1997, Dr. Teets served as representative and officer of various local and state organizations and advisory boards. In 2002, he received the Florence Beck Kurdle Award, a state Smart Growth recognition for community activism in Maryland.

Both Teets and Dr. Carl D. Roberts, superintendent of Cecil County Public Schools, who was also named to the board, were recognized for their strong school system leadership and for leadership in Maryland, said James J. Lupis, Jr., executive director of PSSAM.

"The state is fortunate to have two outstanding school system leaders represent Maryland on AASA's governing board," said Lupis. "They will be strong advocates for the educational needs of Maryland's public schools and will work to establish a strong agenda for the national association to stand up for public education. Dr. Teets and Dr. Roberts both recognize that public schools are the cornerstone of our democracy and have had outstanding careers in establishing strong public schools in their communities."

AASA executive director Paul Houston congratulated both educators on their recent election.

"Having high quality school leaders representing Maryland on the AASA governing board will add to the overall vibrancy of the national organization," Houston said. "AASA looks to these leaders to assist in setting our goals and providing direction at this most important time."

AASA's mission is to support and develop effective school system leaders who are dedicated to the highest quality public education for all children. The association was founded in 1865.

Iraq and the Media...

It is routinely labeled as liberal, and the evidence to support that description seems to be plentiful these days. If not liberal, then certainly anti-Bush.

It has been one year now since the U.S. invasion of Iraq, and if one were to listen only to the CNN television network, for example, he would quickly get the impression that the situation in Iraq today is out of control, with nothing but bombings and bloodshed to report. One gets the impression that the media is working even more furiously today, in an election year, to support the idea that the invasion was nothing but a deceptive, destructive, no-win blunder by the cowboy Bush administration.

It is absolutely fair to question the administration's reasoning for going to war and its current policies in Iraq, especially since the dreaded weapons of mass destruction have yet to be found. It also remains to be seen if proceeding with the invasion without UN and NATO backing was a good idea, whether or not the world is really safer today than it was when Hussein was in power there, and how much our relationships with other nations may have been damaged by the decision.

But there are many positive things happening in Iraq, about which the media seem to either ignore or, at best, will only briefly mention, and then usually not without some negative caveat. For example, last Friday the Iraqi council signed a new constitution, an enormous step in bringing democracy to that nation. The signing brought together Muslims, Kurds, and Shiites, who have been fighting each other for ages. It even guarantees that 25% of the new legislature will be female, the passage of which is nothing short of incredible in a Middle Eastern nation. Not even in the United States is there such a mandate for congressional composition. Yet, the report of that historic event by CNN, as brief as it was, concluded by noting that the signing was delayed several days by the Shiite representation, "which was a major embarrassment to the Bush administration."

A task force of the Council on Foreign Relations reported this week that, along with the suicide attacks and continued unrest, there are many good things happening in Iraq, particularly in the area of the nation's economy. Oil production is now just slightly less than what it was prior to the invasion. "Millions of Iraqis are buying their first cell phone, satellite dish, TV, washing machine, air conditioner, car, and so on. Companies are buying their first computers, earth-moving equipment, satellite Internet connection, and all manner of corporate tools," noted a report. The task force predicts that Iraq's GNP will rebound by "a huge 33 percent this year after two years of decline." The rebuilding of the country will create thousands of new jobs for the nation's now fast-growing middle class. In the areas of health and education, conditions are worlds better than when Hussein was in power.

Daniel Serwer, the director of peace and stability operations at the United States Institute of Peace, wrote in a column for the Washington Post (a liberal newspaper) that his recent visit to Baghdad made him realize that most Americans were not getting the whole picture. "I found an America more seized with failures than with the considerable successes there," he wrote. "Nowhere do I find Americans aware that Iraqi children hug U.S. Army sanitary engineers who repair sewer and water pipes. The U.S. press ignores the return of electricity and oil production to prewar levels."

He also noted that he found that the coalition is "truly multinational, despite the absence of the French," adding that he had come in contact with Dutch, British, Italian, Australian, and Polish military personnel.

Serwer's conclusions were that, despite the fact that some questions about prewar Iraq policy still need to be answered, care must be taken so that continued bashing of the Bush administration about Iraq will not "inadvertently undermine the building of peace in Iraq."

"We are in Iraq now and need to stay the course, with as many allies as we can muster. There is no turning back," he writes.

Perhaps the media can be accused of the same bias even when a Democrat is in the White House. Either way, we would greatly prefer that they work to report the whole story, as it is supposed to do, and then let the public draw its own conclusions.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Northern High School After-Prom Committee, which currently consists of three persons, desperately needs help. The after-prom involves approximately 250 students and guests. In order for the after-prom to take place May 8, it is imperative for the committee to have more help.

We urge you to attend our next meeting, set for April 1 at 6 p.m. at Annie's Kitchen. Persons interested in chaperoning must also attend this meeting. This invitation is open to anyone interested.

We are financially supported by businesses in our community, who feel this is a worthwhile event. We hope you feel the same. Please consider taking part. For more information, please contact me at 301-746-8717.

To the Editor:

The passing in recent months of our parents, Maybell and Thomas Willard Herbert, has prompted us to reflect on their nearly 20 years in Garrett County. They, along with our entire family, came to know and appreciate the people who compose this county. The kindnesses extended to them were deeply appreciated. That degree of "neighborhood" is, after all, what characterizes a county and its people. Garrett County stands tall.

In our parents' final years, the compassionate and caring attention extended to them by the staff of Cuppett and Weeks Nursing Home was of comfort to them and our family. At a time in life often fraught with anxiety and uncertainty, Dr. Thomas Johnson and the people at Cuppett and Weeks allayed concerns with a truly comforting and caring approach. We will always value the attention they gave and the love they shared.

In the final analysis, Garrett County was a wonderful place to call "home" and we will be always grateful.

Sincerely,
Carl Edward Herbert

To the Editor:

Many people all over the world smoke. Smoking can lead to many different diseases, such as cancer. Cancer involves body cells that develop abnormally and grow uncontrollably.

How do you get cancer? You can get cancer by smoking or breathing in too much smoke. It can damage normal body cells and interfere with the way the human body works. Heredity and your surroundings can cause some cancers. Your behavior plays a role in developing cancer, too.

Smoking, however, is only one way of causing cancer. If you aren't smart in the summer as to how much sun you get, that can also lead to a cancer called skin cancer. People with lighter colored skin have a greater tendency to develop skin cancer than others.

How can you protect yourself from getting skin cancer? It's quite simple. Put sunscreen on, don't use a tanning bed, and be smart.

Behavior is everything to cancer, and if you don't want cancer, be smart.

Sincerely,
Kate Wade

To the Editor:

I personally believe we should support our president instead of bashing everything that he says and does. When we started this war on terror everyone said that they were for it, but now that we have accomplished a few of our goals people say that President Bush made a mistake going to war. I am not sure why these people pretend that they did not want it too.

The president went with the information that was given to him and he made the right decision based upon it. Besides, there was plenty of time for the weapons of mass destruction to be hidden or dismantled. Even if there were no weapons, I think we should have gone because Saddam Hussein is a terrorist and would have come after us eventually.

President Bush did the right thing, and because of this one of the worst dictators of all time was captured. Imagine how some of the candidates now would have dealt with issues like 9/11 and Saddam. Just wondering! We should stand behind this great man and thank him for doing his best to keep us safe. The people running against him should stop bashing him and concentrate on a better campaign. President Bush is doing an excellent job!

Thank you so very much.

Sincerely,
Sarah Wilt

To the Editor:

I received a most hateful and thoroughly filthy hate letter in the mail this week. It was also aimed at you, the editor of The Republican.

It is so hard for me to believe that we have people living in this magnificently beautiful county who would be so full of hate to take the time to write and mail this sort of letter, not to the newspaper, but to my home. It is not the first time I have been subjected to this sort of behavior. I received threatening phone calls when I tried to get the Fair Board to allow the exhibit hall to be built on that property. A benign topic, surely. Not so!

People who know me know that I am an extremely fair-minded person. I was asked just this past week to write more because my letters were missed. But I have had it.

I have now been intimidated and threatened enough to stop writing to the paper about anything. I look at people around me when I go anywhere and wonder if they could be the writer of this horrible letter, which, by the way, is in the hands of the state's attorney's office. Life is too short to be harassed by the uneducated and vindictive people who do this sort of thing.

My family and I have no room in our world for this demonstrated hate. It makes me wonder if this is where I want my grandchildren to live.

So I am saying, "So long to the readers of The Republican!" I won't be reading your letters to the editor nor will you be subjected to mine.

To the Editor:

I am writing to let our community know about a wonderful opportunity for parents and educators who have concerns about underachieving children. The Association for the Education of Gifted Underachieving Students (AEGUS), of which I am a board member, is sponsoring its annual conference, Learning Outside the Lines: Discovering the Strengths of Gifted Underachievers. The conference will be held at the University at Albany's East Campus in Rensselaer, New York, April 23-24. Keynote speakers include author-educators Jonathan Mooney (Learning Outside the Lines), Dr. Susan Baum (To Be Gifted and Learning Disabled), Dr. Temple Grandin (Thinking in Pictures and Other Reports From My Life With Autism), Dr. Sally Reis (Work Left Undone: Choices & Compromises of Talented Females), and Dr. Felice Kaufmann (co-author of Attention Deficit Disorders and Gifted Students: What Do We Really Know?).

Conference sessions include information on multiple intelligences, visual spatial learners, homeschooling, students with Asperger syndrome, the role of administrators, successful programs for gifted underachievers, perfectionism, counseling issues, differentiation to reverse underachievement, kinesthetic strategies, parent advocacy, current research, and many other topics. On Saturday, a special student program will be offered for students in grades four through college.

If you are a professional, teacher, administrator, or parent who works with any student who "learns outside the lines," you will not want to miss this opportunity. The number of participants is limited to 250. For specific conference information and registration, go online to www.AEGUSI.org or call me at 301-387-9199.

To the Editor:

I really don't care who gets mad or offended by this letter, but I need to vent and there are some things that need said.

I realize that everything I'm going to say is redundant, because it's life and there's really nothing that will change it; but there comes a point when all the political garbage becomes too much for one person to handle.

I personally feel that it is unfair and ridiculous that some people are allowed to bend and break rules (or tailor them to suit their needs or wants), while other people are reprimanded for doing basically nothing wrong.

That subject is something that has been debated on this page before; it's ridiculous and sad in my opinion that people's names, financial situation, and because you know someone can get you off the hook, while others who may have not done anything or committed a small offense get in trouble.

I also think that following so-called chain of command or grievance procedures is pointless, given the fact that everyone in power backs everyone else. It doesn't matter if you start at the top or bottom of the chain if everyone is going to either do or say the same thing, or if they do or say anything at all; so why do they even exist?

I also feel that if people (individuals or government) say that they are going to do something; then they need to keep their word and do it, and not make excuses to get out of it.

People need to be judged and treated equally. Just because someone has a certain last name or makes X amount of dollars shouldn't give him any special favors or treatment.

There is a lot wrong with our society today, and the couple of things I just mentioned are just a scratch on the surface.

Thanks for letting me vent.

Respectfully Submitted,
Lester Lewis

To the Editor:

It's been an interesting week in Congress. I guess it's been an interesting week for informed Americans, too. For me, though, I'm puzzled. The Senate killed their own bill, which was designed to shield the firearms industry from lawsuits if their guns were used in a violent crime. Sounds fair; firearms companies don't kill, people kill. So why did they kill the bill? Because the Democrats amended the bill to renew an expiring ban on assault weapons and to require background checks for gun-show purchases. Ummm, this sounds pretty good too. We don't need assault rifles, and a background check seems reasonable. I don't get it; why didn't they just pass the darn thing?

Also this week, the House passed the Unborn Victims of Violence Act, also known as "Laci and Conner's Law." The bill would recognize as a legal victim any "child in utero" who is injured or killed during the commission of a federal crime of violence. Whatcha talkin' about, Willis? You mean it's now OK for a woman and her doctor to kill an unborn child, but no one else can. Apparently, 29 states already have similar laws.

I asked my wife about this one. She said, "A woman has a right to do what's best for her and her body." Thank God my wife and I have never been in a position where a decision on an abortion was necessary. But, had I ever been confronted with this situation, my position would have been, "What about me? I had something to do with this situation and so I should have some say in the fate of this unborn child."

I know, I know, I already got it from my wife. She said, "You don't have to carry the baby, get your hormones all out of whack, and go through labor." My response? Science now exists to have the embryo taken out and put in a surrogate.

I say change Roe v Wade. A woman should be allowed to have an abortion only if the responsible man ops out of his responsibility or if he, as a 50/50 partner in the conception, has a 50/50 part in the abortion decision.

Yep, we are an interesting society with lots and lots of food for thought.

To the Editor:

In an article on February 10, 2004, by Philip Shenon, in the New York Times titled "9/11 Panel Threatens to Issue Subpoena for Bush's Briefings," there is a curious bit of information, and I quote, "The White House has acknowledged that one briefing Mr. Bush saw in August 2001 referred to the possibility of a Qaeda strike with commercial airplanes.

Why do we need an investigating commission into 9/11? We know the Bush Administration did nothing to raise airport security. We know they did not raise the jet fighter response of the Air National Guard in response to this warning. We know they did not attempt to get the intelligence community to look into this warning (if they had, they might have discovered the flight training by the terrorists). We know they did not put one man on this threat who might have come up with an idea on how to address this warning.

If this is not a grave dereliction of duty, I do not know what is. No wonder the administration fought the formation of the 9/11 Commission and has stonewalled the investigation at every turn. No wonder Condoleeza Rice and the president won't testify in public before the whole commission, or under oath. If it acts guilty, maybe it is. What is the definition of a high crime and a misdemeanor? A stain on a dress or a dropping of the ball costing 3,000 innocent lives?

It appears as if they failed in the war on terror before it even began. And what really irks me is that on February 19, 2004, during the presidential daily briefing, the president's press secretary made this comment: "The most solemn obligation the president of the United States has is to protect the American people. And this president takes that responsibility very seriously, beginning each day when he wakes up and he looks at the intelligence reports that he receives about possible threats to this country. And this president acts decisively to confront those threats before it's too late."

Even more maddening and curious is that only five weeks after the warning of the potential for an al Qaeda attack, a commercial airliner crashes into the WTC. Bush makes the widely reported claim that his first thought was "That was one bad pilot." Did he forget the warning already?

Answers to these questions that relate to the death of 3,000 citizens are not to be taken lightly. The administration says they are cooperating, but it seems they are hiding something. We must demand the truth about this as well as the crying of wolf against Iraq which has destroyed our credibility in the eyes of the world. We must have the justice and the responsibility for actions the president is always harping on.

What the heck is going on here, and where the heck is this country headed?

Sincerely,
Crede Calhoun

To the Editor:

In 2003, I received from the Social Security Administration (SSA) a statement indicating that a little after my 66th birthday, I will begin collecting approximately $2,000 a month in SS benefits. Not counting the SS automatic Cost of Living Adjustments (COLA), I should collect approximately $24,000 per year, every year, until I die.

To date, my father has been collecting Social Security benefits for over 20 years. When he first retired from the LTV/Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation of Aliquippa, Pa., his retirement plan included healthcare and a monthly pension paycheck twice that of his SS income.

Today, my father's healthcare is no longer paid for by the bankrupt LTV Corporation. In addition, as a result of the COLA, his monthly SS income is twice the monthly pension paycheck that he receives from the Pension Benefit Guarantee Corporation (PBGC). The PBGC is a U.S. government agency that took over the LTV Steel (Republic) pension fund.

This past week, Allan Greenspan dropped a bombshell with his statements concerning the financial condition of SS. Since then, there has been talk by prominent Republicans that Social Security should not be changed for anyone presently on or close to retirement (age of 55 or older).

I am under the age of 55. Like millions of other Americans, I have been paying into the SS System for over 25 years. Worse case scenario, if the Republicans eliminate SS, I will

YOU GO, GIRL

by David Foster

This space in our paper is reserved for any thought that strikes any one of our staff, whether serious or humorous, personal or political. Today I'd like to devote a few paragraphs to a hero of mine, my sister-in-law Terry Carpenter, who is in the midst of a long battle with cancer.

Last evening after work, I drove over to Terry's Grantsville home that she shares with her husband (who works in our print shop here) and her parents, to deliver several bags of homecooked food brought here to the office by our generous co-workers — an extended family for all of us.

As it happened, on the way over I turned on the truck's radio and a story was airing at that moment about a hospital chaplain and her work with cancer patients and Oncology Department nurses. The chaplain spoke of a survey of those nurses, who were asked what working with people living with cancer had done for them. "It's made me appreciate life much more," was the common response. "The small things are what matter."

Another question, more pointed, asked "If you had to choose between dying of cancer, or by any other means, what would your choice be?" Amazingly enough, the vast majority of the respondents, who see on a daily basis what cancer can do, chose cancer. The reasoning? "It gives you time to say goodbye," and "it helps you focus on what's really important," were said over and over. "I can't imagine going quickly without warning, [in an accident or a similar unexpected way]" another respondent said. "It leaves such a hole not to be able to say goodbye." Cancer can give you that opportunity; it can even provide some laughs in some of the oddest of situations, as Terry and her sister, my wife Ann Marie, found out during her weekend hospital stay.

But last night I had the privilege of sitting quietly with Terry for a few moments, visiting in her home where she sat in an easy chair appearing not to have a care in the world. It was a special experience. Her quiet strength, faith, and pleasant demeanor, hallmarks of her entire life, have likely never been more evident since her diagnosis and ongoing treatments for the disease. "It's part of life," she said without a trace of sadness or regret in her voice. "Being sick has shown me some things I needed to do. It's told me I'm not in control, and need to let others take care of me more. Letting my family take care of me brings them grace and peace, and me too."

Terry is the first of her family of nine extremely close siblings to be staring death square in the face; her grace has brought grace to each of them, and her parents, her son, her husband. Her gift will live on long, long after she has left us, which may or may not be soon; either way, she is at peace, and that's what matters.

Terry was hospitalized in an emergency situation over weekend, and received a blood transfusion. "At that point I thought that might be it," she said last night, matter of factly. "But I was ready...Walt was there, I had just had a wonderful visit with my son, and was very much at peace. I know when the time does come, I'll be ready."

You go, girl.

FINANCIAL TEACHER OF THE YEAR HONORED BY BOARD – Lisa Bender, teacher at Southern High School, was recently awarded second place in the State Financial Teacher of the Year competition. Only three teachers were chosen to be honored for this award, and Bender will receive $300 as runner-up. She was nominated by SHS principal Tom Woods and First United Bank and Trust. She and Bill Grant of First United traveled to the award reception earlier this month. Bender was recognized by the superintendent and board members at this month's meeting. ## Maryland Workers Among Nation's Best Educated

By DANNY JACOBS
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON - Montgomery County had the most educated workforce in the country in 2002, with 29.2 percent of workers there holding an advanced degree, the U.S. Census Bureau reported Wednesday.

That helped give Maryland the second-highest education level among its workers — the 14.1 percent of workers in the state who hold a graduate or professional degree trailed only Massachusetts, where 14.5 percent of workers over age 25 had an advanced degree. The District of Columbia topped all states the list, with 23.6 percent of its workforce with an advanced degree, compared to 9.4 percent nationwide.

"The quality of Maryland's workforce has been one of our distinguishing factors in promoting interstate commerce," said David S. Iannucci, executive director of economic development for Baltimore County. "We've been talking about it for years."

Howard County was fourth on the list of counties, with 24.7 percent of its workers holding an advanced degree, trailing Fairfax County, Va., and New York County, N.Y., according to the data from the 2002 American Community Survey.

Maryland had three other counties in the top 160: Baltimore County was tied for 60th at 12.9 percent; Anne Arundel County was tied for 67th at 12.3 percent; and Prince George's County was 136th on the list, with 9.1 percent. In Baltimore City, 8.5 percent of the workforce owned an advanced degree, good for 44th on the list of cities with populations over 250,000.

Government officials and employers cited many reasons for Maryland's high numbers. Federal agencies that are based in the state, such as the Food and Drug Administration and the National Institutes of Health, employ many advanced-degree workers, while universities like Maryland and Johns Hopkins churn out graduate students and re-

DCL Carrying Capacity Study Draft Released

The Maryland State Forest and Park Service released the draft report on the carrying capacity of Deep Creek Lake, prepared by private consultant Environmental Resource Management. The Deep Creek Lake Policy and Review Board will meet March 22 at 7 p.m. at the Discovery Center at the Lake to discuss the report and provide feedback and comments.

The report is available on DNR's website at www.dnr.maryland.gov/publiclands/western/deepcreeklake.html.

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources had contracted with ERM last year to prepare the report on the carrying capacity and commercial use of Deep Creek Lake. The report will be used to help guide the future management of the lake, particularly regarding recreational boating and commercial activities. At it's March 22 meeting, the lake board will also discuss several other matters, including a proposed increase in the park's boat-launch charge, the ongoing county watershed and zoning study, and marina permits.

Public comments on the report may be directed in writing to the Policy and Review Board or to Paul Durham, park manager, at DCL State Park, 898 State Park Road, Swanton, MD 21561. Comments may also be e-mailed to Durham at pdurham@dnr.state.md.us.

DCL Policy and Review Board meetings are open to the public, and the board encourages public participation. For more information about the meeting, persons may call the state park's office at 301-387-4111.

Lynn
by Therea Stahl

So many broken hearts
Crying out to God above.
So sad to say good-bye to Sweet Lynn who we love.

A daughter, a sister, and an aunt
A loving mom and wife,
A friend, a mentor, a teacher, too
Who truly lived her life.

The day of death the better day
Those who die in Christ have gained.
But for the loved ones left behind
Life will not be the same.

Take heart, beloved, she's better now
And though we can't comprehend
We trust that all things work for good
We'll know why in the end.

All praises be to God above
To whom Lynn gave her all.
May we with greater fervor
Now surrender to His call.

Thank You To All
In Loving Memory of
Phyllis Kay Vitez
February 10, 1952 - February 19, 2004

The entire family of Phyllis Vitez would like to express our gratitude to a group of special people simply known as our friends. We have been and continue to be touched by so many of you who give us support, concern, and most of all, your love to us.

In the past several months as Phyllis continued to battle breast cancer, she continued the battle for her love of her family, the support of you, her friends, and her faith in God. As the time drew near, she made her work here on earth as easy on her family as she could, and simply hoped as her last devotion that you love and continue to be kind to your neighbor and to your friends.

We thank all of the members of the various churches in our area who prayed, sent cards, food, and flowers, but most of all, for your love for her and to us. Phyllis loved to be your postmaster in McHenry. She always called the office the "people's office." She always had fun with the "Over-the-hill-gang," with the Deep Creek Lioness Club, the Sage Investment Group, working with the members of the Garrett County Chapter of the American Cancer Society, and had a deep appreciation to the Garrett College Scholarship committee for their work on the "Michael Vaughn Vitez Memorial Scholarship. To the staff and faculty at Garrett College for your understanding, love and support shown to Vaughn. A very special "Thank you" to the Garrett County Commission for Women's "Quiet Hero" award, for which Phyllis was deeply honored to be recognized by you.

We are also touched by the special tray from the hands of caring employees of Foodland Fresh under the direction of caring people, Hugh and Debbie. The entire "gang" from Keyser's Ridge Truck Stop and Little Sandy's.

Special thanks to the members of the Tuesday Diehards, Wednesday Trio and all of our friends at Par-Matt Bowling Lanes in Oakland.

To a team that made a dream come to life with the design of Doug Storck, the craftsmanship from Doerr Construction, the final touches from Beal Masonry. To a dear and special neighbor, and his wife, who simply made scrap lumber into a safe and secure handle for Phyllis to enter and leave her room. On a cold rainy evening a man named Scott helped us solve a drainage problem. We never forget the icy night when a new furnace would not fire up until two men named Tony and Josh worked on the problem until it did. To Jeff, Doug (the nail driver) and Bo, your hard work would put a smile on her face even in the darkest of times as we pulled into the driveway. To Chrissa Rodeheaver for her professional guidance, expertise, and compassion to help lift a burden from Phyllis's shoulders and making a caring and secure environment.

We also want to extend a special "thank-you" to the Doctors, Nurses, Caregivers, Garrett County Home Health, and to the Garrett County Hospice. We are so touched by unselfish hours you give, your professionalism, true caring and concern that each gifted caregiver has shown us in a time in our lives as you came into our home. We thank God for sharing your gift with us. To special friends in the area who are dealing with your own health issues, thank-you for sending more than just flowers, but your thoughts and support to her. You are an example to us all for caring people who deal with life's challenges in health. From the award-winning movie Forrest Gump is one of the lines that we share with you, simply, "Life is like a box of chocolates, you never know what you're gonna get." You have shown us in life's test, that we didn't have the option of just spitting it out, and choosing another more appealing taste; instead, together we continue to chew and accept the taste of life's test on us.

Finally, we extend our appreciaton to the Zion Lutheran Church Ladies Aid in Accident for the comforting meal you served us. To our friend and Pastor Dr. Rev. Wilfred Karsten for sharing his time with us both at home, at the hospital, in prayer, and in your service along with songs by organist Lynette Karsten, a true tribute to Phyllis's life. Also to Lynn and Carol Newman, not only in the professional manner, but in your personal touch, for preparing her in love, dignity and honor that she truly deserved.

In God's Grace, Thank You! Vaughn, Dianna, Jeff & Her Enire Family

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Here it is March 5 and I saw my first robin today. It was not in Bittinger, but along Rock Lodge Road towards the lake. The weather was good enough that I could spend some time outside and not just make a mad rush to and fro from the house to the car. There were even patches of blue sky before a downpour arrived in the evening.

It appears to me, as I viewed the many gushes out of the north side of Rock Lodge Road along the lake and the spring along the road in full flow, that our ground water is more than just adequately charged. My guess is that we got about 50-plus inches of snow, or maybe even closer to 100 inches so far this winter. If it would have been cold today the rainstorm could have dropped probably 10 inches of snow. I was not surprised or even too dismayed when Sunday afternoon got a sustained snowfall. Hopefully the snow this week is the robin snow. However, this March is living up to its reputation of the windy month. Most attempts on my family farm to participate in March's traditional sport – kite flying – ended up as a failure because it was just too windy. I remember my siblings and I made our kites the old way, with newspaper and sticks and then tied a string with yarn on it for a tail.

That airship was pretty harmless compared to Bill Buckel's and my attempt to parachute from the big grain tower in our barn using a burlap feed sack rigged with baler twine. Needless to say, we failed miserably. I am not sure whether Bill sprained or broke his ankle. I am very relieved that my kids are not as reckless as I and my growing-up peers. It is a miracle that any of us survived to have children.

The hottest topic of conversation in Bittinger is the amount of water we have everywhere, with a new temporary lake in a hayfield along Foxtown Road. How Cindy and I used to love to gallop our ponies through those! Peat Moss Road was almost flooded over. That water pool, according to Sheila Southerly, attracted a huge number of Canada geese. I intended to drive over to see them for myself, but then the snow started flying too hard to face the trip. Besides the mini floods in our field and wet soggy lawns, a few unfortunate people like myself have some water in their house, either from a leaky roof or basement seeping.

If you are interested in seeing some wild ducks, the low between Olive Bender's and the sheep pasture on the Elwood Glotfelty farm will provide that opportunity.

Besides the weather, the other hot topic of conversation is the health problems of many people suffering from a couple of nasty viruses, bad colds and runny noses, and one involving one's stomach. Sad to say, I had a bout with both. My mother has been confined to her house for about a week with a nasty cough and cold. But more important is the progress of Margaret Hershberger-Wagner after surgery last week in Mon General Hospital in Morgantown. She was moved out of ICU on Sunday and has been walking around some. The progress is slow, but steady, and she expects to come home sometime the latter part of the week.

Question of the week! Someone asked me when bears come out of their dens. I believe it is not until the skunk cabbage leaves come out to provide them with a vitamin-laden food, as well as a purging flush for their bodies.

A couple from the Ocean City area, Steve and Linda Suanberger, who were once Garrett County residents for several years a while back, told me they want to find a building site in the Bittinger area. Cheri Nettle and I were visited with a brainstorm about their proposed move. Linda said, "I am coming home." If you know of a house site around this part of Garrett County, give me a call at 301-245-4841, and I will let them know. Their blended family consists of four teenage girls. I thought just three were a handful.

Media comment of the week! I heard on a talk show on TV that only human beings feel guilt, and that only humans have the ability to evaluate their own actions. I know for sure that dogs and horses can evaluate their behavior and performance. Our black Lab, Boo, certainly acted guilty when she opened my refrigerator door, got a roast chicken out of it and devoured it, or roots through the trash to retrieve some disposable items. She actually wakes me up in the middle of the night to get her expected scolding. I also know that dogs can feel pride. I had a golden retriever in New York City and he pranced with pride as he carried a New York Times or a loaf of fresh baked bread from the little Italian bakery down the street. He showed every sign of pride when he brought slippers to his owner.

Sports news of the week! Our Lady Lakers won the regional tournament so they are headed for the national tournament in Kansas City. I got this tidbit from Greg Whittemore, who has once again become a student at Garrett and attended the final game on Sunday.

Another sign of spring is that the baseball season has begun. The most pleasant thing on TV is a good baseball game, especially after the exciting basketball season.

Gregory Whittemore's first game as a member of the Garrett College Lakers' baseball team was rained out on Saturday. This Monday looks like far from baseball season, as it looks more like skiing season. I heard a rumor of snow last night in the checkout lane at Foodland Fresh during my first grocery shopping since my car engine died.

Bill Roszell at Garrett Automotive found a decent used affordable engine, and my car is running better than ever. Although I have a few more errands that I should do, I am not inclined to drive again on the snowy road.

It was quite a welcome thing this morning of a two-hour school delay, as I slept later than usual. Last night I stayed up late waiting for the return of Claire and Caitlin after a week in warm, sunny Florida. They arrived by bus about midnight at Northern High School. It was a late dinner last night for Mere and me as we were delayed quite late after a long study with her cousin, Emma Bass, and she stayed there to watch the Maryland-Virginia basketball game.

Of course, the Terps beat Virginia in their last game of the regular season. Hopefully now they will get a bid to the NCAA tournament. This week will start the ACC tournament. This wasn't a good year for the Terps, but they did pull off some upsets. It is widely acknowledged that the ACC is the best conference in the country.

If the JUCO tournament had regions, the most competitive region would be western Maryland, consisting of Hagerstown, Allegany, and Garrett. All of these teams strike fear in down-state teams. I think the reason that the Lakers are able to recruit the cream-of-the-crop players from the Catonsville area is that their parents feel that their sons would get a better education and get individual attention, as all students at Garrett and smaller schools do.

It is a blessing that the Garrett Athletic Program supports diversity and enables our local kids to get to know those from far different backgrounds, which gives their social lives a big boost. Some of the most exciting sporting events I ever witnessed were in our Lakers gym. No big win in Cole Field House could be compared to the celebration when our Lakers beat ACC at home, especially since I knew the students who accomplished it. I wish I could remember what year that was, but I believe it was about 1985, as I was not yet a new mother. It was my first year as a professional teacher. Claire was born in 1986, and I do have a photograph of one player on that team of them in my garden. So it is possible it was the winter of 1986 and maybe 1987 when that picture was taken.

I do remember very clearly the women's team of 1985-1986 because they were totally taken by my darling baby Claire. They fought to have the chance to babysit for her when I had to bring her along to work. I was very lucky to have had such a baby-friendly workplace since I had to return to work very soon after my babies were born. I also was very lucky to have daycare provided by one who lived close to the college, and I knew they loved my babies almost as much as I did.

Lesa Whittemore had the privilege of taking care of baby Claire in her first year. Then Paula Seaman was only a stone's throw away from the college and took care of all three girls.

It was hard to be away from my babies for more than a few hours. My social life ended during the last half of the 1980s and the first half of the 1990s. The only time I got to go someplace during the evening was to a Laker game. My grandmother, Emma Glottelty, and her housekeeper, Alma Orendorf, were eager to babysit for her, but it turned out she was not pleased with a bottle. They had a very angry baby until I returned.

During nine years I juggled a graduate school program, a demanding job, and produced three babies and cared for them, which was pretty hectic, but it was a wonderful life until April 7, 1994, when my life changed in one minute. I know before that day when the blood vessel burst in my brain that I thought how nice it would be to have some free time. Now that is all that I have, and I do not enjoy it at all. I wish I could start all over again my role as mother and relive those wonderful years.

The years do pass and now my two older girls are very self-sufficient and do not need their mother as much. They had a ball during their week in Orlando. The Northern High School Marching Band took in the attractions of Orlando, as well as visiting Cape Canaveral/Kennedy and marching in a parade at Disney World. It will be televised soon. I can't wait to see it. They were the only band participating. I will let you know when they know when it will be televised.

My wild birds are very pleased with my restocked bird feeder station. It is a very busy place this morning, with a whole bunch of chickadees and juncos. I need to get a fresh supply of thistle seed for the finches and red-caps. I am too lazy today to go anywhere or even answer my phone. It rang several times already, but I don't want to stop writing. Thank goodness for caller ID, #69, and voice mail. I guess I had better face the phone now; after all, it could be someone with a news tip.

While I am writing this I am half watching ESPN talking about the big March NCAA tournament and have some idea about the field of the teams that will be playing so I can fill out my sheet to benefit the GC basketball program. Since the media will be saturated with the news about the big games, you may be personally involved. I recommend that you get a sheet available at Deep Creek Pharmacy, Arrowhead, and from various other people in the county. One year I almost won the first prize of $1,000, but ULNV let me down in the semi-final round. My students followed my progress with less interest. If you want to get the lowdown on the top teams in the tournament, watch ESPN on Sunday at 7 p.m. or pick up a copy of USA Today newspaper on Monday morning. I could use a windfall like that big prize now.

I thought I lost my last working pen, but I was able to revive an almost dead one by applying heat for a second on the tip of the pen.

I just looked at my calendar and it looks like the work on my sheet for the tournament will be done next Monday, March 15. If you know your Shakespeare or history, you know what that means, "The Ides of March." I guess in 1971 March 15 fell on the weekend because I remember Linda Bowman and I called that quote to many skiers from the chair lift at the Wisp, so we did have plenty of snow then. The worst injury I sustained was not on that day, but it was in early January.

I wonder if March 15 is truly an unlucky day for most people or only Julius Caesar. I am always extra careful on the "Ides of March." I wonder how many people are aware of this day. I will conduct an informal poll this week on people I feel like talking to on the phone or anyone I happen to meet somewhere. I deliberately chose this coming Sunday for my snack confirmation session. I would not forget it because it is so close to the "Ides of March." In fact, I already got the cookies and juice to serve the class and the mentors. I like to be prepared and not have to worry whether I can get to the store and find the right stuff to satisfy my Meredith. Now the only thing to worry about is keeping my girls from eating the cookies between now and then.

Gary and Sharon Buckel hosted a birthday dinner Sunday for their baby Leslie who turned 25. Besides Gary and Sharon, attending were sister Candi, Leslie's finance, Mabel Griffith, and Sharon's sister-in-law and wife of my classmate, Jim Griffith. It seems only yesterday when Leslie was the same age as my youngest, Meredith – 13 – and already could wow our congregation by her vocal talent.

Another milestone will be coming this weekend when Sally Poholsky will have her birthday. She is a little younger than I (about five months).

One of our Bittinger young ladies with a full ambition and thirst for adventure, like my brother Scott, is headed to Central America. Alison Buckel, daughter of Dennis Buckel and Donna Hinebaugh, plans to go to Costa Rica for a two-month study of both Spanish and speech therapy. She will be based at a language school just outside the capital. I am happy to hear that she will be close to modern medical facilities, unlike Scott who was in Africa. She already has her master's degree from WVU, where she added credentials in Spanish and will be a very marketable job applicant. Right now she is in her 20s, single, and fancy-free. She should take a chance to see the world She is visiting her Aunt Sheila and family before leaving on Sunday. It is a good time to head south, as another winter storm hits Garrett County. In fact, her uncle Bill Southerly said that Rt. 495 through Bittinger was in the worst condition of this winter.

Sheila told me the big flock of geese was not around today, so they must have sought some kind of shelter or else decided to turn toward the south. Perhaps they thought it would be a good idea to head north to snag the best habitat available. They found a prime spot until this sudden burst of winter hit our peat moss lake.

I got a first-hand report from my cousin Mike Englar about what Alison can expect in Costa Rica. He spent several months touring all parts of it, and he had only good things to say about it. It is the nicest country in Central America: most stable, friendly, safe, and beautiful. So it doesn't seem like Alison's family has too much to worry about, except the normal reaction all parents feel when their children go far away.

A few local news items: Elizabeth Shaffer and Mildred DeWitt, Deer Park, visited Ferne Beach on Friday.

Aaron and Patty Stanton and Alana spent several days visiting relatives in Wisconsin. They were delayed on the way home because of a snow storm and had to spend an extra night on the road.

WHAT IT'S LIKE TO BE HUNGRY – Kids in Mountain Top Youth For Christ recently took part in a 30-hour famine in order to better understand what it is like to be hungry. The staged event was designed to help them understand the plight of millions of their peers around the world who suffer daily from the lack of food. Thirty-eight youth in grades 6 through 12 participated. Recognizing the fact that 29,000 children die from hunger and hunger-related diseases each day, the youth raised over $5,000 through this event, with all proceeds going to World Vision. Their funds will help feed 55 kids for one year. The top fund-raisers were Victoria Moser with $840, and Eric and Darren Maust with $500 each. The group also held a lock-in as part of the event and included service projects, knotting two comforters for needy families in Garrett County, and putting together gift baskets for the families of Hospice patients. Some of the group visited residents of a personal care home, where they sang, talked, and played games. Participants are pictured above. ## USDA Helping Families Become Home Owners

Since 1949 the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Rural Development has been helping rural Americans become home owners. In 2003, Rural Development assisted more than 43,000 individuals or families in purchasing their own, and often their first, homes, according to state director Marlene Elliott.

"The Maryland housing market continues to grow and the Bush Administration is committed to making sure this continued growth leads to increased opportunities for more rural citizens to become homeowners," Elliott said. "Last year, just in Maryland, we helped over 680 families obtain a home of their own, and this year we are committed to helping more."

Rural Development has nearly $20 million available this year in Maryland, a 25 percent increase over last year's funding, to help people become home owners, she noted. The home ownership program provides loans that assist eligible applicants to purchase a dwelling located in a rural area with a population of 10,000 people or less at favorable rates and terms.

"The best part of our program is that no down payment is needed," said Tim Taylor, local Community Development manager with Rural Development. "Our home ownership program has helped so many people who thought they could not afford a home graduate from being renters to becoming home owners."

Eligibility to participate in the program depends on the location of the home ( it must be in a rural area), the applicant's household income, and the cost of the residence. The mortgage limit for Garrett County is $118,600, and $120,900 for Allegany County.

Income limits also vary by county and the number of people in the household. To be eligible to participate in the direct home ownership program, the maximum income limit for a family of two in Garrett or Allegany counties is $35,150. For a family of four, it is $43,900.

Anyone interested in the program or wanting additional information may call Taylor or Sylvia Guthrie, Community Development technician, at 301-334-6970 or visit the Rural Development web site at rurdev.usda.gov. TTY users may call 302-697-4303.

Adorable Adoptables

GRAY IS A POPULAR COLOR LATELY at the Garrett County Animal Shelter. Four gray cats were recently brought in and are available for adoption. Two of the felines are females, one of which is longhaired, and the other two are males. Their owner didn't want to have the expense of having them all altered, vaccinated, and licensed. "Since March is Spay/Neuter Awareness Month, remember if you want to adopt them together, you can get two $25 discount certificates for spaying or neutering!" noted a Humane Society spokesperson. Also available is Snowball, a very friendly longhaired male who loves to be petted. He, too, was given up by his owner. A male yellow Lab is also at the Animal Shelter. This "nice guy" was wearing a collar when he was picked up as a stray, but had no identification. "Please tell your friends and neighbors to put IDs on their pets," said the spokesperson. "And if a pet becomes missing, call the Animal Shelter as soon as possible." For more information about these pets, persons may call 301-334-3553.

Study Shows Students Fare Well With Financial Barriers Removed

Maryland students who received state need-based financial aid fared just as well as or better than students who did not receive this type of financial aid, according to a new study by the Maryland Higher Education Commission. The findings come on the heels of a proposal by Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. to add an additional $15.9 million in state funding to need-based aid programs.

"When we committed additional money to need-based financial aid, we did it because it was the right thing to do," said Ehrlich. "This study shows us that an investment in need-based financial aid is money well spent."

Dr. Calvin W. Burnett, acting secretary of higher education agrees.

"Many people think students who receive need-based aid don't perform well," said Burnett. "This study shows that these notions could not be further from the truth. It is absolutely clear that an investment in programs to benefit low- and moderate-income students is effective and works."

The study found that the retention, graduation, and transfer rates of community college students who participated in Maryland's need-based programs, targeted to low- and moderate-income students, exceeded those of students who did not. Students at public four-year colleges and universities who received a need-based award from the state were more likely to re-enroll for a second year of study than were their counterparts. While non-recipients had a slightly higher five-year graduation rate than recipients, a majority of both groups earned a baccalaureate within this time period.

The report examined new full-time freshmen who received the Educational Assistance (EA) or Guaranteed Access (GA) grants and were enrolled at a Maryland public college or university during the 1996-1997 academic year. Award recipients were tracked for five academic years from 1997-1998 through 2001-2002.

Students receiving an EA or a GA grant were compared to those who did not receive any assistance. The report looked at community college students and the percentage that remained enrolled, earned an associate degree or certificate, and/or transferred to a Maryland public four-year college or university during the period.

Other significant findings of the report follow:

*Nearly three-fourths (74.3 percent) of the 1,390 EAG and GAG recipients returned for a second year of study at a community college, transferred, or earned a degree or certificate, compared with 62.5 percent of those who did not get aid.

*More than 40 percent of the new full-time community college freshmen who obtained an EAG or GAG transferred to a public four-year institution and/or earned a community college degree or certificate within five years of matriculation, compared with slightly more than one-third for students who did not receive one of these grants.

*The second year retention rate of the 2,224 EAG and GAG recipients who attended a public four-year college or university was 83.4 percent, compared to 79.5 percent for students who did not receive an award.

*After five years, 50.4 percent of the EAG and GAG recipients at public four-year campuses had attained a bachelor's degree, compared to 53.6 percent of non-recipients.

This spring, the commission will release an additional analysis of the retention, transfer and graduation rates of full-time students who received an EAG or GAG and matriculated during the 1996-1997 academic year. This study will examine the performance of these students on the basis of the number of years in which students received an award, the total amount of award money they obtained during the subsequent five years, and a model that combines the length of the award and the dollars attained.

This year, the Maryland Higher Education Commission will award nearly $85 million in financial aid to Maryland students. For more information about financial aid programs, or the report, persons may log onto www.mhec.state.md.us.

High School Diploma Could Be Tied To HSA

The Maryland State Board of Education recently agreed to take another step toward linking the four High School Assessments (HSAs) to the Maryland High School Diploma.

The state board voted to publish the new proposal in the Maryland Register so that it can receive public comment. Under the proposal, which provides for a single Maryland High School Diploma, students would be required to reach minimum scores on each of the four assessments, but not necessarily pass each assessment, and earn a combined score on all four tests that is in the passing range.

State board members approved the new proposal by an 8-1 vote, with one member abstaining. Another member was absent for the vote.

"This is another important part of the process," said State Superintendent Nancy S. Grasmick. "We have been meeting with stakeholder groups from throughout Maryland and will continue to do so as we work to finalize a plan that will benefit all students. Our process is far from complete."

The new regulations will be published in the Maryland Register as early as April 16. A public hearing before the state board will likely be scheduled for the May 25-26 state board meeting. Final approval is tentatively scheduled to take place at the state board meeting on June 22-23.

If approved, the regulations would first affect the graduating class of 2009 (freshmen entering high school in the fall of 2005).

MSDE's work with stakeholder organizations guided changes to the proposal that was presented to the state board last December. That proposal included a number of pathways to high school completion.

The new proposal includes a Maryland High School Diploma for all enrolled students as well as a Certificate of Program Completion for enrolled students with an Individualize Education Plan (IEP) who have significant disabilities.

GATORS HONORED IN FEBRUARY – Students of the Month for February were recently honored at Yough Glades Elementary School. Each gator received a free T-shirt and a one day swim pass compliments of Lakewood Community Recreation Center. Sitting, left to right, are Zach Tasker, Dakota Hinebaugh, Jack Janoske, Zach Slaubaugh, Remington Sweitzer, and Andrew Hauser. In the back are Michelle Knotts, Colt Mason, Alicia Roth, Annie Graham, Destany Friend, and Gary Pritts. Kevin Bernard and Keith Miller were absent. Below are the Mathematicians of the Month. In the front are Raven Friend, Ernie Thomas, Matthew Imhoff, Rachel Bowser, and Jena Janoske. In the back are Sabrina Spiker, Elliot DiGioia, John Mousch, James Rolf, Cody Upole, and Woody Knotts.

Finally, for students not enrolled in high school, there is a Diploma by Examination alternative, either through the national GED tests or through a national competency-based, applied performance assessment for the External High School Program.

To receive the Maryland High School Diploma under the new proposal, students would do either of the following:

•Take and pass all four High School Assessments (English I, algebra/data analysis, government, and biology).

As part of this, a student may decide to take and pass one or more approved substitute assessments in those subject areas (such as an Advanced Placement Test or SAT II Test in one of the four subjects); or •Take all four High School Assessments and earn a minimum score (an acceptable score, to be established by MSDE, that is below the passing score) and earn the combined passing score (equal to the total of the four HSA passing scores established by the State Board last year).

Passing the assessments would not be the only criteria for graduation. Students must still complete all credit and service-learning requirements, attend school for four years beyond eighth grade, and complete any local graduation requirements.

Dr. Grasmick and members of the state board agreed to review student performance on the assessments each year leading up to 2009 to make certain that students are making progress with the exams. The draft regulations would trigger a review of the requirements if the state board identifies concerns during the review.

The High School Assessments, introduced in 2002, are tests in algebra/data analysis, biology, English I, and government. These are typically freshman- and sophomore-level courses.

Maryland has moved cautiously to strengthen graduation requirements, having studied instituting such a step since 1993. The state's Core Learning Goals, upon which the assessments are based, have been in place since 1996. All local school systems have certified that the goals are fully integrated into the curriculum and instruction, which means that appropriate courses have been in place in Maryland classrooms for seven years.

If the state board ultimately approves the regulatory change for the class of 2009, 16 years will have passed between initial consideration of a High School Assessment Program and the first graduating class to be affected by it.

Dr. Grasmick continued to emphasize that the proposal assures that all students would have opportunities for success as standards are being raised to keep Maryland classrooms on pace to meet the requirements of both the workplace and higher education.

As part of the process, Maryland is developing a series of on line courses in each of the four subject areas that students will be able to access at no cost.

February Stats Released By GC Sheriff's Office

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office has released the agency's monthly statistics for February 2004. A total of 1,524 control numbers were assigned for a variety of different functions requiring officer action throughout the month, according to Sheriff Dick Sanders.

The statistics were 11 arrests for driving under the influence of alcohol, 44 motor vehicle accidents requiring a deputy's response, 50 traffic complaints, 15 thefts, 10 controlled dangerous substance complaints resulting in 7 adult and 1 juvenile arrests, 4 domestic violence complaints, 3 domestic violence assaults resulting in 4 arrests, 5 destruction of property complaints, 14 disturbance complaints, 97 traffic citations issued with 129 warnings, 95 patrol checks at businesses and residences, 23 alarms, 3 missing persons, 82 adult arrests, and 306 court papers served.

Sanders is requesting that the public be on alert for two types of scams. One scan involves viruses in e-mail, and the other involves suspicious subjects arriving at a residence under the pretense of performing work for the occupants.

"Do not allow strangers into your house without proper identifications," Sanders said. "Be cautious of releasing credit card numbers and bank account and Social Security numbers to anyone you do not know. Remember, if you are approached concerning a monetary deal that sounds too good to be true, in all probability, it is."

The Sheriff's Office can be reached at 301-334-1911 or gcso@garrettcounty.org.

GC Student Artists Honored At Civic Club District Contest

The Youth Art Contest of the Western District of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs (MFWC) was judged at the LaVale Public Library in Allegany County recently, and several Garrett County students drew high honors. Each participant had won previous county contests sponsored by the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland, GFWC Frederick Woman's Civic Club, and the GFWC Western Maryland Community Club.

Local winners in the Western District MFWC contest in the high school competition were Southern High senior Laura Diane Bonser, Oakland, who took first place for her pastel titled "Portrait"; Northern High junior Erica Maust, Grantsville, who earned second place for "Victims of Disorder," a collage; and Northern Middle seventh grader Aaron Newman, Grantsville, who took second prize for middle school students with his print titled "Bird."

Winners were given certificates, ribbons, and cash prizes. They competed in two categories: Class 1 (grades 6-8) and Class 2 (grades 9-12). Judges for the Western District event were Mary McCunn, a Frostburg State University graduate and a freelance artist, and John Wisker, an Art Institute of Pittsburgh graduate with 25 years' experience in the graphics industry.

All first, second, and third place winners from the Western District will have their artwork entered in the MFWC-sponsored Youth Art Contest and exhibited during the GFWC Maryland Convention to be held April 16-19, in Baltimore.

The GFWC Civic Club of Oakland contest was held in January in cooperation with the Garrett County Arts Council at the Gallery along Alder Street.

Local winners of ribbons and a cash award in Class 1 were Elizabeth White, first place with a cut paper collage; Aaron Newman, second place for his print; Lacey Swauger, third place for a portrait in pastel oil; and Sarah Frederick, honorable mention for a tissue paper stained glass.

Class 2 winners were Erica Maust, first place for her college; Corey Lewis, second place, for a tempra paint titled "Insects"; Laura Diane Bonser, third place for her pastel; and William White, honorable mention for "Sound" using pencil and tempra paint.

Judges for the GFWC contest were Sonia Pratt of the Loft studio in Bittinger and Larry Mattingly, an art instructor at Preston County (W.Va.) High School. Other members of the Oakland Civic Club's Youth Art Program committee include Dorothy Cathell and Roberta Andersen.

The 2005 Youth Art Contest is slated for the first months in the year. Any student artwork produced during 2004 will be eligible for the competition.

GLAF To Present Hawkins, Deep Creek Symphony

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival will present Ernie Hawkins, an internationally touring acoustic guitar virtuoso, and the "critically acclaimed" Deep Creek Symphony, among many other acts during its 2004 season.

Hawkins, who will take the stage at Garrett College on Saturday, June 19, at 8 p.m., plays and sings in the East Coast Piedmont & Texas steel-string flattop finger-picking traditions. Performances consist of "dazzling" rags, "soulful" ballads, gospel, African instrumentals, and anecdotes of blues, according to Beth Johnson, executive director of GLAF. Tickets are $12 for adults and $5 for youth (12 and younger).

Hawkins will teach a 1½ hour blues guitar workshop in the afternoon prior to the concert. The workshop will be held at the Garrett College Art Gallery, beginning at 2 p.m. Cost is $30 for the workshop alone or $40 for workshop and concert.

There is a maximum of 10 participants. Event sponsor for the day's activities is Wisp Resort Hotel and Conference Center, with sponsor partner Judy and Jan Finkel.

The Garrett Community Concert Band will once again hold its free Fourth of July concert. The Sunday celebration will be held under a huge tent on the college lawn, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The setting is "the perfect location to round out the evening with the ideal vantage point to view the community fireworks display immediately following the concert," said Johnson.

The event sponsor is Sincell Publishing Company, with sponsor partner Sandra and Ihor Zakaluzny.

The Independence Day celebration is the kick-off to the Chautauqua Festival, which will be held July 5 to 8 under the same tent on the Garrett College lawn.

The theme for the 2004 Chautauqua is "The American Environment: Voices and Choices." The free events for the whole family begin each evening at 7 p.m. with local performers.

At 7:30 p.m., the Maryland Humanities Council will present performances of such historical environmentalists as Henry David Thoreau (July 5), Teddy Roosevelt (July 6), and Rachel Carson (July 7). "Attendees are in for a treat on July 8 with Garrett County's own Meshach Browning, John Garrett, Coal Stories, and more," said Johnson.

Chautauqua is made possible by Garrett College, Garrett County Arts Council, the Maryland Humanities Council, and Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, with sponsor partner Heilig Plumbing and Heating.

Aug. 16 through 21 will mark the 4th anniversary of Music on the Mountain, and the rebirth of the "critically acclaimed" Deep Creek Symphony.

"It is almost impossible to describe the nature of this phenomenon, as each consecutive year it has evolved in an explosion of musical activity surpassing its previous year in scope and professional excellence," noted Johnson.

According to music director David Wroe, "Music on the Mountain is one of the finest professional music festivals in the United States of America."

Music on the Mountain is also "about a bringing together of the community and the Deep Creek Symphony does that in style," said Johnson, with Beethoven's 9th Symphony on Tuesday, Aug. 17.

This festival highlight brings the Garrett Choral Society and the Greater Uniontown Chorale together for the first time to form a 100-plus chorus in singing Beethoven's famous "Ode to Joy."

On Friday, Aug. 20, the Deep Creek Symphony will team up with the Wisp Resort in an outdoor pops concert titled "Salute to the Silver Screen," closing with fireworks and cannons for the "1812 Overture."

Singing remains a theme of the concert finale on Saturday, Aug. 21, with Barber's orchestral song cycle "Knoxville: Summer of 1915."

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival co-presents Music on the Mountain with the Sprenger-Lang Foundation of Washington, D.C. Event sponsors for the weeklong festival are First United Bank and Trust, Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, Robert and Marcene Huebner, Nancy and Fred Learey, and Will O' the Wisp. Sponsor partners for Music on the Mountain are Margaret Kaiser and Eric Tribbey, M&T Bank, Doug and Rebecca McClive, and Wisp at Deep Creek Mountain Resort.

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival brings back the National Players on Friday, Oct. 1, with Romeo and Juliet.

The community performance will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Garrett College Auditorium. In its 55th year of touring, the National Players troupe has earned a unique name and place in American theatre, Johnson noted. It is committed to the development of young theater audiences, and will offer Shakespeare school programs (Sept. 30 and Oct. 1) in addition to this community performance. Tickets are $12 for adults and $5 for youth. GLAF's sponsor partner is Mettiki Coal Company.

Wrapping up the 2004 season will be the United States Marine Band, "The President's Own," on Sunday, Oct. 3, at 2:30 p.m. in the gymnasium of Southern Garrett High School.

The concert is free, but it will require tickets. Tickets are available by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, 687 Mosser Road, McHenry, MD 21541. There is a limit of four tickets.

MeadWestvaco will co-present this finale.

"Fight Night II" Slated At FSU's Studio Theatre

Frostburg State University Theatre's Season Too! will present its second annual "Fight Night" on Wednesday, March 17, at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center's F. Perry Smith Studio Theatre.

"Fight Night II: Fight Harder" is "bigger, broader, and bolder than ever before," according to an FSU spokesperson.

Director Craig Lawrence has set original choreography to contemporary and classic theatrical scenes, which will demonstrate an array of stage combat styles, including swashbuckling, duels, hand-to-hand combat, fights of passion, fights of rage, and fights of comedy.

This show is recommended for mature audiences only. All tickets are $3. For more information, persons may contact the FSU Division of Performing Arts at 301-687-4145.

GC Artist's Work Displayed At Md. Dept. Of Aging

An artwork titled "Down Home," painted by local artist Irene Hixon, has been selected by the Commission on Aging to be permanently displayed in the Maryland Department of Aging office suite at the State Office Building in Baltimore. The Department of Aging had requested each Area Agency on Aging to submit a piece of senior artwork from its county.

Hixon's oil painting depicts a home decked out with winter's finery. Hixon and her husband once lived in the home, which is located along Swallow Falls Road. Her work was selected from among several entries to represent the talent of Garrett County senior artists.

Hixon, 67, has won several first- and second-place honors for work entered in various local art shows. She credited local art instructor Edna Bender for teaching her basic painting techniques. Hixon began taking lessons for her own enjoyment when she was in her mid-50s. Although it has been "a number of years" since she has taken formal instruction, Hixon said she "loves art in any form" and continues to paint. Most of her work is given to family members, she said.

GAINS PERMANENT DISPLAY IN BALTIMORE – An oil painting by local artist Irene Hixon titled "Down Home" has been selected for permanent display in the Maryland Department of Aging office suite at the State Office Building in Baltimore. Hixon's oil painting depicts her former Swallow Falls Road home nestled in a blanket of snow. See story.

NHS BAND PERFORMS AT MAGIC KINGDOM – The Northern High School Band spent last week in sunny, warm Orlando, Fla. Selected from a taped audition, the band was the only one selected for a premier event – the SpecroMagic Parade held at Disney World's Magic Kingdom, which took place Saturday evening. "The band performed well and is being considered for a spot in an upcoming Disney Channel presentation on performing groups at Disney World," said band director Bill Robinson. The band members spent much of their time practicing for the parade, pictured below, but were also able to take some time off to tour Disney World, take a trip to the Kennedy Space Center, and visit Cocoa Beach, shown at the bottom. The Huskies returned home Sunday evening, where they were immediately greeted by several inches of Garrett County snow.

GC Adds Second Pysanky Course

Garrett College has scheduled another offering of its class in Pysanky, the Ukrainian art of egg decorating, for Saturday, April 3, from 9 a.m. to noon. The March class date has met with a large response, according to a college spokesperson, requiring the addition of a second class.

April's one-session course will also be taught by Edna Stinefelt. Students will learn the art of designing, dyeing and creating their own unique creation by using this centuries-old technique.

Space is limited, and for cost and other information, persons may contact the Continuing Education and Training Division at 301-387-3069.

Young Readers To Discuss Story Of Life With Tourette's

The Ruth Enlow Library Young Readers Club will meet at 4:15 p.m. Thursday, April 1, in the Oakland library to discuss Quit It by Marcia Byalick.

"At a quick glance, Carrie looks just like everybody else in her seventh-grade class," according to the publisher's book description. "She gets good grades, acts in school plays, kicks a pretty decent soccer ball, and is a sensational Game Boy champion. But watch her a little longer and Carrie looks very different. She shrugs her shoulder a little too often, jerks her head, coughs and sniffs in uncontrollable bursts. She has Tourette's syndrome. And at a time when all a kid wants to do is blend in with the crowd, she stands out like crazy."

An author's note answers frequently asked questions about Tourette's, as "Byalick skillfully personalizes a syndrome rarely dealt with in children's literature, at the same time telling an appealing story of a likable protagonist whom readers will sympathize with, root for, and learn from," an American Library Association Booklist review stated.

"Every reader who's ever known public discomfort (which is likely to be every reader, period) will empathize with Carrie's struggle."

Byalick is a freelance writer who has contributed to The New York Times, Newsday, Family Circle, and many other publications. She is also the content editor for the BeingGirl.com Web site, aimed at girls ages 10 to 15.

Persons may visit the Oakland library or call 301-334-3996 to reserve a copy of Quit It. The REL Young Readers Club book selection for May is Surviving the Applewhites by Stephanie Tolan.

The library also offers a book club for older youth, and persons may visit the library Web page at www.relib.net or call the number listed above for more information. All book clubs are funded in part by the Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library.

SCHROYERS MEET POPOVICH – Gregory Popovich and one of his performing house cats, Sugar, are pictured with the Schroyer family at the PAWS (Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety) display after last Sunday's performance of the Comedy and Pet Theatre, part of the FSU Cultural Events Series. The Schroyers, Mike and Marta and their daughters Hanna and Nicole, were winners of the Getaway Package Raffle sponsored by PAWS. Popovich, an award-winning juggler and circus performer, presented his show for a sold-out crowd of over 450 adults and children in the Pealer auditorium at FSU's Performing Arts Center. Later he signed autographs at the PAWS booth (pictured). On display at the booth were some of the entries in the PAWS Drawing Contest. The contest which asked school children to draw a picture about "finding a friend at the animal shelter," was part of the educational outreach PAWS sponsored in connection with the performance. (Winners of the contest have been notified, but will be publicly announced at a later date.) The entered drawings are being turned into a poster to help promote shelter adoption, a PAWS spokesperson said. All of Popovich's animal performers were adopted from shelters. He stresses the importance of pet owners being responsible, and having their pets spayed or neutered, the spokesperson noted.

cruit workers with advanced degrees.

The state also has a burgeoning high-tech industry. But workers with advanced degrees can be found in a wide range of occupations, including real estate, medicine, law, biotech and the financial industry in Montgomery County, said Steven A. Robins, chairman of the county chamber of commerce.

"We're very proud of that number," Robins said of the county ranking. "The community really does pride itself on education, so it doesn't surprise to me that people here are educated and motivated."

And because higher-educated people tend to have higher levels of income, the result is a positive effect on the state's economy, said Iannucci, a former secretary of economic development for the state.

"Maryland has had the strongest economy in the Mid-Atlantic region over the last five years, and it's the workforce that makes it possible," he said.

John Czajkowski, president of Management Recruiters in Annapolis, said only one-third to 40 percent of the people he placed in the last year have had advanced degrees. His firm finds jobs for people in Maryland and all over the world.

Even an advanced degree does not ensure a job, Czajkowski said. Companies often use advance degrees only as a way to separate potential applicants for a job. And sometimes an advanced degree can hurt an applicant.

"Some employers feel advanced-degree people are 'overqualified,' which always amuses me," said Czajkowski, noting that some applicants leave advanced degrees off their resumes to keep from scaring potential employers away.

But Czajkowski and others believe that the current makeup of the state's workforce, plus an increase in job specialization, will keep Maryland and its counties among the leaders in educated workforces.

"There is a trend that's catching on: As people see the workplace getting more competitive, they see it (an advanced degree) as a way to separate themselves," he said. "The perception is, 'The more education and advanced degrees I get, the better chance I have.'"

Pagenhardt, Flanagan Heroics Launch SHS Into State Tourney

SPORTS

One season, 25 games, 100 quarters, 800 minutes – 47,999 seconds, to be exact – and, shortly after 8 p.m. Friday night, every one of those seconds ended up hinging upon a moment shorter than the time it just took to read this sentence. But that one moment produced memories that will last forever, and propelled the Southern High School girls' varsity basketball squad into this weekend's Maryland 1A State Tournament.

As Justine Pagenhardt launched a prayer of a shot from just beyond the midcourt line, through the sounding of the final buzzer before the ball had traveled even halfway to its final destination, the hopes of the Southern High School girls' varsity basketball squad, along with its Poolesville Falcon opponents, hung in air, then...

SWISH! "Yeah! Yeah! It's good!" local radio broadcasters John Hill and Oren Yoder yelled into their microphones, all but drowned out by the raucous Ram fans already spilling onto the Fort Hill gym floor to mob Pagenhardt and her victorious teammates in unrestrained joy. That great wave of Southern Red was celebrating a last-second, 59-57 SHS win over Poolesville in the 1A West Region final, a thriller that everyone lucky enough to be in that packed Cumberland gymnasium will likely remember for the rest of their lives.

Despite the well-deserved attention paid to Pagenhardt's "Hail Mary," perhaps no one fought harder every moment of the game than her teammate Becca Flanagan, an unsung hero in a number of Ram victories over her own stellar career. The senior forward pulled out all the stops Friday night, shaking off a head injury sustained two nights earlier in SHS's region semifinal win over Allegany to frisk the Falcons with a commanding 30-point, 15-rebound performance. The dominating Flanagan carried the Rams on her shoulders most of the night by connecting on 9 of 13 field goals, hitting all 12 of her free throws, and scoring 19 of SHS's 28 second-half points.

A thrilling victory for the entire county, the Rams' win came at the end of a night of a hard-fought battle with Poolesville, which had brought a 20-4 record, identical to Southern's mark. The two squads fought tooth-and-nail throughout the contest, and the only downside of the night was that someone had to go home the loser.

"I've never been involved in anything like this before," joyous Southern coach Don Stemple said in a radio interview after picking himself up off the floor in front of the Rams' bench, where he had fallen onto his back when Pagenhardt's bomb hit the bottom of the net. "We've been in games where we made a basket with like five seconds left and the clock ran out, or the other team did it to us. I've never been involved in a buzzer-beater, in 30 years of coaching, and now this one, from halfcourt, in a championship game...unbelievable!"

After some strong Southern play in first third of the contest, especially in the third quarter, during much of the final moments it appeared that the Southern season was about to end with another long, quiet bus ride home up the mountain.

The Rams were down after the first quarter, 15-12, but surged back from a 25-23 deficit midway through the second quarter to take a 31-29 halftime lead. A 12-point third-quarter tally helped put SHS firmly in the driver's seat, and with a minute to go in the period the Rams were up by eight, 43-35. As that stanza drew to a close a Falcon bucket narrowed the gap to six, 43-37, where the score stood when the final quarter opened.

The two squads locked in a death struggle over the next eight minutes, and, with 1:35 remaining and Southern holding a slim one-point lead, Flanagan scored to put the Rams up 54-51. The Falcons' Jamie Morningstar, Poolesville's best player, sank a 15-foot jumper with just over a minute to play to cut the gap to 54-53.

With 59.5 seconds to go, an SHS foul sent Poolesville to the free-throw line, but the Falcon missed the first half of a one-and-one and Southern grabbed the rebound, only to lose the ball out of bounds. Poolesville grabbed the lead five seconds later when Morningstar connected on another field goal to put her squad up 55-54.

A short while later things began to get really interesting, as the lead changed hands three more times in the final 25 seconds.

With the Rams in possession, guard Robbin Gregg got the ball inside to Flanagan, who drew a foul. The senior sank both free-throws, part of her night's perfect 12-for-12 tally from the charity stripe, to put SHS up 56-55.

Sabrina Scheffel got a hand on the Falcons' ensuing inbounds pass, but the ball scooted out of bounds. On its second inbounding attempt, Poolesville hurled the ball the length of the floor, but Flanagan was able to knock the ball away from a Falcon and the ball ended up in a Ram's hands. The Southern player was fouled, went to the line with 16.7 seconds showing, but missed both free throws.

On the second miss, the ball bounded off to the corner, where Jasmine Scheffel dove on it and shoveled it out from under a pile to a teammate, who was fouled herself. The string of nerves continued, however, as the SHS shooter missed both of her attempts with 11 seconds on the clock.

The Falcons inbounded the ball with another long pass to foil Southern's aggressive pressing defense, and at the end of a two-on-one fast break worked the ball to Morningstar, who responded by hitting a short jumper with five seconds to give Poolesville a 57-56 lead and, presumably, the game.

That's where Pagenhardt picks up the narration: "I threw the ball in to Sabrina, and she threw it to Robbin; they double-teamed her, and she threw it to me, and I threw it up. I couldn't tell [if I was on the halfcourt line]; I was just hoping it would go in. I've never made any shot that long before, and never one at the buzzer." The rest is history.

Stemple, who had feverishly been trying to call a timeout above the din of the Poolesville crowd when Morningstar had made her go-ahead bucket, fell on the floor in disbelief. One side of the gym erupted into frenzied celebration, while the other fell silent.

Prior to the tip-off, the Rams' skipper had said that the contest pitted what may have been the two best 1A teams in the state, evenly matched in speed, size, strength, and experience. He also foreshadowed that the battle would go down to the wire, a prediction that was right on the money.

Pagenhardt's amazing shot and Flanagan's heroic 32 minutes of play were two of several keys to SHS's win. Flanagan finished with game-highs in the scoring and rebounding department; Pagenhardt tallied 13 points, six assists, and three steals; Gregg contributed six points and six assists; and Scheffel snagged a team-high four steals. Morningstar had 21 points and Courtney Leas had 12 for Poolesville (20-5).

The Rams will open in the state semifinals at 9 p.m. tomorrow at the University of Maryland Baltimore Campus against the Loch Raven Raiders, in a game that will be carried live on 92.3 FM "The Train." Comprehensive pre-game coverage will kick off at 8 p.m.

Loch Raven is making its second straight visit to the state tournament. The Raiders were eliminated from last year's semifinals in a 47-point loss to Dunbar, and are looking to put that disaster behind them for good. Loch Raven gained entry to this year's state field by downing Elkton, 45-34, in the North Region final Friday at home. Senior center Megan Battle paced the victory with 19 points, and the Raiders used an aggressive man-to-man defense, with a lot of fullcourt presses, to harass the Golden Elks from start to finish.

"I think our press aggravated the Elks," Raider coach Kim Bauguess observed. "I thought [we] came out with a lot of intensity, and really wanted this, to go back two years in a row. Last year we were intimidated [going into the tournament, but now] we're ready to go back, and feel more comfortable."

Much like the Rams senior-laden squad, the core of Loch Raven's success is its upperclassmen. The Raiders' senior quartet of Battle, Laura Queen, Lauren Askey, and Emily Desmarais combined for an average of 35 points per game for the team, which averages just 43.2 points per outing; hence Southern's Rams can expect to meet up with some of the most harassing defensive play they've faced all year.

The other State 1A semifinal, set for 7 p.m. tomorrow, pits Pocomoke against Southside Academy. Pocomoke beat Queen Anne's 63-62 for the 1A East title, while Southside knocked off Dunbar, 54-52, in the South. The semifinal winners play for the state championship on Saturday at p.m.

SHOT HEARD 'ROUND THE REGION SENDS RAMS TO STATES – The celebration was long and loud following the Southern High School girls' miraculous 59-57 victory over Poolesville in Friday night's 1A West Region. The Rams' season appeared to be ending in a heart-breaking loss when, a split-second before the final buzzer sounded, senior Justine Pagenhardt fired up a shot from just beyond midcourt that hit nothing but net. The emotion of the moment is still evident in this post-game gallery, as above, Pagenhardt is stretched out prone on the court (after SHS coach Don Stemple peeled himself off the floor, where he had fallen in disbelief), in front of the first row of her Ram teammates, who are, from the left, Becca Flanagan, Sabrina Scheffel, Robbin Gregg, and Roxann Hoalcraft. In the second row are Kayla Nazelrod, Kendra McLaughlin, Julia Bosley, Caitlyn Brown, Jasmine Scheffel, and Ashley Stuck. Pagenhardt is shown above to the right being mobbed by her teammates immediately after the contest, and fellow senior Flanagan, who almost single-handedly carried the Rams throughout the night, is shown directly at right taking her ceremonial cut at the same net that had been on the end of the buzzer-beating bomb. Southern debuts in the Maryland 1A State Tournament in a semi-final match-up with North Region champ Loch Raven, set for 9 p.m. tomorrow night at the University of Maryland's Baltimore Campus. Full pre-game coverage will get under way one hour prior to tip-off on 92.3 FM "The Train." (Provided, of course, sports broadcaster John Hill has regained his voice.) GC RUNS OVER REGION OPPONENTS – The Garrett College women's basketball squad was running at full throttle over the weekend, as the Lakers tore through three Region XX Tournament games to claim the program's first region crown. This quartet of photographs shows just a few of the talented Lakers, identified from left to right, in tourney action. Tournament Most Valuable Player Ashley Liller (#21), an Oakland native and graduate of Southern High, helped pace an extraordinarily balanced team effort, while fellow Lakers Jenna Bradford (#23) of Baltimore and LaSha Anderson (#42) of Martinsburg, W.Va., both earned All-Tournament Team honors. Lovarsha Knox (#45) is shown hauling down one of her many rebounds of the weekend as she helped Garrett dominate the boards. After an upcoming pep rally, slated for 11:45 a.m. Monday in the college cafeteria, the Lakers will travel to Overland Park, Kan., to compete in the NJCAA Division II National Tournament. Once established within the next few days, the national tourney pairings will be available online at www.njcaa.org; click on "Women's Basketball Division II" for scheduling and updates. # GC Mows Down Region Field; Hopes To Make Hay In Kansas

If you blinked, you would have missed the Garrett College women's basketball team as it ran through the Region XX Tournament in McHenry over the weekend. The Lakers used their overwhelming speed to blaze through the Friday-Sunday tourney with victories of 88-70 over Prince George's and 91-62 over Cecil, before taking a hard-fought 70-60 win over a determined Baltimore City Red Devil squad. GC's success was paced by stellar team play by the unselfish Lakers, including Tournament Most Valuable Player Ashley Liller, and All-Tournament Team honorees LaSha Anderson and Jenna Bradford.

The region triumph gained Garrett (25-4) entry into the upcoming NJCAA Division II National Tournament, set for Wednesday through Saturday, March 17-20, at Johnson County Community College in Overland Park, Kansas. A pep rally send-off is slated for this 11:45 a.m. Monday in the GC Lakers' Café (the college cafeteria), where team members will be introduced and food will provided. Following that event, the Lakers will board a bus to drive to Baltimore-Washington International Airport for the final leg of their "Journey to the Tourney."

Friday night's 18-point opening rout of Prince George's was paced by Liller's team-high 19-point tally, which included a trio of three-pointers. Fellow guard Denae Kennedy recorded 14 points, center Tiffany McFarland had 13, and Anderson and Bradford contributed 10 points apiece, plus Anderson also had five assists and three steals. Forward Lovarsha Knox grabbed eight rebounds, and McFarland and Kennedy snagged seven each as the Lakers dominated the boards, 56 rebounds to 47.

The Owls were led by game-high scorer Janel Hamilton, who netted 21 points.

Up by just five at the half, 37-32, the Lakers exploded over the second half with a 51-38 run that blew PG off the floor.

In other first-round action of the same day, Potomac State beat Hagerstown, 78-69 (Hagerstown had earlier beaten Harford the previous day 73-64); Cecil upset Howard, 77-67; and Baltimore City knocked out CCAC-Allegheny, 72-53. Those results were evidence of just how tough the Region XX field is, as both Howard and Allegheny had handed Garrett losses during the season, as had the PSC Catamounts.

GARRETT (88)
Denae Kennedy 5 3-5 14, LaTonya Crowder 0 3-5 3, Amanda Frantz 2 2-2 6, Ashley Liller 7 2-5 19, Jenna Bradford 2 4-8 10, Tiffany McFarland 6 1-2 13, Lovarsha Knox 0 1-2 1, Tamika Duck 3 1-2 7, Autumn Beavers 1 3-4 5. Totals 32 22-41 88.

PRINCE GEORGE'S (70)
Kenya Jackson 6 1-3 14, Terri Humphries 1 10-12 12, Janel Hamilton 6 4-4 21, Erica Miller 1 2-2 4, Ashley West 4 1-2 9, Kimberly Clayburn 3 1-3 7, Ceci Adkins 0 3-4 3. Totals 20 22-30 70.

Halftime - Garrett 37, PG 32.

Three-point goals - Garrett 6 (Liller 3, Anderson 2, Kennedy 1). PG 5 (Hamilton 4, Jackson 1). Total fouls - Garrett 20, PG 24. Fouled - Humphries (PG).

The Lakers showed no mercy against Cecil the following afternoon, as they flew past the Hawks on the way to a 29-point triumph. Once again Liller led the way with five three-pointers and 25 points overall, good for game-high honors, and Knox netted a double-double with 10 points and 16 huge rebounds. Bradford had 14 points, and Anderson and McFarland each contributed 12 to the well-balanced offensive output.

Bryant led Cecil with 24 points, while Webb added 13.

The Lakers were firmly in control by the intermission, as they ran up a 44-31 halftime advantage.

Baltimore downed PSC in Saturday's other semifinal, 77-70, to set up Sunday's championship showdown. The Catamounts' campaign ended at an excellent 21-4 mark, one game shy of a highly anticipated rematch with the Lakers, who had upset the nationally ranked PSC by 12 points two weeks previously. The two squads had split over the course of the season.

Baltimore's Red Devils bedeviled Garrett during the first half. GC, which had a nine-point advantage midway through the stanza, saw its lead dwindle to just one by the intermission, 30-29.

The second half was even more of a pitched battle, and with nine minutes to play Baltimore had run up a nine-point lead of its own. However, with their backs to the wall, the Lakers went to work and connected on four unanswered buckets to surge back into the lead and ride the momentum through to the crown.

Anderson led all scorers with 20 points, including one three-pointer and an 11-for-13 tally from the free-throw line. Liller added 13 points and four steals, McFarland had 12 points, and Bradford contributed 11 points. Kennedy snagged 10 rebounds, scored seven points, dished out four assists, and grabbed four steals, while McFarland, Bradford, and Knox hauled down 10 rebounds apiece.

Halftime - Garrett 30-29.

Three-point goals - BCCC 9 (Williams 2, Henderson 1, Noel 2, Price 4), Garrett 1 (Anderson 1). Total fouls - BCCC 23, Garrett 11. Fouled out - none.

Shalane Prince led Baltimore with 16 points, and teammate Christina Williams had 12.

"It was another packed house," commented GC head coach Steve Willison

Kamp, Wildesen Earn State Wrestling Titles; Rams 12th

Two Garrett County high school wrestlers, both underclassmen, came back from the Maryland Class 1A/2A State Tournament, held Friday and Saturday in College Park, with individual state championships.

Northern Husky Casey Kamp and Southern Ram Scott Wildesen wrestled their way to the 103- and 160-pound titles, respectively.

Not only did Kamp, who is only a sophomore, win a state championship, but he is also now ranked the #1 wrestler in the 103-pound class among all Maryland high school students (in 1A, 2A, 3A, 4A, and private schools).

Wildesen, a junior, became just the second Southern Ram ever to win a state title, the first being John Hayhurst just three years ago.

Other top finishers in the tournament from Southern were junior Nathan Sines, who captured fourth place in the 135-pound division, and senior Dan Goulart, who finished sixth in the heavyweight division in his very first year of wrestling.

Also qualifying and competing were Southern freshman Daniel Carr in the 125-pound division, and Northern senior Eric Garlitz in the 130-pound division.

As a team the Rams placed 12th among 81 1A and 2A schools, 62 of which were represented by at least one wrestler at the state tournament.

Southern finished with 50 points. Northern placed 24th with 26 points.

Kamp, who placed third in the state as a freshman last year in the 103-pound class and was the state's top-seeded wrestler going into the tournament, had little trouble securing his first state title. He arrived in College Park with a 28-1 record, with his only loss being a disqualification in the Berkeley Springs Tournament.

In the state tourney, he pinned Matt Oates of Harford Technical; recorded a 16-5 decision over Michael Shrom of Kent County; outpointed junior Erick Brown of Joppatowne, 8-4; and rolled over junior Ethan Cohen of Hammond in the title bout, 10-1. Brown's record was 28-3 when he faced Kamp, and Cohen was 29-1. Kamp's four tournament victories gave him a 32-1 record for the season.

"Casey is a very talented, gifted athlete who has worked extremely hard," stated Coach Scott Stough. "He is an incredible technician, he gives 110% not only in matches, but also in practice. You never have to push him, and he never complains."

Kamp's two-year record is 58-5, and Stough noted that last season he was actually undersized even for the 103-pound division. "He was wrestling, and beating on a regular basis, kids who weighed 10 pounds more than he did," Stough said. "He has a great future."

Wildesen was also the top-seeded wrestler in the state in the 160-pound division. His state tournament victories included a pin of Sean Carlson of Havre de Grace; a 13-7 decision of senior Lee Purnell (29-4) of Stephen Decatur; a 6-3 point win over senior Justin Shaffer of Eastern Technical, who had a 27-2 mark when he met Wildesen; and a 6-1 decision over yet another senior, Erik Hufnagel of Glenelg, who was 26-3. Wildesen finished with an overall mark of 32-3.

"I could never have accomplished what I did this season without the help of great teammates, great practice partners, great coaches, and a great family," Wildesen said.

"I am so proud of Scott," stated Southern coach Dave Taylor. "He has worked extremely hard to prepare for this, and it obviously paid off. Going into the final match, Scott was very calm, but very focused. He knew what was at stake, yet he also knew it was just another wrestling match."

After winning his first match by pin over Nicholas Redman (35-6) of Kent County, Southern's Nathan Sines was edged in his second match by 30-7 senior Jon Demchick of Owings Mills, which sent him to the consolation bracket. There he defeated Russell Harrell of Joppatowne by disqualification, nipped senior Byron McClure of Friendly, 8-7, and pinned Anthonio Josiah (27-5) of Oakland Mills before being pinned by senior Mike Schlepp of Middletown.

"Nathan had a great year," Coach Taylor said. "To place among the top four in the state is a feat that only a handful of Southern Garrett wrestlers ever accomplished."

Ram heavyweight Dan Goulart, who was the state's top seeded wrestler in his weight class, opened with an 8-1 decision of Andrew Coon of Hammond, followed by a 3-0 win over John Sparklin (27-6) of Owings Mills. He was then pinned by John Hickcox (26-5), sending him to the consolation bracket. There he was pinned by Ralph Stambaugh (22-3) of Francis Scott Key and by Phil Thomas (32-3) of Pikesville.

"A first-year wrestler placing sixth in the state is beyond belief," Taylor said. "There are many kids who have wrestled for 12 years who never reach the podium at the state high school tournament, and Dan did it in his first year. He was a great addition to our team this season."

Goulart concluded his senior year with 30-8 record.

While not placing at the state tournament, Southern's Daniel Carr finished his season with a 25-13 record, setting a new school record for most wins as a freshman.

Northern's Garlitz, a senior, wrapped up his final season with a 21-10 record.

"Eric didn't start wrestling until the eighth grade, and he has made great strides," Stough said. "For him to qualify for states is a great accomplishment."

As a team, the Rams had a legitimate shot at the team championship; that is, until seniors Chris Bennett (215) and Jason Weeks (171), and freshman Justin Ratliff (119), three of the strongest members of the team, all had their seasons ended by injury just two weeks ago.

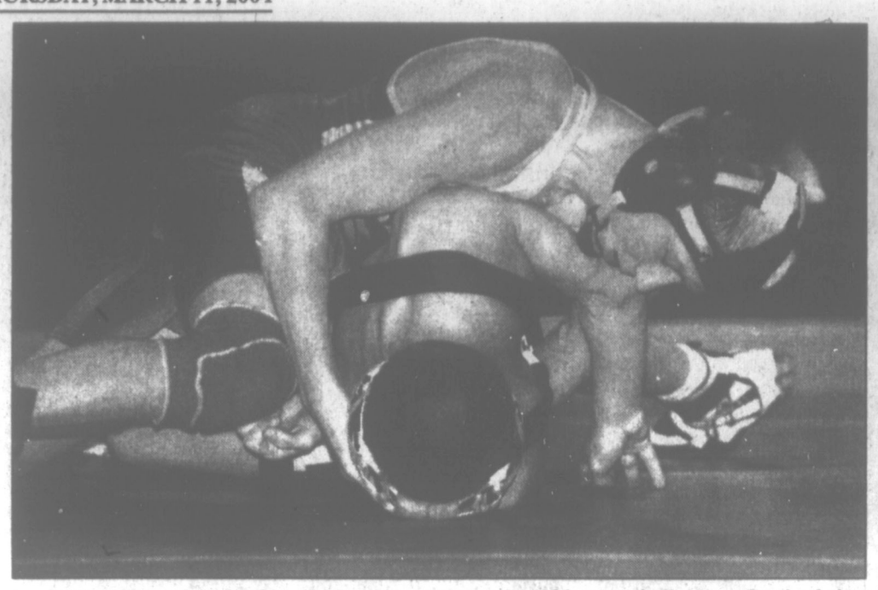
"At least Justin has three more years ahead of him," Taylor said. "But my heart really goes out to Chris and Jason, who had to watch the state tournament in their final season because of injuries.

"With just Chris there, we probably would have finished among the top five teams," he said, "and with Jason and Justin, we would have definitely challenged for the top spot."

Weeks had been nursing a shoulder injury for several weeks which ultimately did not allow him to perform up to his standard in the regional tournament, while Bennett sustained a dislocated elbow in his first match at regionals. Ratliff sustained a rib cartilage injury just prior to the regional tourney.

The West Region once again proved to be the strongest in the state, as eight of the 14 state champions came from that region, leaving six to be shared by the other four regions.

Owings Mills won the team title with 133.5 points, followed by Harford Tech with 99, South Carroll with 98.5, Walkersville with 80, Williamsport with 68, Glenelg with 56, Hammond with 55.5, Overlea with 54.5, Oakland Mills with 52, Middletown with 51, Southern with 50, Stephen DeCatur with 42, Pikesville with 39, Hereford with 38, Joppatowne with 37.5, Liberty with 36, North Caroline with 35, Havre de Grace with 34, and rounding out the top 20, Elkton with 32.



IN TOTAL CONTROL of his opponent in the 103-pound division final of the Maryland State 1A/2A Wrestling Championships at College Park on Saturday was Northern High School's Casey Kamp, pictured above left dominating Ethan Cohen of Hammond High School. Kamp, a sophomore, recorded a convincing 10-1 victory to not only claim the state title, but also be declared the #1 wrestler in his weight division for all high schools in Maryland. Another local grappler earning a state title in the 160-pound division was Southern High School junior Scott Wildesen, pictured above right atop Erik Hufnagel of Glenelg. Wildesen recorded a 6-1 decision over Hufnagel to win the championship. In the photo below left is Southern's Nathan Sines, also a junior, who earned fourth place in the 135-pound division, and below right is senior heavyweight Dan Goulart, also of Southern, who finished sixth place in his division in his very first year of wrestling. # Rams Edged By Allegany In West Region Semifinal, 59-55

There is not a basketball coach in the land who does not know how difficult it is to defeat the same team three times in one season, and that fact is particularly poignant for Tedd Elrich, coach of the Allegany High School boys' varsity which ended the 2003-04 season for Coach Tom Bosley and the Southern High Rams last Thursday.

It was the third time the Rams and Campers had met, twice in the regular season and the final time in a 1A West Region semifinal, played at Fort Hill High School in Cumberland.

The first time the young Southern squad was dominated, 68-50; the second time, the progressing Rams took the Campers to overtime, only to fall, 65-59; and the final encounter saw Allegany hang on for a 59-55 win. The victory sent the Campers into the region final against Westmar on Saturday, which they also won.

After trailing by two, 14-12, at the end of the first quarter, the Rams outscored the Campers in the second period by a 16-8 margin to take a 28-22 advantage into the locker room at halftime.

The Campers rallied in the third stanza and outscored Southern by a 19-11 margin to regain a slim, 41-39, lead heading into the final eight minutes.

The final outcome of the contest was not decided until the final two minutes of play, as Southern's Dewaine Jones hit a jumper to knot the score at 51-51.

Jones, the only starting senior for the Rams, hit 10 points in the final quarter, including two three-point buckets.

A lay-up and four straight free throws by Donavin Vinson put Allegany back on top by six, 57-51, and Ian Grady hit two more charity shots to make it 59-52 with just 16 seconds remaining.

The Rams hit a final three-point shot to end the scoring.

Corey Tressler led the Rams in scoring with 19 points, while Jones, who hit four long-range goals, finished with 16. Cory Bosley also reached double figures with 10 points, and dished out six assists. Evan Lantz led the Rams on the boards with six rebounds and also had three blocks.

The Rams were outrebounded by a 33-24 margin.

Vinson scored 19 points, pulled down a game-high 11 rebounds, blocked three shots, and had two steals to pace Alco's effort. Grady finished with 12 points, six rebounds, three blocks, and two steals.

The Rams concluded their season with an overall record of 15-9.

The Campers, who edged Westmar in the regional title game, 62-61, will take an overall record of 23-2 to this weekend's state 1A tournament at College Park.

Lakers' Hoops Season Brought To End In District Semifinal

One of the most successful seasons in the history of Garrett College came to an end Saturday when the Lakers were eliminated from the NJCAA District III Tournament by Monroe of New York, 80-75. The tourney was hosted by eventual tourney champion Allegany College of Maryland, in Cumberland.

Coach Dennis Gibson and the Lakers wrapped up the campaign with an overall record of 26-6.

The first 10 minutes of the game against Monroe was close, and the Lakers held a 22-21 lead with about six minutes remaining. But the New York squad, which was the Region SV champion, scored 21 of the next 27 points to take a 42-27 halftime lead.

After the Mustangs extended their lead to 18 (56-38) with 12:12 remaining in the game, the Lakers began to chip away at the lead. An eight-point run cut the Lakers' deficit to 10 points, and a three-pointer by Adam Morgan with 5:42 left narrowed the gap to five points, 64-59.

The Lakers came within four points, 74-70, with 55 seconds to play. Garfield Johns put the Mustangs back up by seven with a three-pointer, but Antonio Alston answered with a three-pointer for the Lakers with 22 seconds left.

The Lakers were then forced to foul in the final moments, and Elvis Rivera and Edward Johnson made good on their free throws to seal the win for the Mustangs.

Akeem Scott led the Lakers with a game-high 26 points, going 10-for-12 at the foul line. Darren Stackhouse finished with 15 points and eight rebounds, while James Jones added 10 points.

Randy Alexandre led the Mustangs in scoring with 19 points and had five assists, while Johns and Johnson each netted 18 points. A dozen of Johns's points came from three-point range, and Johnson grabbed a game-high 18 rebounds.

The teams were about even in rebounding, with Monroe holding a 47-46 edge. Turnovers cost the Lakers, as they committed 21, compared to 11 by the Mustangs.

Allegany defeated Monroe on Sunday to take the division title and earn a berth in the national tournament.

Lakers Mauled By Cats In Baseball Opener, 16-2

The 2004 spring baseball season did not exactly open with a bang for the Garrett College Lakers yesterday, as they were hammered by Potomac State College, 16-2, in Keyser. The game was called after seven innings because of the 10-run rule.

The Catamounts built a 9-0 lead in the first two innings, as former Southern High standout Tobi Stoner struggled on the mound. They also put five runs on the board in the bottom of the sixth.

Leading Potomac State's 16-hit attack was J.T. Osburn, who rapped two doubles and a single to plate three runs. Nick Brown and Ryan Anderson each stroked a double and two singles, with Anderson recording three RBI and Brown bringing home one.

Jason Savage had two of the Lakers' seven hits, both singles.

Pat Adkins and Brett McClain combined for the win on the mound, while Stoner, who was relieved in the fourth, took the loss.

The Lakers are slated to play a single game today at Allegany College in Cumberland. Game time is 2 p.m.

Pen Mar League To Meet Sunday

The Pen Mar Baseball League will meet this Sunday, March 14, at 7 p.m. at the Little Sandy's Truck Stop Restaurant in Bruceton Mills, W.Va. Managers and players looking for a team to play on should plan to attend.

The league was founded in 1949 and last year featured teams from Cumberland, Oakland, Salisbury, Parkersburg, Philippi, and Rosemont. The Tri-State Titans were regular-season champions and defeated Cumberland in the championship playoff.

Past players in the Pen Mar League include John Kruk, Sam Perlozzo, Leo Mazzone, Bobby Robertson, and Travis Harper. The semi-pro league is planning a 28-game schedule and an all-star game against the Fayette County Baseball League. ## Senate Moves For Amendment To Curb Governor's Budget Power

by Rolando Garcia
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – The Senate gave preliminary approval this week to a constitutional amendment that would curb the governor's vast budget power by allowing the General Assembly to move funds within the budget, as long as total spending does not increase. The move reignites a long-standing struggle between the Assembly and a governor who wields greater constitutional authority than most other state executives.

"The governor still writes the budget, we just want to be able to edit a little," said Sen. Patrick Hogan, D-Montgomery, the bill's sponsor. The amendment would bring Maryland in line with most other states where the Legislature can alter the governor's proposed budget, Hogan said.

Rejected by the Senate three times in the last 10 years, the bill cleared a procedural hurdle on a 30-16 vote, garnering the supermajority needed for a constitutional amendment, and final passage is expected today.

The House version of the amendment already has enough cosponsors to pass. If it clears the House, it will go before voters in November.

Now, the Assembly can only cut spending. If it wants to increase funding for a particular program, it must cut from another, then suggest the governor reallocate the money to the favored program. If the governor agrees, he sends the Assembly a supplemental budget.

The process is cumbersome, Hogan said, because the supplemental budget often comes laden with other provisions the governor wants passed. The amendment would allow the Assembly to change funding for line-items within the governor's proposed budget, without changing the overall total. The governor, however, still could veto the revisions.

Opponents warned it could lead to runaway spending by the Assembly. Allowing lawmakers to add spending items would drag out the budget process and create a bevy of new pet programs, said Sen. J. Lowell Stoltzfus, R-Somerset.

It is no coincidence the Democratic-controlled Senate passed the measure under a Republican governor while rejecting it when Democrats were in office, Stoltzfus added.

"Some [Democratic lawmakers] don't feel they have the access to the governor that they used to have," Stoltzfus said.

Sen. Nancy Jacobs, R-Harford, said the Assembly would be inundated with new demands from special interest groups if it assumes more budget-writing authority.

"Every group will want us to put a budget line in for them," Jacobs said.

The Senate vote was largely along party lines. Two Republicans broke with Gov. Robert Ehrlich to support the measure, and four Democrats opposed it.

Sen. Richard Colburn, R-Dorchester, voted for the bill. He said some Republicans who supported the amendment in the past were reluctant to buck the party leadership.

"The message was clear – the governor doesn't like this legislation and if you're a cosponsor, remove your name from it," Colburn said.

Colburn is no fan of party lines right now, he said. He was unsuccessful in his primary challenge to U.S. Rep. Wayne Gilchrest, R-Kennedyville, after much of the GOP establishment opposed his conservative insurgency.

With such limited budget authority, the Assembly cannot be an equal branch of government, Colburn said.

Sen. David Brinkley, R-Frederick, and Sen. John Hafer, R-Garrett/Allegany, originally cosponsored the bill, but voted against it. The amendment would put too much power in the Assembly's two budget committees, Hafer said.

The budget typically dominates the legislative session, more so this year with a projected shortfall of $1 billion for 2006. In his $23.8 billion budget proposal, Ehrlich closed the 2005 fiscal year gap of $800 million with spending cuts and one-time revenue sources, blamed for the future budget problems, while increasing funding for education and health care.

Pair Of Lawmakers Try To Put Lid On Internet "Spam"

by Marc Lightdale
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Two legislators are taking on junk e-mail with a new bill that would make sending the annoying, unsolicited "spam" messages a crime.

"Every e-mail user has endured the annoyance of being inundated with advertisements to enlarge body parts they don't even have, for disgusting pornography, and for get-rich quick schemes," said Delegate Neil Quinter, D-Howard, chief House sponsor of the bill at a news conference to introduce the legislation Tuesday.

It is "costly for businesses" and reduces worker productivity, said Sen. Robert Garagiola, the bill's Senate sponsor.

Garagiola released figures showing junk e-mail costs U.S. corporations $8.9 billion, and workers waste 4.5 seconds on each one. Nearly 60 percent of e-mail is spam, according to his figures from Brightmail Inc., and 80 percent of e-mail received through nationwide AOL is unsolicited.

Microsoft, the Internet Commerce Coalition and Time Warner, owner of America Online, support the legislation.

"This would provide the Attorney General with more specific tools to go after spammers and also prosecute out-of-state spammers," Quinter said.

Current law prohibits initiating or conspiring to transmit a third party's Internet domain without permission, obscuring the origin of the transmission and putting false or misleading information into an e-mail subject line. The new legislation – filed as SB 604 in the Senate and HB 1320 in the House – establishes misdemeanor crimes of knowingly using a protected computer to relay or retransmit commercial electronic mail deceptively and falsifying header information in multiple electronic mail messages. The deceptions would have to cause at least $500 in losses in one year.

Penalties for violations would be scaled to the number of messages transmitted, with the maximum sanction set at five years in prison and $10,000 fine. Repeated "spamming" with a prior felony conviction would be considered a felony under the proposed law, with penalties also increasing in severity to a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $25,000 fine.

Jim Halpert, Internet Commerce Coalition general counsel, said the bill would provide "meaningful penalties" for distributing unsolicited junk e-mail.

"All companies have been forced to devote major resources to address a hard core group of hackers and spammers," said Halpert at the press gathering.

There is no free speech issue with the legislation, Halpert said, because it deals with trespassing of property. In addition, he said, misleading commercial speech is not protected.

Maryland Lifts One Bird Flu Quarantine, Imposes Another

by Zenitha Prince
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – The Maryland Department of Agriculture Wednesday lifted one quarantine of poultry farms intended to quell an outbreak of avian flu, but imposed restrictions on areas south of Route 50 where a case was found last week. Officials said they felt reassured since no new cases have been found since the initial discovery.

"We are very pleased that there have been no additional cases of avian influenza reported in the earlier quarantine area and that we are able to help farmers north of Route 50 begin to get back to work," said Maryland Agriculture Secretary Lewis R. Riley in a prepared statement. "I thank everyone for their cooperation in limiting access to their farms," he said. "We must do everything that can be done to protect our state's leading agricultural industry and livelihood."

The admonition came after the H7N2 flu strain was found on a Worcester County farm Friday, about a month after the disease was discovered 60 miles away in Delaware's Kent and Sussex counties and the initial quarantine was ordered.

"We thought we had a lid on it," Deputy Secretary John Brooks told House Environmental Matters Committee members.

"That certainly came as a surprise and shock to all of us ... it's very mysterious," Riley said at a meeting of the Maryland Agricultural Commission Wednesday morning.

Two farms owned by Mountaire Farms of Delaware Inc. destroyed 328,000 birds after the virus was found at one of the sites, Delmarva Poultry Industry president Joe Chisholm said. And another closely affiliated facility will be depopulated later this week, Brooks said. These figures add to the 100,000 chickens killed in Delaware as state and federal agriculture officials worked in collaboration with the poultry industry to set vigorous testing, disinfecting, and other containment standards.

The industry provided up to $2.5 million for cleanup efforts, and Maryland's $5 million indemnity fund will kick in for costs above that figure, Riley said.

The lifted quarantine affected areas south of the Pennsylvania state line, west of the Delaware state line, east of the Susquehanna River, and north and east of Maryland Route 50.

Like the old order, the new quarantine prohibits the sale of live poultry and transport of poultry or poultry manure without previous testing. It also prohibits spreading manure on fields and the gathering of birds, and sets cleaning and disinfecting requirements for personnel and equipment.

Lifting the previous quarantine will allow "production farmers to do some things in the field," Riley said, one of the looming concerns of farmers since the crop-planting season is almost at hand.

Though the flu's economic impact on Maryland's estimated $1.4 billion agriculture industry is not certain, farmers' domestic and international revenues have foundered, officials said. U.S. poultry exports have been restricted in about 38 nations since the outbreak.

Some farmers "owe a lot of money to the banks," said Sen. J. Lowell Stoltzfus, R-Worcester, a former farmer. Chicken houses holding about 300,000 birds and outfitted with sophisticated feeding and ventilation systems can cost around $150,000, he said. And if farmers lost the estimated $4,500 to $9,000 per flock, without hope of insurance compensation, they would not be able to satisfy their loans.

"It's like someone suddenly says you're not going to get your salary for three to five months," he said.

But in a separate meeting Wednesday with the state's congressional delegation in Washington, federal agricultural officials said farmers could seek reimbursement for flock losses due to avian flu. Andrea Morgan, associate deputy administrator for veterinary services at the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said the government could reimburse up to 50 percent of losses attributable to the H5 and H7 strains of the virus.

After the February outbreak in Delaware, members of Maryland's congressional delegation had asked USDA to establish a task force to keep the flu from spreading throughout Delmarva. After the Pocomoke discovery, they said they were even more concerned that the bird flu could topple the state's farm economy, one third of which is dependent on the poultry industry.

"We want to be sure every step is taken to contain the outbreak," said Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md.

Morgan assured Washington lawmakers that federal agents are helping Maryland as much as possible, adding that the aggressive response by Maryland and Delaware officials helped minimize the spread of the virus. While the USDA considers bird-flu outbreaks state issues, she said, the federal government is more than willing to assist.

The USDA will only consider it a national problem if the H-7 virus mutates to a more pathogenic strain, Morgan said. That is because highly pathogenic strains are more likely to cause a ban on all U.S. poultry, rather than just the states where the outbreak has occurred.

Brooks said that Maryland is working with other states to adopt a regional approach to the disease and on ways to protect poultry exporters.

"Right now we're showing clearly to our international trading partners that we're dealing with this aggressively and that will help rebuild Maryland's poultry industry's reputation."

Same-Sex Marriage Bill Killed Twice By House Of Delegates

by Mary C. Schneidau
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – A move to prevent recognition of same-sex marriages performed in other states, killed in committee last week, was resurrected briefly Tuesday as an amendment on the floor of the House of Delegates. The amendment was identical to the bill sponsored by Delegate Emmett C. Burns, D-Baltimore County, which was dumped by the House Judiciary Committee Friday.

Delegate Gail Bates, R-Howard, tried to tack it onto a technical bill on marriage fees, but the House defeated the measure 82-52.

The bill and the amendment come amid a national debate on same-sex marriages. President Bush called Feb. 24 for a constitutional amendment to ban same-sex marriages, after the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court ruled denying marriage licenses to same-sex couples was against the state's constitution. Jurisdictions in California, New York, New Mexico, and Oregon have issued marriage licenses to same-sex couples.

Although Burns sponsored the original bill, he voted against the amendment on the House floor because he said he wanted to show respect for the committee process.

"I lost in committee, and if I was going to win, that's where I should have won," said Burns. "That committee was wrong and they're still wrong."

The measure, he said, is still necessary to strengthen current law. But committee chairman Joseph Vallario, D-Prince George's, said the amendment, like the bill killed in committee, was unnecessary because Maryland law already defines marriage as between a man and a woman.

"Maryland stands in the forefront to say same-sex marriage will not be recognized in this state," Vallario said.

The Attorney General's Office ruled marriages performed in other states do not have to be recognized in Maryland, and the federal Defense of Marriage Act protects states from forced recognition of same-sex unions, Vallario said.

Rulings by the courts could mandate recognition of same-sex marriages, Burns warned.

"Right now our door is wide open," he said. "Our law is silent on the imposition of marriages from other states."

The amendment would "clean up" the law, Bates said. "We as a policy believe marriage should be between a man and a woman."

That policy is already law, said openly gay lawmaker Delegate Maggie McIntosh, D-Baltimore.

"To have passed that bill or adopted that amendment is redundant," she said, therefore all votes against the amendment should not be interpreted as for same-sex marriage. A related bill – a proposed constitutional amendment defining marriage as between a man and a woman – also was killed in the Judiciary Committee Friday. The Senate heard its version of the bill and constitutional amendment in committee Wednesday.

Ehrlich Finds Funding To Boost Health Programs, Youth Detention

by Rolando Garcia
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Gov. Robert Ehrlich cut a little here and switched a little there to add $31 million to health and children's programs Wednesday in an addendum to his proposed 2005 budget. The new spending is a tiny addition to Ehrlich's $23.8 billion budget, and is only the first of what will be a series of budget revisions, said Neil Bergsman, budget analysis director for the Department of Budget and Management.

This supplemental budget, which is a revision of the governor's original budget submission, is funded through cuts, federal grant money, and leftover funds.

Included in the supplemental is $2.6 million to renovate the Charles Hickey School, a reform school in Baltimore for troubled youth; $1 million to improve computer systems at the Office of Children, Youth, and Families; $325,000 for the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, which restores the state's funding to last year's level; and $1 million from the state's tobacco settlement money to help sick, needy Marylanders access prescription drugs.

To pay for the added items, Ehrlich is using $13 million in property transfer tax revenue, which had been earmarked for grants to local governments to buy park land. In the budget Ehrlich unveiled in January, he moved the transfer tax revenue to the general fund. Another $10 million comes from reserve funds in the Office of Children, Youth, and Families, Bergsman said. A $6 million federal grant will pay for the AmeriCorps program.

The General Assembly's policy analysts are recommending cutting $1.8 million from Ehrlich's supplemental budget, including $900,000 from the Hickey School appropriation.

"Certain items had no good justification," said Warren Deschenaux, policy director for the Department of Legislative Services. Overall, the department identified $200 million in unnecessary spending in Ehrlich's budget, Deschenaux said, and the budget also overestimates revenues from companies avoiding taxes through the so-called Delaware loophole.

Ehrlich's budget closed an $800 million shortfall mostly through cuts and one-time revenue sources while increasing education and health care spending.

The Senate Budget and Taxation Committee was briefed on the supplemental budget Wednesday, and their counterparts in the House will be briefed today.

House Appropriations chairman Norman Conway, D-Wicomico, said he had not seen the supplemental, but that his committee is cutting unnecessary items in Ehrlich's budget and was carefully scrutinizing new spending.

The Senate is expected to vote on Ehrlich's budget next week.

IN AMERICA

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:47 - Released 5/8/03

Although Irish writer/director Jim Sheridan (The Boxer) has been nominated for Oscars before, for My Left Foot (1989) and In The Name Of The Father (1993), his semi-autobiographical film In America did not score a wide release—in America—until it was nominated for Academy Awards. After originally hitting the Toronto Film Festival screen in the fall of 2002 and then a few American festivals last spring, it traveled all over the world winning numerous awards and nominations in various different countries before finally getting the Oscar recognition in January for Best Actress (Samantha Morton, Minority Report), Best Supporting Actor (Djimon Hounsou, Amistad), and Original Screenplay (Sheridan and his two adult daughters, Naomi and Kirsten). This after-the-fact U.S. release schedule will certainly allow Sheridan and co. to cash in on the Oscar exposure, but it's a shame more Americans were not able to see the film before the awards, so they could at least be aware of the performances involved. In their first screenplay together (Kirsten has written and directed several films herself and appeared in The Boxer and My Left Foot, but this is her first collaborative effort with her dad), the Sheridans tell the story of their immigration to the United States in the early 1980s, where they hoped to find a new beginning after having suffered the loss of their baby son and brother.

Johnny and Sarah Sullivan (Paddy Considine, Samantha Morton) and their two daughters, Christy and Ariel (real siblings Sarah and Emma Bolger, who were age 10 and 6 during filming), arrive in New York City during one of the hottest summers on record, with temperatures climbing over 100 degrees, and the fact that all they can afford is a small apartment on the top floor of a seedy building in a bad neighborhood—with no air conditioning—doesn't make their life any easier. Johnny, who wants to be an actor but can't get a break, gets a job driving a taxi to pay the bills, and Sarah works at an ice cream shop. To beat the heat, they play games and go to air-conditioned movies (like E.T.), but there still remains a heavy sense of despair over the family as they mourn their little boy, Frankie, who died of a brain tumor after suffering a fall down the stairs at age 2.

As summer turns to autumn, the girls begin Catholic school, and when Halloween rolls around, they learn of the tradition of trick-or-treating from their new American friends. Their attempt to seek candy from the neighboring apartment dwellers doesn't really pan out, but through this they meet the reclusive Mateo (Hounsou), an African-born artist who doesn't normally invite outsiders, but is taken by the girls' innocence and becomes their friend, as well as that of their parents. As the Sullivans grow closer to him, however, they discover that he has a secret despair of his own, and when Sarah discovers she's expecting another baby, Mateo helps Johnny overcome his inability to accept the prospect of a new child.

Sheridan's films always deal with subjects close to him, giving us insight into the unique Irish-Catholic perspective, whether in his own war-torn country or as an immigrant to the United States. But In America is perhaps his most personal, since it deals more specifically with his own experience and is co-written by his two daughters. Making a film this personal forces him to reveal to us his flaws and psychological issues, and telling the story from the viewpoint of his little girls is a clever way to let us see it from that light and innocent angle—quite literally, since much of the film is shot with a hand-held camera and from a low viewpoint, to indicate that it is seen through the lens of Christy's video camera, which she carries around regularly. In this way, Sheridan can tell us this highly emotional story without letting it become bogged down in sentimentality, a factor which could easily make it too sappy for its own good. The performances of Morton, Hounsou, and Considine are real and affecting, but what is really amazing is the ease with which the two Bolger sisters immerse themselves into their roles. They are cute without being cloying; it is clear they understand the dynamic between sisters as well as the sometimes difficult issues the script throws at them. In America is another gem from this great Irish director, and it deserves to be seen no matter what country you're from. ★★½★★½

Thrivent Financial Provides Funds For Local Groups

The Garrett County Chapter of Thrivent Financial for Lutherans, which is part of Thrivent's Fortune 500 financial services organization that serves nearly 3 million members, has provided funding for approximately 20 local service projects and organizations in the past year.

Eighteen of the 20 projects funded were those that raised $46,550 after expenses. The local chapter of Thrivent matched approximately $9,000. Two other projects were "hands-on" service projects in which individuals purchased needed items for the projects, and Thrivent reimbursed those expenses. This amount totaled $600.

The organizations and individuals benefiting from the local chapter of Thrivent were as follows: the Northern Garrett High School Band Boosters (four projects); Accident Volunteer Fire Department; Maryland Salem Children's Trust; Accident Concert Band; American Legion Post 208, which was raising funds for a monument and flag pole to honor service people past, present and future; Emmanuel Lutheran Church WELCA, which made comforters for Lutheran World Relief; Garrett County veterans in local nursing homes; Mtn. Top Crisis Pregnancy Center; an individual in need of a wheelchair ramp; an individual who needed help defraying medical expenses; ELCA World Hunger Program; Lutheran Braille Work Center #173; March of Dimes; Casselman Valley Soccer Association; House of Hope food bank; Cove Christian Camp; and Lutheran World Relief.

Thrivent Financial's 32 regional financial offices monitor the three chapter Care programs in the United States. The Garrett County chapter is under the direction of the Mid-Atlantic Regional Financial Office, based in Warrenton, Va.

Through the Thrivent Financial for Lutherans chapter system, Thrivent Financial members create, direct, and implement outreach activities to help those in need in their communities and church congregations. Under the Care programs, Thrivent Financial provides the financial resources that support these activities.

The chapter system is the "architecture" designed to distribute fraternal dollars to volunteer-members who create and execute community outreach programs, which help individuals, community organizations, and Lutheran congregations through fund-raisers and hands-on service activities. Members and non-members volunteer through one or more local, grassroots service teams that number over 19,000 nationwide to support communities and congregations. There are 1,378 chapters that provide oversight to these service teams.

The Garrett County Chapter board is made up of Pauline Mae Faucett, president; Rev. Roland E. Nairn III, vice president; Rev. Douglas R. Kabell, records director; George E. Haenftling, financial director; and Christine L. Johnson, congregational service team director. Thrivent Financial associate John Strider also works with the board in an advisory capacity.

THE FILM: ISSUES AND ANSWERS

The house must be worth more than a million. It sits back in the woods, and it is unoccupied as much as it is enjoyed by its wealthy owners. It's not too surprising that it should be targeted by thieves. Sheriff and State police, and Crime Scene Investigators' vans and cars make the driveway and narrow mountain road near impassable. There is no sign of forced entry. Only The Great Room in the center of the home has been damaged. Computer, TV, guns in a glass enclosed cabinet, expensive jewelry lying out in plain sight on a bedroom dresser, all are accounted for.

The Great Room however is a mess. Expensive oil paintings, on the floor, coffee table smashed, a low hanging chandelier hangs to one side with several pieces of it scattered about the room. The stuffed couch and matching chair look as though someone has been using them for dart-board practice.

The Crime Scene Investigative team is hard at work. They are on hands and knees with their latex gloves, magnifying glass, tweezers, and clue envelopes in the ready. You can be sure they will find out who trashed this beautiful room. No one is permitted to set foot in the crime scene room. Given time, the C.S.I. team will find a fingerprint, a cryptic message on the voice mail machine, or a DNA hair follicle which will match perfectly with some villain in their data base back at the office. Everything is proceeding nicely except for the inconvenience of having to work around the circus elephant that is standing in the middle of the room with ears flapping, trunk and tail bobbing and swishing; the C.S.I. team is finding it a little slow going.

This little humorous story has come to my mind as my reaction to the public's response to Mel Gibson's film THE PASSION OF THE CHRIST. Given the biblical record, it is hard to understand how multitudes of common sense and intelligent people can overlook the obvious. Why isn't a voice being heard, loud and clear: "Do you think the elephant might have trashed the place?"

All the wannabe investigators are talking about Mel Gibson. He has become the prime suspect. But, he didn't even have a part in the movie. I have it on good authority, Mel Gibson wasn't there when the events of this film took place. Why he decided to cut our conscience to the quick with excellent filming of the factual, centuries certified, events of that first "Good Friday" is a matter for endless debate, but I will tell you, before we waste too much time on Mel Gibson, he has already confessed to the crime and he has even fingered his accomplices. We will get to that in its proper place. Many, many people talk about the torture that is so heartless and graphic in this film. No one will deny, that for sheer film footage, the brutality inflicted upon Jesus dominates. We must be daring and defiant to look beyond it. But if we are honest to the man, not Gibson, Jesus, and the biblical account, we must refuse to be distracted. The truth and triumph of "Good Friday" is not how degenerate the human soul can descend. The forgiving words of the condemned, "Father, Forgive Them," may not have the shock value that the blood spilling does, but they–together with, "I make all things new" to His mother; "Today, you shall be with Me in Paradise" to the repentant thief: "It is accomplished" from His pulpit cross; and a living Jesus emerging from the tomb–are the vision of victory offered by Jesus when He said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life."

A few minutes ago, I said that Mel Gibson confessed to the crime of killing Jesus. He went much further than that to TV celebrity Diane Sawyer, implicating all of us including Primetime's hostess. The repeated claim of Scripture is, "He died for our sins, but not for our sins only, but for the sins of the whole world." I John 2:2. Gibson rightly began his tale of "the passion" of Jesus with a quote from the Hebrew Scriptures: "...by His stripes, we are healed." I would have widened the quote to include these words from Isaiah 53:9 & 10 :

> "...He has done no violence, neither was any deceit in His mouth. Yet it pleased The Almighty to bruise Him; He has put Him to grief: when You shall make His soul an offering for sin..."

We have no trouble agreeing that the livingroom of the world is trashed. Brutality has beaten up on the beautiful creation of God and most notably upon His masterpiece, the human race, created in our creator's likeness and image. Why is it that we keep pushing the elephant out of the way in search of some other explanation? Jesus' press agent gave the official PRESS RELEASE as Jesus stepped onto center stage and spotlight. He said:

> "...behold the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world. John 1:29

Only a matter of days before the events of the Mel Gibson film, the man Himself interpreted the horror that awaited Him with these words:

> "...the Son of Man came...to give His life a ransom for many." Mark 10:45

There has been a great deal of diversion in The Blame Game by saying the film is anti-Semitic. One has only to remember that Jesus died as the Jewish nation was preparing to celebrate the high, holy feast of Passover. The time when their High Priest would kill an innocent lamb and take its blood into the presence of God, where he would offer it to cover the sins of the people for the previous year. All of which was reminiscent of The Exodus deliverance by death when God made a pact with His people to protect them under a substitutionary sacrifice. The record is found in Exodus 12:12 and 13 and says in part:

> "...I will pass through the land of Egypt this night, and will slay all the first-born in the land...and the blood shall be to you for atoken upon the house where you are; and when I see the blood, I will pass over you..."

Under the administration of Moses, such became the Law of The Lord, stated in Leviticus 17:11:

> "For the life of the flesh is in the blood; and I have given it to you upon the altar for an atonement for your souls; for it is the blood that makes an atonement for the soul."

No, Mel Gibson's film is not anti-Semitic. It is anti-sin, and the reason we intentionally evade the elephant in the room is, we love our so called independence. But our independence is not freedom. It is the worst kind of slavery. The film faithfully depicts the enemy of our souls, Satan, as a temptress, and a lurking presence, inviting Jesus to reverse His pledge: "Not as I will, but Thine will be done," The love of God in the giving of Jesus is indeed liberating, but it is the liberation of letting go our "own way" and linking up with the resurrected life of God in Christ.

One of the aspects of the film that works so beautifully is the flashbacks away from the suffering to sympathetic days of boyhood, teaching His followers, and forgiveness. The one I liked the best was done in silent gestures. The historical Incident is taken from John 8, the first 11 verses. We first see Jesus writing in the dust of the street. Then we see the crowd of stone carrying men, dropping their murderous weapons onto the dusty road. Finally, we see a trembling hand pushing through the dust to touch the feet of Jesus. At the last, we see the outstretched hand of Jesus clasping the hand of the adulterous woman and lifting her up. These scenes, as the counterpoint to the dying Jesus, are the heartbeat of the film, and I might add, of God as well. If, in our minds, we dub in the final words of Jesus to the departing woman:

> "...neither do I condemn you, go, and sin no more." John 8:11

we may actually glimpse the glory of God in the mixture of human guilt and God's amazing grace.

The murderer turned missionary, the apostle Paul wrote...

> "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself, not imputing their sins unto them..." II Corinthians 5:19

If we embrace that realization, we will be admitting the elephant exists, and it is us. Then, and only then we can know that our guilt does not mean despair and damnation, but the experiencing of God's grace whereby He is glorified.

The first retelling and assessment of the events that happened on that fateful Friday are told a mere fifty days later by an eye witness, and living testimonial of the good that God intends to mankind from the total Easter experience. Peter, a ringleader of "the Jesus men," does not pretend the elephant does not exist, he parades the elephant in front of his audience and in front of all of us, and asks for a personal, positive, decision.

> "Therefore, let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom you have crucified, both Lord and Christ. Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and to the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do? Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord, our God, shall call."

have lost my entire investment into SS. More specifically, like millions of other Americans who will lose their entire investment, I stand to lose over $500,000 in SS retirement income.

As a result of the negative effects of the global economy and free trade, Americans today are losing many of their benefits, and the standard of living for all Americans is declining. Today, about half of all Americans do not have a pension plan. That number is rising.

If SS can be preserved as former President Bill Clinton envisioned, and if I drop dead tomorrow never collecting a dime of the SS benefits, I will die having the satisfaction of knowing that my contributions will provide for (using the words in the Preamble of the Constitution) the prosperity and general welfare of those American that will need SS.

Last year about this time, I wrote the following letter to the editor of The Republican: "Let's personalize this scenario. If you are in your 30s, 40s, or 50s, as a result of Bush's poor fiscal policies, the federal government will not have enough money to pay off the national debt and pay Social Security recipients."

When I go to the polling booth in Aliquippa on the first Tuesday in November, I will remember one thing: "Anybody but Bush."

To the Editor:

I am in favor of the cross on the hill. The cross is a symbol of God's love for all of mankind. Let it be a symbol of tolerance to those of other faiths and non-believers.

Tourists will come to our beautiful and interesting little town anyway. The cross will not be offensive to them. Many of them are Christians as are most Garrett Countians.

In our rapidly, ever changing world Christmas has become "Happy Holidays." Prayer is not allowed in schools or most public places, nor are religious symbols. School plays and programs have nothing of the birth of Christ in them. "In God We Trust" on our money may be next to be banned. A cross on the hill would be very comforting to us Christians.

I love Oakland, Garrett County, and its wonderful, intelligent, talented, and caring people. I have lived in Oakland for 61 years. It is home.

Very Sincerely,
Edith Browning

P.S. I look forward to receiving The Republican here in Florida. It is a bit of home.

To the Editor:

For the past three weeks, letters, both pro and con, have appeared in The Republican over the desire of the Mountaintop Ministerial Association to erect a lighted cross on the overlook west of Oakland. As you have noticed, a response has not been forthcoming from the association until now. Today this letter will share our response.

At the outset, it is deeply painful to experience that which has appeared in print. The greater tragedy is that no one of any opinion contacted the association prior to writing their letter. Scripture creates an excellent guideline for dealing with differences that is applicable for persons of all walks of life. It invites us to meet together, face to face, and discuss the difference and make an attempt to resolve the issue. Instead, bold claims and assumptions have permeated the printed pages – claims and assumptions based solely upon the opinion of the writers, without any information from the association, because no one sought to discover the intent and heart of the members of the ministerium. We have been spoken ill of and maligned, but we forgive as we would expect to be forgiven.

FOLLOW THE FOOTPRINTS – What's up with the footprints all over the Oakland Wal-Mart? Pictured above are Sadie Liller and Kathy Elliot, outreach workers from the Garrett County Health Department, as they create a walking trail through the store. "Check out the footprints and their health messages on your next visit," the women said, "and check The Republican next week to read the whole story."

Two years ago, the ministerial association began a transition that will have tremendous future implications for the community in which we live. During the course of 2002, we met with local government leaders, employees of the Board of Education, judicial and justice personnel, social service workers, counselors from mental health, persons concerned with youth issues, and many other government and private organizations. We did this because of our deep concern for the people of the area we serve. We listened diligently to the concerns expressed by each and sought ideas as to how we could become more intimately involved in meeting the needs of people where we live.

We listened carefully to the concerns of our community and were deeply pained by the information given us. We found that, though Garrett County is a wonderful place to live and has many benefits, it is not a community without pain and heartache. We do have drug and alcohol problems among our adults and youth. We do have high rates of domestic violence, sexual abuse, and child abuse in its various forms. We do have problems with people not having adequate housing, food, and the basic necessities of life. We do have a high percentage of need for and use of our mental health services. The members of the ministerial association chose to take steps to begin to become actively and directly involved.

Prior to this time, the association had been a relatively simple gathering of interested ministers who provided a support mechanism for one another. They offered some community worship experiences such as Good Friday and Easter Sunrise Services, and historically had participation at the county fair, but all agreed that more was required of us. We became a not-for-profit corporation in Maryland in 2003 and are currently in process of becoming a tax exempt charitable organization under IRS guidelines. The association has plans for the development of a full-time hospital chaplain program, a full-time jail chaplain with companion support mechanisms, and a full-time Youth For Christ director for the development of youth programs in the southern half of the county (one is already in place in the northern half). In addition, many churches have individually created ministries to the community as additional expressions of their love and concern. An example is the fact that four churches in the county are now providing free meals for those needing a free meal and/or fellowship. Well over 11,000 meals have been served to date. We are motivated out of the depths of our hearts to address the suffering of the many, though we recognize we will never be able to reach all who have needs.

It is out of that same heart we have desired to offer a symbol of hope to the community. The desire to erect a lighted cross has never been rooted in any attempt to force the Christian faith or our belief system upon anyone but, rather, in the fact that there has never been a more recognizable universal symbol of hope than the cross. No historical figure has revealed the kind of generosity and unconditional love that the cross represents than the one who died upon it. His actions of love, mercy, grace, and care for those less fortunate has been the primary foundation for many others throughout the ages. It is out of that desire that the ministerial association has been seeking to construct the cross. It is out of the depth of our love for the people of this county that we seek to place a symbol of hope to the downtrodden, the beaten, the poor, the destitute, the homeless, the lonely. There is no hidden agenda – just a deep burden for those less fortunate.

For those who have experienced pain at the hands of those who profess Christianity, we are deeply sorry, for those kinds of experiences are not what Christ intended. We know many have undergone suffering at the hands of people who have done an injustice to the words of the Savior. Those incidents profoundly impact people negatively and often drive them away from God and, for that, we apologize to those who, along their life path, may have been victims of such heartache.

In constructing the cross, we will all make sacrifices to do so. We will bear not only the cost of the cross, but the cost of the ministries that will unfold as a result of our commitment to the community. Our financial cost as an association will be great, as only about ten percent of the population in Garrett County is in church attendance on any given Sunday, and, of all the churches in the county, the pastors of only about twenty participate in the association. The few will, with God's help, begin the process of reaching out into the areas outlined above – positively impacting lives in our county forever. Those who are opposed will face the sacrifice of a perceived marred view of the overlook and a false sense of religious intrusion that simply is not there.

In conclusion, we offer the words of James, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ: "What good is it, my brothers, if a man claims to have faith but has no deeds? Can such faith save him? Suppose a brother or sister is without clothes and daily food. If one of you says to him, 'Go, I wish you well; keep warm and well fed,' but does nothing about his physical needs, what good is it? In the same way, faith by itself, if it is not accompanied by action, is dead. But someone will say, 'You have faith; I have deeds.' Show me your faith without deeds, and I will show you my faith by what I do." James 2:14-18 (NIV) improvements will allow larger aircraft to utilize the aviation facility safely, and without incurring penalties on load-carrying capabilities, noted an MAA spokesperson.

"The airport expansion project is critically important for the economic development of Garrett County," said Del. George C. Edwards (Dist. 1A). "This state grant will help to move forward the construction of an improved and expanded runway for the airport."

Library Board

cludes $60,000 for new books, which represents a 20 percent increase from last year. Also planned are staffing and service improvements at the new Grantsville Library, said Ashby.

That branch is one of the reasons the operating budget is higher this year. The larger, new facility will cost the board much more for utilities, grounds maintenance, staffing, and materials than the old library, noted the commissioners.

Since the new library has been completed, the board is putting off other major projects for now, noted Collins. However, some capital items are still needed. This year's capital budget is $73,600.

The library's 1999 van will need to be replaced soon, which will cost at least $17,000, according to Ashby. Other capital needs include computer replacements, $16,000, and five new computer network routers, $15,000.

A new online catalog was recently implemented for Ruth Enlow patrons. As a result, the use of the library's online resources has "exploded," said the director. To keep up with the increased use and new technology, staff members must acquire new skills. State guidelines mandate that they acquire more credit hours, noted the director.

Additionally, the library's small equipment budget is $14,975. A new circulation desk for Oakland, a new color printer for Grantsville, and new shelving for Kitzmiller are among the branches' equipment needs for FY '05.

The Financial Services staff, county administrator, and commissioners will now review the library's budget and consider the board of trustees' funding request.

In addition to funding from the county, the library receives income from the state, fines, fees, investments, and donations. Library trustee Jack Caruthers said he would continue pursing more grant money from the state. "Take this library into the 21st century," he asked the commissioners.

A daughter was born February 25 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital to Brian Cline and Becky Griffith, Oakland.

A son was born March 5 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital to Thomas and Rebecca Williams DeBerry, Deer Park.

A son, John Minter, was born to Johnna and Jay Carr on March 5 at St. Luke's West Hospital, Florence, Ky. Maternal grandparents are John and Elaine Marple, Deep Creek Lake. Paternal grandparents are J.R. and Barbara Carr, Irwin, Pa.

Women's Health

Editor's note: The following article was written by Ali Behnam, M.D., F.A.C.O.G., a Cumberland gynecologist who is seeing a high rate of polycystic ovarian syndrome in may of his patients. Dr. Behnam is a diplomat of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology and an active member of the American Society for Reproductive Medicine.

POLYCYSTIC OVARIAN SYNDROME

Are you overweight? Do you have an oily face, acne, excess hair, or are you losing scalp hair? Is your period abnormal or irregular? Do you have less than eight menses a year? Do you have difficulty getting pregnant? Have you had problems with blood pressure or diabetes during pregnancy? Do you have anxiety or mood-related problems or have you been labeled as having PMS? Are you taking medication for anxiety, diabetes, and/or high blood pressure?

If you answered yes to any of the above questions, you may be suffering from polycystic ovarian syndrome (PCOS).

PCOS is a condition in which the ovaries contain a great number of cysts or premature follicles. The follicle growth stops at 6-8 mm and the vicious cycle repeats itself over and over again.

In a normal woman, process of ovulation starts by recruiting the egg. Maturation takes place by forming follicles, which at their maturity measure 20 mm in diameter. Mature follicles produce estrogen (female hormone), and immature follicles produce androgen (male hormone). Too many immature follicles produce too much androgen in the body and can cause metabolic, hormonal, or psychological problems.

Those suffering from PCOS are more likely to develop heart and cardiovascular problems that often begin at a relatively young age. In the family history of women afflicted with PCOS, there is higher incidence of diabetes, cardiovascular problems, and ovarian, endometrial cancer.

Because PCOS can cause such a wide variety of health problems, patients are usually seen and treated for the secondary problem without proper evaluation. PCOS can be diagnosed by blood tests, pelvic sonogram, and tests to rule out other relatively rare androgen-producing problems in women.

Based on these facts it is important for women to know whether or not they do have PCOS when the aforementioned symptoms occur. Making this determination is key to leading a healthier and happier life.

Garrett Memorial Laboratory Earns Accreditation

The Garrett County Memorial Hospital Laboratory has been granted accreditation by the American Association of Blood Banks (AABB), and joins approximately 1,700 similar facilities that have earned the accreditation across the United States and abroad.

The accreditation follows an intensive on-site assessment by specially trained AABB assessors, which establishes that the level of medical, technical, and administrative performance within the facility meets or exceeds AABB standards, according to GCMH Laboratory director Joyce Nutter.

"The AABB's accreditation procedures are voluntary," Nutter explained. "GCMH sought AABB accreditation because this program assists facilities around the country in achieving excellence by promoting a level of professional and medical expertise that contribute to quality performance. We are really proud of the hospital and the staff for achieving this level of care."

Nutter went on to explain that blood supplies are exceedingly low, experiencing a 30 percent loss. The public is encouraged to donate blood at a collection site nearest them. Interested individuals can call 1-800-54BLOOD to obtain additional information on when and where they can donate blood.

BANKING ON GCMH BLOOD – The American Association of Blood Banks has awarded accreditation to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Laboratory. The accreditation came after an involved and lengthy assessment process. With blood supplies at exceedingly low levels, all citizens are encouraged to consider donating blood as soon as possible at one of several conveniently located sites in the region, and can call 1-800-54BLOOD to obtain the location closest to them. GCMH blood bank section chief Wendy Sweitzer is shown above holding a unit of blood – also known as "the gift of life."

Edward Jones

DAVID MANCUSO

David Mancuso knows the value of a comfortable pair of shoes. That's because he's been pounding the pavement, ringing doorbells, and knocking on doors in Garrett County.

Mancuso is a new investment representative for the financial services firm Edward Jones. His door-to-door visits demonstrate the Edward Jones way of doing business — face to face.

"At Edward Jones, we don't expect anyone to invest with us until they know our investment philosophy," Mancuso said. "I believe I have a responsibility to understand the unique financial needs of each and every client, and that's why I'm paying them personal visits."

Before a new Edward Jones representative can open an office, he must spend several months knocking on doors and introducing himself to the residents and business people in the community.

Mancuso also had to complete one of the most rigorous training programs in the financial services industry, enduring three months of 10-hour days, six days a week.

And although he is well-versed in the technical aspects of investments, he said the training is not over. Edward Jones places emphasis on continuing education, and its investment representatives train throughout their careers.

"I know my clients wouldn't want an investment representative who isn't up to speed on investments, and they wouldn't want an investment representative they don't know. That's why we do things the way we do at Edward Jones," Mancuso said.

Edward Jones, the only major financial services firm advising individual investors exclusively, traces its roots to 1871 and currently serves more than 6 million clients, Mancuso reported. The firm offers its clients a variety of investments, including certificates of deposit, taxable and non-taxable bonds, stocks, and mutual funds.

Edward Jones currently has more than 9,500 offices in the United States and, through its affiliates, in Canada and the United Kingdom. The company hopes to expand to 10,000 offices this year.

MountainMade States Workshops On Doll Making

MountainMade.com will host two doll-making workshops this spring at the Thomas Education Center in Thomas. Frances Hall of Running Paw Designs will offer "Beginning Doll Making" on Saturday, March 27, and "Advanced Doll Making" on Saturday, April 3.

Both classes will begin at 10 a.m. and last until 5 p.m., with a 30-minute lunch break. There will be a materials fee for each class, and preregistration is required. Class sizes are limited.

Students in the beginning workshop will learn to make a basic muslin doll, compete with clothes, hair, and face. No doll-making experience is necessary; however, students will need to bring a sewing machine that they are comfortable using.

The advanced class is designed for doll makers and those who want to learn how to sculpt cloth doll faces and fingers. Students will not make a complete doll in this workshop but will sculpt doll heads and make a pair of hands.

Hall is known for her "bright whimsical" dolls, which are featured at MountainMade.com, Tamarack, and other West Virginia shops and galleries, as well as retail locations in other states. Her work is also found in doll collections across the United States, Ireland, and Australia.

She uses an array of specialized trims, unusual yarns, and unique combinations of color and texture to bring her dolls to life, said a MountainMaid.com spokesperson.

For more information or to register, persons may call 304-463-3355 or toll free at 877-686-6233.

RURAL ENTERPRISE CONFERENCE

A Rural Enterprise Conference will be held at Garrett College, McHenry, Md., on March 27.

Four sessions of classes are being offered at this time, and for a registration fee persons will be entitled to take four classes, have a lunch, and receive one copy of bound notes (this per family). Youth of the Aurora United Methodist Charge recently came together for a 30-hour famine. Those who participated were Pastor Michael Ludle, Jonathan Mauldin, Ashley Mauldin, Seth Wiles, Lori Durst, and Stephanie Ludle from Amboy UMC; April Lilley, Chris Lilley, Jeremy Ridenour, Nancy Ridenour, and Kristine Pumphrey from Stemple Ridge UMC; and Aron Lipscomb from Aurora UMC.

The group learned about what can be done to help fight hunger, both at home and around the world. Sponsored by World Vision, this event is held every February. Dates set for February 2005 are the 25th and 26th of the month.

During this "famine," the youth raised $1,600 to help fight world hunger.

Those who would like to be a volunteer with any of their efforts are welcome. Persons may contact Jo-Ann Helton, Michelle Moure, or another board member for more information.

Libraries Draw High Marks In State Survey

All public library systems, including the Ruth Enlow Library in Garrett County, received high praise from citizens in a recent Maryland Department of Education poll concerning public library services around the state. More than 90 percent of the 1,700 respondents statewide said libraries were a "good investment" of their tax dollars, and "Our results in Garrett County were very similar to the statewide results," said REL director Cathy Ashby.

Eighty percent of Garrett County residents surveyed said they consider public libraries to be an essential public service provided by state and local government, while 20 percent considered public libraries to be cultural amenities; 64 percent of Garrett County residents responded that they would like more than 1 percent of the county budget to be spent on public libraries. Garrett County residents visited public libraries an average of 16.2 times each in the past 12 months.

SOCIAL WORK MONTH PROCLAIMED – The Garrett County commissioners recently proclaimed March as National Social Work Month in the county. "Social workers strive to make a difference by helping people resolve problems, cope with distressing situations, and locate resources to improve their social functioning," noted the commissioners in the proclamation. "They touch so many lives by assisting, guiding, and helping others to successfully negotiate life challenges." Pictured, left to right, in the front row are Commissioners Ernie Gregg, Dave Beard, and Fred Holliday. In the back row are Larry Bruch, Garrett County Department of Social Services, child welfare supervisor; Mandy DeWitt, GC Dept. of Social Services, Child Protective Services investigator; Donna Fost, GC Health Dept., program administrator; Mary VanSickle, GC Health Dept., school-based therapist; Sara Burdett, GC Memorial Hospital, medical social worker; Debby Ward, GC Memorial Hospital, director of social work services; Erica Mowbray, assistant director of GC Dept. of Social Services; Jennifer Brenneman, GC Health Dept., school-based therapist; and Mary Lou Buckley, GC Health Dept., Mental Health Clinic therapist. Concerns about public libraries throughout the state related mainly to library collections that are viewed as too small or out-of-date, and library facilities that may be too crowded or not located within a distance that respondents considered close enough to home.

"People in Garrett County would like their public libraries to be open more hours and to purchase more books," Ashby stated.

The statewide results of the September survey, conducted by Potomac Inc. of Bethesda, also asked citizens to rate the efficiency and effectiveness of a variety of government functions and service areas, including schools, social services, and general local government. Public libraries scored the highest ratings of all local government services. Additionally, more than 40 percent of residents think of public libraries as an economic anchor, potentially attracting "good business" to their area. This was especially true of respondents in Baltimore City and rural areas of the state. One-third of those surveyed believe a public library raises property values in their neighborhood.

Eighty percent of respondents gave public libraries a grade of "A" or "B" as a community asset, before being told that the survey was specifically related to libraries.

"The outcome of this survey clearly illustrates the high regard in which public libraries are held around the state by Maryland citizens," said state superintendent of schools Nancy S. Grasmick. "Our libraries are heavily used by lifelong learners of all ages. The public views them as essential, beneficial to their communities, and important for families with children."

"As we have known for many years, the public thinks of libraries as a positive economic influence that contributes to the vitality of both residential and business areas alike," said Irene M. Padilla, assistant state superintendent for libraries. "We were delighted that so many of our citizens said public libraries improve a community by helping people learn new skills so they can get better jobs."

To complete the study, 1,700 adult residents from each of the state's 24 local jurisdictions were contacted in late September 2003 to complete an in-depth telephone survey designed to identify the perceived value of public libraries among library users and non-users, and to determine citizen views of the return on investment of government dollars devoted to public libraries.

The survey was funded by the Institute of Museum and Library Services, LSTA grant funds, through the Division of Library Development and Services, Maryland State Department of Education in a grant to the Southern Maryland Regional Library Association.

BUTNER ATTENDS EXTREMITIES COURSE – Tarry Butner, physical therapist and co-owner of Garrett Orthopedic Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation (GO PT), recently attended an intensive two-day seminar – Mechanical Diagnosis and Therapy of the Extremities – at Wake Forest Medical School in Winston-Salem, N.C. The seminar was the latest in a series of courses offered by the McKenzie Institute/Center for Postgraduate Study in Mechanical Diagnosis and Therapy. The institute's founder, Robin McKenzie, has now applied the principles he previously developed for the spine to the extremities. Butner is one of the first to complete this newly offered course. In 1998, after completing McKenzie's original four course spine series, Butner received credentials in the McKenzie technique for the spine, earning the title Certified in Mechanical Diagnosis and Therapy of the Spine (Cert MDT). His expertise at GO PT is treating neck and back pain patients.

"Keep Maryland Beautiful" Grant Funds Available

The Maryland Environmental Trust (MET) is sponsoring two grant funding programs to assist communities and nonprofit groups that promote a better understanding of environmental matters or help solve environmental problems. The deadline to apply for the Margaret Rosch Jones Award and the Bill James Environmental Grants is Wednesday, March 31.

The MET grants are administered through the "Keep Maryland Beautiful" program, which is funded by the Maryland State Highway Administration.

The Margaret Rosch Jones Award provides up to $2,000 to communities and nonprofit groups that plan to continue a project that has already successfully addressed an environmental issue.

The Jones Award is given in memory of Margaret Jones, the executive director of the Keep Maryland Beautiful program for many years. The award is bestowed to a volunteer group that embodies the qualities that Margaret Jones brought to her work, according to a spokesperson.

Organizations that apply for a Jones Award must meet at least one of the following criteria:

•has actively educated people in the community about litter prevention, community beautification, or a local or statewide environmental issue; or

•has successfully eliminated or reduced the causes underlying a local environmental problem, not merely its symptoms.

Bill James Environmental Grants provide up to $1,000 to school groups, science and ecology clubs, and other nonprofit youth groups for proposed environmental-education projects. These grants are given in memory of William S. James, who drafted legislation that established the MET and that directed the MET to manage the activities of the Governor's Committee to Keep Maryland Beautiful.

Bill James Environmental Grants have the following objectives:

•to encourage a sense of stewardship and personal responsibility for the environment;

•to stimulate a better understanding of environmental issues;

•to aid in the elimination or reduction of a local environmental problem; and

•to promote education about growth management and protection of rural areas and sensitive resources while discouraging sprawling development.

To obtain applications, persons may either call the MET at 877-514-7900, or write to MET, 100 Community Place, 1st Floor, Crownsville, MD 21032-2023. Applications are also available through the organization's Web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/met.

BUSCH REPORT

Kevin Harvick held off hard-charging Kasey Kahne to win Saturday's Sam's Town 300 Busch Series race at Las Vegas Motor Speedway.

Matt Kenseth appeared to have the fastest car of the day, but he got caught up in a crash near the end of the race.

Going into the last lap, Kahne trailed the leader by about four car lengths. He made a run at Harvick coming off Turn 4, but the veteran was able to fend off the advance and won by a car length.

DID YOU KNOW

By starting Sunday's race at Las Vegas Motor Speedway, Dale Earnhardt Jr. reached the 150-race milestone for career Nextel Cup starts.

Lucky at VEGAS

By AL LEVINE
Cox News Service

Las Vegas

Atlanta was the turning point last year for NASCAR champion Matt Kenseth. Sunday, at Las Vegas Motor Speedway, he got a bit ahead of himself.

A year ago at Atlanta Motor Speedway in the season's fourth race, Kenseth finished fourth to grab the points lead. He held it for a modern-era record of 33 consecutive weeks.

He'll roll into Atlanta this week in control of both the Nextel Cup points race and a hot streak. Kenseth won his second consecutive race Sunday with a dominating performance for the second straight year in the UAW-DaimlerChrysler 400 at the Las Vegas track.

"You don't always leave [Vegas] a winner," Kenseth said. "This is fun."

It was a Vegas jackpot for Kenseth: Besides the winner's take of $458,828, he received the Nextel Cup $30,000 leader bonus for winning the race and being the points leader as well.

Kenseth's No. 17 Ford, which started 25th, led 85 laps of the 200-lap race. He beat rookie Kasey Kahne in the No. 9 Dodge by a comfortable 3.426 seconds. Tony Stewart, in the No. 20 Chevrolet, was third.

Kenseth also won the previous race, two weeks ago at Rockingham. With two wins in the first three races of 2004, Kenseth has doubled his trips to Victory Lane last season. He has taken a lot of criticism for winning only once on his way to the 2003 championship.

"I'm going to go home and watch the TV shows tonight and see what everybody is saying," Kenseth said. "No matter what, I learned last year that it's always something. It would be hard for anybody to argue that we didn't have the dominant car [at Rockingham], and all you saw in the headlines was that the cautions didn't fall right, we weren't on the lead lap, and we shouldn't have won.

"But I'd rather have them talking about us because we're doing so good rather than the other way around."

Kenseth had only one tough time Sunday.

He came in for service as the race leader when Kevin Lepage hit the wall on Lap 183 and brought out a caution. A troublesome lug nut delayed Kenseth's exit from the pits, and he fell to seventh.

He didn't reclaim the lead again until Lap 230, biding his time while Kevin Harvick led for all but a lap between laps 186-229. But Harvick was hoping for another caution because his team calculated he'd run out of gas before the end. Sure enough, Harvick fell out the lead on Lap 230 and ran out of gas on Lap 266, finishing 21st.

"We need to throw out our computers that figure that stuff and start over," Harvick said.

Kahne, meanwhile, has this bridesmaid thing down pat. He finished second to Kenseth for the second consecutive race. He also finished second in Saturday's Busch Series.

"We need NASCAR to add more miles to each one of these races," Kahne said.

RACE STATISTICS

Average speed of race winner: 128.790 mph.
Time of race: 3 hours, 6 minutes, 35 seconds.
Margin of victory: 3.426 seconds.
Caution flags: 6 for 37 laps.
Lead changes: 18 among 10 drivers.
Lap leaders: Kasey Kahne, 0; Kurt Busch, 1-4; Kahne, 5-35; Jimmie Johnson, 36-40; Scott Riggs, 41; Kahne, 42-53; Tony Stewart, 54-88; Ricky Craven, 89; Stewart, 90-94; Matt Kenseth, 95-138; Michael Waltrip, 139; Kenseth, 140-168; Stewart, 169-172; Kenseth, 173-184; Jeff Burton, 185; Kevin Harvick, 186-201; Stewart, 202; Harvick, 203-229; Kenseth, 230-267.

LAS VEGAS NOTEBOOK

Earnhardt Jr. suffers through lost weekend

By AL LEVINE
Cox News Service

Las Vegas

When Dale Earnhardt Jr. qualified only 26th fastest Friday for the UAW-DaimlerChrysler 400, it was something of a surprise. Turns out, it was the highlight of his weekend.

Driving an ill-prepared No. 8 Chevrolet, Earnhardt struggled from the get-go and finished 35th, 71 laps behind. It cost him the Nextel Cup points lead. He fell all the way to seventh.

EARNHARDT JR.

He spent as much time, it seemed, in the garage having shocks and springs changed as he did driving around Las Vegas Motor Speedway.

Junior's lost weekend included being 36th fastest in the first practice, 29th fastest in the second and 30th in Happy Hour. And all that translated to a miserable performance Sunday.

"Yeah, it's really disappointing," he said. "We were a second off the pace no matter what we did. I know it's going to be a black Monday at the shop, but I also know we're going to do an awful lot of laps in testing this week at Kentucky [Speedway] to figure out what was wrong."

Elliott gets no traction

Bill Elliott's first race of a limited schedule resulted in a 20th-place finish.

"Our team worked hard to make us competitive, but we just couldn't get any traction," he said. "The new Evernham chassis was pretty good. We learned a lot about it, so we can go do some more work on it."

Deal for Cowboys QBs

The proposed Nextel Cup team owned by former Dallas Cowboys quarterbacks Troy Aikman and Roger Staubach announced a co-op deal Sunday with Hendrick Motorsports.

Hendrick will provide the Aikman entry with equipment, resources and technology as it builds a team that hopes to run the 2005 schedule.

Winner of the past two Nextel Cup races.

INSIDE TALK

Battle of the Busch brothers doesn't end well

So much for the feel-good story of the weekend, with 18-year-old Kyle Busch making his Nextel Cup debut and getting a chance to race with his brother Kurt.

The afternoon ended abruptly for Kyle, who brushed the wall at Turn 4 on the fourth lap of the race and again a few laps later.

By Lap 11, he was out of the race, relegated to a 41st-place finish in the No. 84 Chevrolet.

"We started off the race extremely tight, and I touched the Turn 4 wall twice in those first few laps," Kyle said. "The first time I just nudged it, but I pretty much flat-sided it the second time. We were actually loose in practice, so I'm not sure how to explain it. I literally had my arms crossed trying to make it turn and not go a lap down.

"It's not the way I wanted my first Nextel Cup race to play out, but we'll put it behind us."

— Al Levine

Soft walls welcomed, except at Darlington

By AL LEVINE
Cox News Service

Las Vegas

NASCAR drivers have roundly applauded the installation of SAFER [steel and foam energy reducing] wall barriers at a number of speedways. But that was before they heard the walls are going up at Darlington Raceway.

Right idea, wrong track, according to veteran Mark Martin.

The energy-absorbing soft walls are expected to be in place at Darlington when the Nextel Cup circuit races there in two weeks.

Martin voiced concern that the narrow track will lose one of its distinct racing grooves with the barrier wall.

"It's less needed there for a safety standpoint, but for a race we're going to be crippled if we lose two or three feet," he said. "You can see that after the race. Every other car has the side slid off of it now, so we needed two more feet going out, not two feet coming in."

Jeff Gordon agreed.

"I have a little bit of a problem with it at a place like Darlington because we run up against the wall," Gordon said. "But I'd rather have it than not have it, so we'll just deal with it. It just makes the groove narrower, which makes the racing tighter and narrower and harder to pass. We do brush the wall there. . . . I wouldn't mind it being a little bit softer when I rub up against it."

Martin generally embraces the SAFER walls at most every other track.

"I applaud NASCAR. The SAFER barriers are wonderful. I hope that when my son [Matt, 12] races in NASCAR that he never drives on a track that doesn't have them."

The SAFER walls have been installed at Indianapolis, Richmond, New Hampshire, part of Charlotte and are scheduled for Daytona, Talladega, Phoenix and by the fall race at Atlanta Motor Speedway.

Andretti on the Hill

Veteran Nextel Cup driver John Andretti will be the first NASCAR driver to testify before a U.S. Senate committee this week.

Andretti is to appear at a Judiciary Committee hearing on "Letting the People Decide: The Constitutional Amendment Authorizing Congress to Prohibit Physical Desecration of the Flag of the United States."

Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

DYNAMIC FALL LINE

Q – In skiing, what is the Dynamic Fall Line? Ski instructors talk about it all the time.

A – Welcome to the world of vector addition.

Looking down a ski slope, the direction straight down the mountain is called the fall line. The gravity vector g, which points toward the center of the earth, can be split (resolved) into two component vectors: one pulls you into the hill, but the other component pulls you straight down the fall line. Friction of the snow surface is small, so a skier going straight down a steep fall line will soon be going very fast. A skier staying in control will hold a lower speed by going back and forth diagonally across the fall line. During such a traverse, for proper balance it's important to keep your weight on the downhill ski. That way, you stay on your feet, rather than fall into the mountain and wind up sliding and tumbling downhill. Putting weight on the downhill ski causes that ski to bite into the surface, and thus resists the inertia of your body, which would otherwise just plunge straight down the fall line.

If you're going across a slope to the left, at a sharp angle to the fall line, you'll have your weight on your right foot (the downhill ski), and when you're going to the right you'll have your weight on your left foot (the downhill ski in that direction). So far, so good; everybody can understand that idea without using vector arithmetic. But there comes a time when you have to turn and traverse back the other way.

During the turn itself, which foot is your weight on? In the early stages of learning, instructors teach the snowplow turn, but as you get better, you learn to turn with your skis close together and both pointed in exactly the same direction, which is known as a parallel turn. The trick is to shift the weight on your feet at exactly the right instant.

This is where the concept of the dynamic fall line comes in. It is dependent upon the circular motion you make during a turn. The acceleration of gravity g pulls you straight down the fall line. However, when you're in a turn, there is an additional acceleration of the turning motion (because you're changing direction), and that acceleration is $A = V^2/R$ (V = speed and R = radius of the turn). It is a vector, which means it has direction, and the direction points inward toward the center of the turning motion. The inertia of your body resists that turning acceleration, which is what produces the sensation we all know as "centrifugal force." Your actual motion is determined by the vector sum of those two acceleration vectors A and g.

The combined motion creates the equivalent of a "fall line" which keeps changing as you turn from side to side. This is the dynamic fall line. If your velocity is not very great, it will differ little from the geometric fall line. But at high speed, the acceleration of turning ($V^2/R$) will exceed gravity and make the dynamic fall line point in a substantially different direction, toward the outside of the turn you're making. The meaning of the term "downhill ski" changes instantaneously – it's really the outside ski during a turn.

When you watch a championship ski race on TV, you'll see snow shooting off the outside ski of the racers during their turns. They've already shifted their weight to the outside ski, and have begun to accelerate around the turn. The force necessary to change the direction of the skier's velocity is delivered by the outside foot. But they don't fall over in that brief instant, because their weight is properly balanced with respect to the dynamic fall line.

Skiers of lesser speed also experience a dynamic fall line that changes during a turn, but not as much as for racing champions. The shift in weight should occur gradually, partway into the turn. Practice and experience (and a few falls) tell you when you've got it just right.

Since the acceleration of turning varies as $V^2/R$, negotiating a very tight turn (small R, as when weaving through moguls) can produce a sizable acceleration component to the side, and hence a large change in the dynamic fall line. That in turn calls for shifting your weight earlier at the start of a turn. Moreover, in a mogul field the steepness of the slope keeps changing every foot or so, and therefore the "downhill" component of gravity is fluctuating. Many skiers just stay away from moguls because it's so hard to time the shifting of weight exactly right in such terrain.

Basically, the dynamic fall line is a consequence of the fact that the acceleration of going around a curve adds vectorially to the acceleration of gravity. Of course nobody stands outside on a mountain in winter doing calculations. Good skiers just have an intuitive feel for "doing it right." But that intuitive feeling is basically an appreciation of the principle of vector addition.

BRINGING THE "HIDDEN WORLD" TO LIGHT, AStar AmeriCorps volunteer Zach Fowler is shown as he presents "The Hidden World of Little Things" at Mt. Glade Adult Day Services in Oakland. With the aid of a 40X stereo microscope, Fowler focuses on the importance of proper and thorough hand washing techniques that can help stave off tiny bacteria that thrive on hands and may attempt to make unwanted forays into food and drink. The program also delivers an appreciation of the vast universe of tiny creatures and things that help make up our world, as microbes, the oldest form of life on Earth, are everywhere around – and inside – us, but over 95 percent of those single-cell organisms are harmless. Fowler is available to make the presentation for school groups, after-school programs, senior citizen centers, and other organizations, and can be contacted through the Garrett County Extension Food Stamp Nutrition Education Program at 301-334-6960.

Plans Proceeding For 2004 Cove Christian Camp

The Cove Christian Camp board of directors met recently to further plans for the day camps, slated for the weeks of July 6, 12, 19, and 23. Cove Christian Camp, located along Cove Road just north of Northern High School, is a day camp sponsored by St. John's Lutheran Church (LCMS) in Accident.

"Plans are progressing well," said Kathy Kabell, board chairperson. She reported that pre-registrations for the camp have been coming in, and more are anticipated prior to the early April 1 discount deadline.

Day camp for pre-K children through first graders will be held July 6-9 and 12-16. Children in the second through fourth grades will have camp July 19-23 and July 26-30.

The theme for the first week of each age group's camp will be "Adventure Trails that Lead to Jesus." The second week will involve the children in "God's Team in Action," which will focus on an Olympics theme.

"The purpose of this summer day camp program is mainly to share the gospel of Jesus with the children in our community and beyond," said Kabell. "The day camps are an alternative to traditional day care.

Because of the limited number of spaces available, persons are urged to register their children early. To do so, persons may e-mail covechristiancamp@hotmail.com or call 301-746-8344 to obtain a brochure and registration form.

Md. Soil Districts Slate Children's Coloring Contest

The Maryland Association of Soil Conservation Districts (MASCD) and the Garrett Soil Conservation District (GSCD) are sponsoring a coloring contest open to all students from kindergarten through fifth grade. The annual contest is designed to raise awareness in young people of the importance of conserving and protecting our natural resources.

There are three classes: Class A, for kindergarteners and first graders; Class B for second and third graders; and Class C for fourth and fifth graders. Judging for both county and state competition wi l be based on neatness, a tention to detail and how well directions were followed. Winners at the county level will receive $10 for first place and $5 for second place in each class. First place county winners will advance to the state competition. A state winner for each class will be selected in July at the MASCD meeting at Rocky Gap Lodge and Golf Resort, and each will receive a $25 cash prize.

Entry forms, which include the simple farm scene to be colored, are available at each elementary school and at the Garrett SDC office at 1916 Maryland Highway, and are to be returned to the Garrett SDC office by Tuesday, June 1. The GSCD is administering the contest locally, and will judge and award prizes on the county level before winners go on to the state competition.

For more information, persons may call the GSCD at 301-334-6951.

During his six weeks of training, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization, and military customs and courtesies. In addition to physical training, Hoffman also performed drill and ceremonial marches, conducted field-training exercises, and received special training in human relations.

Airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

DHR Child Support Admin. Enhances Customer Service

The Maryland Department of Human Resources Child Support Administration has enhanced customer service. Beginning this month, the Garrett County Department of Social Services and nine other child support offices will become part of a statewide call center.

"This statewide improvement will provide child support customers with fast and accurate answers to their questions," said a DHR spokesperson.

A customer dialing 1-800-332-6347 will speak to a customer service representative as opposed to recorded messages. According to DHR, the call center enables the department to handle an increased volume, reduce caller wait time, provide additional customer service representatives, offer services five days a week from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and provide English and Spanish operators.

The Child Support Enforcement Administration manages 312,322 cases and distributes $437 million in child support payments, according DHR.

TV's 'Joan' has a soapy career history

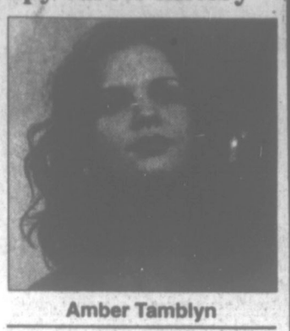
By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it



Amber Tamblyn

Q: Didn't the young actress who plays Joan on "Joan of Arcadia" use to play Emily Quartermaine on "General Hospital"? She is a great actress! –Mary from New City, N.Y.

A: Yes, Amber Tamblyn, 20, played Emily Quartermaine on both "GH" and the ill-fated "Port Charles" before signing on to play Joan Girardi in CBS' new Friday-night hit. She also appeared in the films "The Ring," "Rebellious" and "Live Nude Girls," and made guest appearances on TV shows including "Buffy the Vampire Slayer," "Without a Trace," "CSI: Miami" and "Boston Public."

The actress, who is charming and totally unaffected by her new-found prime-time stardom, is the daughter of former screen musical star Russ Tamblyn ("West Side Story"), a fact her TV dad, Joe Mantegna, did not know when Amber auditioned with him.

As it turns out Mantegna credits the movie "West Side Story" with inspiring him to explore acting as a kid. As a special surprise, Amber brought both her dad and his "West Side" co-star George Chakiris to the "Joan of Arcadia" Christmas party, where Mantegna had his picture taken with "Riff and Bernardo," as the actors were known in the film.

Mantegna says that experience was "really very nice," but Tamblyn tells me his reaction was a little bigger.

"Squealed like a Britney Spears fan," she says, rolling her eyes.

Q: Isn't that the male star of Fox's "My Big Fat Obnoxious Fiance" in a Hungry Man frozen dinners commercial? –N. Laws, Jupiter, Fla.

A: Yes, that's "fiance" and actor Steven Bailey getting blown away by the locker room hair dryer in that Swanson's commercial.

Q: I know Jennifer Garner stays busy working on "Alias," but will there be a second "Daredevil" movie with her in it as well? –Amanda Dolber via e-mail.

A: If all goes well, Garner will take top billing when she reprises her "Daredevil" character of Elektra Natchios in "Elektra," scheduled to begin filming during her summer hiatus from "Alias." The action-drama is scheduled to hit theaters in 2005.

Q: Kelly Rutherford does a great job as an agent on "Threat Matrix." What else has she done? –Thomas M. Thompson, Franklin, Wis.

A: Rutherford, 35, followed up a soap stint in the little-remembered "Generations" with series roles in "Homefront," "The Adventures of Brisco County Jr.," "Kindred: The Embraced," "The Great Defender" and "Melrose Place," plus guest appearances on "The District," "The Fugitive," "Get Real," "Nash Bridges" and "Courthouse," among many others. TV movie and film credits include "Acceptable Risk," "Swimming Upstream," "The Chaos Factor," "The Perfect Getaway," "Scream 3" and "No Greater Love."

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Many people have gambling problems, but perhaps few have been as out of control as William Northmore, a resident of Okehampton, England, in the early 1700s. He enjoyed a great deal of success at first, betting money on everything from horse races to Parliament elections. One night, however, he made a huge mistake. He bet his entire fortune, $850,000, on the turn of a single card — and lost. As one might expect, he vowed never to gamble again — a rather hollow promise, considering that he had nothing left to bet with.

• Superglue was used during the Vietnam War to seal stomach wounds.

• Have you ever tried the French delicacy foie gras? Probably not if it was offered to you in English rather than in French: "Foie gras" is literally translated as "fat liver." Doesn't sound quite so appetizing now, does it?

• The names "Beverly," "Hyacinth," "Vivian" and "Ashley" were all originally given to boys.

• In Mexico, a man named Francisco Sandoval was out for a drive in Santa Cruz one day. Unfortunately, he took a sharp curve a bit too fast and was killed in the accident. His funeral was two weeks later, and in a strange twist of fate, the hearse carrying the corpse crashed in the exact same spot.

• You've probably never heard of "Smell-O-Vision." Only one movie was ever made in that format: "Scent of Mystery," in 1960.

• Here's something to keep in mind during this election year: "You never know how dirty your hands are until you peel a hard-cooked egg or go into politics." That remark was made by Leonard L. Levinson, who never became a famous politician.

• On March 20, 1995, at the height of the morning rush hour in Tokyo, Japan, terrorists from the Aum Shinrikyo religious cult converge at the Kasumigaseki station and secretly release lethal sarin gas into the air. Twelve people died, and 5,500 were treated in hospitals.

Comic Books

Q. I have a large box of comics. Any suggestions? — *Jane, Palm Coast, Fla.

A. Find an expert who can help you appraise your collection. There are numerous price guides available at most larger bookstores that might also be helpful. I especially like the Official Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide by Robert M. Overstreet (House of Collectibles, $22), now in its 32nd edition. It is well worth the money since it is illustrated, has the latest price information and sorts out current market trends.

There are dozens of established dealers, including Metropolis Collectibles, 873 Broadway, Suite 201, New York, NY 10003; Stephen Geppi, 1966 Greenspring Drive, Suite 300, Timonium, MD 21093; and Ed Jaster Collectibles, P.O. Box 30, St. Charles, IL 60174.

Q. I have several Avon bottles and would like to dispose of them. Can you help me? — *Mary, New Canaan, Conn.

A You might want to begin by contacting the National Association of Avon Collectors, P.O. Box 7006, Kansas City, MO 64113. Gere Reed is considered an expert. His address is RR 1, Box 99B, Montrose, PA 18801.

Paw's corner

by Sam Mazzotta

Q. What is the best age to start training a dog? When is the worst age to train? — *Jack M., Butler, Pa.

A. The optimal age to start training a dog is between 5 weeks and 12 weeks of age. This is when a puppy is learning the most about the world around him, and his mind is open to everything, good and bad. Starting basic obedience training at this early age will lay the foundation for a wonderful training relationship with your dog.

Commands such as "sit-stay" and "down-stay," for example, should be drilled regularly, in addition to other basic obedience requirements, such as going to his bed when requested and not jumping up on you or guests. You'll be amazed how quickly such a young puppy responds to training, but keep in mind that his attention span may have him forgetting a new command the very next day. That's why consistency is key.

Train at the same time daily, always after a walk (housebreaking takes place during this period, too). Use a consistent tone of voice: A command should be given in a calm, but authoritative, tone; a reprimand should also be firm, with no yelling or pleading. Praise should be given in a soft tone. If you're giving a reward (like a treat or a toy), give it within two to 10 seconds of the puppy's successful action. Likewise, a reprimand, whether for failure to follow a command or for "accidents" or bad behavior in the house, should be given within the same time frame — meaning you'll have to catch him in the act so that he'll associate negative and positive behaviors.

Keep the training short at first. Fifteen minutes may be all the attention a rambunctious puppy can give you at first, but as he grows you can extend his training sessions up to an hour. Afterward, play with him and let him burn off more energy.

The worst age to train? There isn't one. Older dogs without basic obedience training are tougher to train, but it's not impossible. Just bring lots of patience to each session.

"Just Wait Until Your Father Gets Home!"

Though the world is constantly changing, this phrase is still around. While it might be helpful to those mothers who are at the end of their rope, it sure does give dad a bad rap. After all, as he approaches his front porch, he doesn't have a clue as to why there is a chill in the air; nor why his children are tentatively peeping at him around the corner of the house, ready to run at moment's notice.

Although his children might be rightfully apprehensive, they know that he loves them even though he expects them to behave. Therefore, some appropriate repercussion is not a surprise.

Our Heavenly Father loves us even more than we can imagine. His words to us are found in the Holy Bible. Though we may cause ourselves grief when we do not obey, God still forgives us when we ask Him. His love never wavers. Psalm 115:11 reassures us... "Ye that fear the Lord, trust in the Lord: He is their help and their shield."

Worship this week. Discover more about your Father's eternal love.

What Would You Tell Them?

The vast multitude of suicides in our society today is testimony to the fact that perhaps life is not always bearable. But there are far too many suicides for us not to believe that many of them could have been prevented.

What could we tell someone we know who is contemplating suicide? Would we have anything of value to dissuade them from their tragic act? Maybe we should tell them that life is always bearable, or at least we should believe that it is. Amazingly, one can adapt to whatever comes along. Even if one loses his mind, in a strange way that too could be considered adaptation. If demons are haunting us, we should learn to deal with them. And although prayer may be considered a form of escapism by some, it can be pure salvation to escape into the arms of a loving God. There is always recourse in prayer, whether we are "on the rack" or simply in the middle of seemingly insurmountable problems. The book of Isaiah tells us, "When you pass through the waters, I will be with you; and through the rivers, they shall not overwhelm you; when you walk through fire you shall not be burned, and the flame shall not consume you. For I am the Lord your God, the Holy One of Israel, your Savior.

"Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and He shall sustain thee: He shall never suffer the righteous to be moved.

K.J.V. Psalm 55:22

Ginger: Safe To Use During Pregnancy

Use of the herb ginger has long been thought to help ease nausea associated with motion sickness. A new study has shown that when ginger is used during pregnancy to help reduce morning sickness, it does not appear to raise the risk of birth defects. The study looked at 187 women who used some form of ginger in their first trimester. Investigators concluded that the mothers-to-be who used ginger were no more likely than other women to deliver babies with congenital malfor-mations. The comparison was made with 187 other women who took nothing for morning sickness. However, conclusions as to whether the ginger actually helped ease morning sickness symptoms were not so clear. Approximately half the women in the study said that the ginger provided no help to them, but there was some evidence that the capsule form of the herb was helpful to some of the women.

Other medical research has concluded that when prescription antinausea medicines are not effective, ginger can be of some help in minimizing the nausea that is sometimes associated with taking certain cancer drugs.

GCMH Receives Kudos In Patient Safety Survey

Garrett County Memorial Hospital recently completed a three-year statewide "MedSafe" survey process to gauge patient safety strategies across the state. The survey was sponsored by the Maryland Hospital Association.

The project culminated with GCMH's commendation by the Institute of Safe Medication Practices (ISMP) for its commitment to medication safety. The hospital's scores increased with each of the three self assessment surveys, according GCMH pharmacy director Lance Rhodes, who coordinated the local hospital's participation in the survey.

"The goal for year one was to establish a baseline of activities and information system capabilities across a group of Maryland hospitals," Rhodes explained. "Year two established a set of guidelines for the measurement of medication use errors through the design and adoption of a measurement tool. This quantitative phase was supplemented with educational strategies designed to reach hospital leadership and management and to assure that patient safety issues were a priority for Maryland hospitals.

"Year three's goal was to perform a comparative analysis across Maryland hospitals and establish better practice models for the state. The findings were shared with Maryland hospitals through all phases of the project," said Rhodes.

"This program, given ISMP's involvement, provides Maryland hospitals with a unique opportunity to not only benefit from a nationally tested self-assessment tool, but to become part of a national effort and forum for benchmarking patient safety activities," remarked Cal Pierson, president of Maryland Hospital Association. "This effort also places Maryland hospitals in an excellent position to be fully accountable and responsive to potential state and federal requirements for greater patient safety reporting."

GARRETT MEMORIAL EARNS RECOGNITION — A three-year statewide "MedSafe" survey process has recognized Garrett County Memorial Hospital for its commitment to medication safety. The Institute of Safe Medication Practices commendation is an outgrowth of an involved self-assessment process gauging patient safety strategies across the state. ## Volunteer Training Classes Slated By County's Hospice Hospice of Garrett County Inc. has scheduled its "Faith in Action" volunteer training classes on April 3, April 17, and April 24 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. each Saturday. The classes will be held at the Hospice office, 69 Wolfe Acres Drive, lower level, Oakland.

"Hospice extends an invitation to local residents to become part of the Hospice team and to be a patient-care volunteer or bereavement volunteer," said Brenda Butchser, executive director of Hospice of Garrett County. "Volunteers will find working with the terminally ill and their families is very rewarding. Keep in mind that doing good for others is doing good for yourself."

Hospice patient-care volunteers provide companionship to terminally ill patients and their families by sitting with patients, running errands, or helping in various other ways.

The Hospice Bereavement team stays in touch with the family for one year after the death of a loved one. Volunteers do mailings, make home visits, and maintain a relationship with the family by telephone.

The April 3 class includes an "Overview of Hospice" by Butscher, "Legal & Financial Planning" by Shirley Fitzwater of First United Bank & Trust, "Working with the Volunteer Coordinator" by volunteer coordinator Ida Maust, and "Listening Skills and Family Dynamic/Stress Management" by social worker Nancy Elizabeth Nimmich.

The April 17 class will feature "Grief Counseling Skills" by Jane Sealing; "HIPAA/Patient Privacy Rights," "Universal Precautions & Infection Control," "Safety, Documentation, Confidentiality, Sexual Abuse," Signs & Symptoms of Approaching Death," and "Personal Care," by Charee Reckner, director of clinical services; and "Wrap Up — Hospice Office" by Maust.

The final session on April 24 will feature a variety of topics, such as "Transfer Skills" taught by physical therapist Audrey Kennedy of Garrett Rehab Services and "Spiritual Aspects" presented by Pastor Paul Yoder. Class members will also visit the Durst Funeral Home to learn funeral home skills.

To register for the training class or to obtain more information, persons may call the Hospice office at 301-334-5151, the Grantsville area at 800-521-5252, or TTY at 800-735-2258.

Garden Club To Present Program About GC's Plants

Local naturalist and plant expert Liz McDowell will be the featured guest speaker at the upcoming meeting of the Mountain Laurel Garden Club, set for Tuesday, March 16, at the North Glade Bed and Breakfast.

Following a 10:30 a.m. business meeting, McDowell will present "Native Plants: A Welcome Sign for Wildlife," which will incorporate a slide show. During the program, members and guests will discover how homeowners can enhance biodiversity by creating wetlands, butterfly gardens, and other backyard habitats.

McDowell has over 20 years of experience in education and environmental studies. She earned her master of science in wildlife management at the Appalachian Laboratory at Frostburg State University in 1983, where she studied the feeding habits of cave-dwelling bats in the central Appalachians. She has worked as a park naturalist and resource biologist for the Department of Natural Resources, as an environmental specialist for the Maryland Department of the Environment, and as a science teacher at Northern High School.

In 2002 McDowell and her husband, Ron Boyer, started their nature company, Elk Ridge Nature-Works, with the goal of "sharing unique nature experiences in every season." The couple offer ecotours, outdoor classes, and nature programs as well as propagate native wildflowers and handcraft bat boxes. Her volunteer activities include training the NHS Envirothon Team, surveying for the North American Amphibian Monitoring Program, and serving as an instructor at the National Youth Science Camp.

The speaker's program will be followed by a luncheon. Membership is open to all, and guests are asked to call Karen Ewing at 301-387-6180 or Norma Hesen at 301-387-4384 for lunch reservations. The North Glade B&B is located off Glendale Road between Deep Creek Lake and Swanton.

The Mountain Laurel Garden Club is a member of the National Garden Clubs and the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland.

GC To Institute Truck Driving Program In May

Garrett College has finalized its plans for its new program to train professional truck drivers, and will open its Mountaintop Truck Driving Institute in May. The institute will be housed at the former Garrett County roads garage, located three miles east of downtown Grantsville at the intersection of Route 219 North and Route 40. Garrett College will be leasing the site from the county, according to college president Dr. Stephen Herman.

"I'm pleased that the College in cooperation with the County was able to step forward at this crucial time and continue the truck driver program which had been operated by the Diesel Institute of America for the past twenty years," Herman said. The Diesel Institute of America, formerly located at Keyser's Ridge, has relocated to Baltimore.

The college program will consist of 320 hours of training over a 10-week period. This training will qualify students for entry-level positions as a driver in over-the-road or local driving vehicles.

Institute director Bud Poland, who directed the former Diesel Institute for the past 20 years, will head a staff of two full-time and several part-time instructors.

The job placement rate averaged more than 90 percent at the Diesel Institute, according to Poland, who cited the program's reputation for excellence and ability to meet the needs of students who sought financial assistance. Poland said he expects to continue the same high quality program for the College, as the staff represents over 70 years of combined experience in the field of professional truck driver training.

The Mountaintop Truck Driving Institute, operating under the college's Continuing Education and Training umbrella, will offer both a credit and non-credit option. Students taking the credit option might be eligible for federal financial aid including the Pell grant, according to dean of Continuing Education and Training Lowell Bender, who indicated the program should be very affordable for students through Pell grants and other financial aid assistance. Students may also be eligible for financial assistance through the Western Maryland Consortium.

"Trucking continues to play a major role for both our region and the country's economy, Bender said. "There continues to be a waiting list for employment opportunities."

For further information on the new program, persons may inquire with the Garrett College Continuing Education and Training division, 687 Mosser Rd., McHenry, MD 21541; call 301-387-3069; or e-mail cnewman@garrettcollege.edu.

Mikulski Urges Firefighters To Apply For Funds

Senator Barbara A. Mikulski announced recently that fire departments in Maryland and across the country may now begin to apply for funding through the federal government's Assistance to Firefighters Grant Program.

"Our firefighters put their lives on the line every day to save homes and save lives," Mikulski said. "While they're out fighting fires, they shouldn't have to worry about fighting for money to buy a new protective suit or a fire truck."

The Assistance to Firefighters Grant Program is a competitive process open to fire departments nationwide. Applications can be made for money to be used for training, equipment, fire prevention programs, and vehicles. This year's application period began on March 1 and will continue to April 2.

More than 20,000 fire departments across the country applied for funding last year, totaling $2.5 billion in requests. In Maryland, 69 departments — one in three that applied — received funding, totaling $8.1 million.

Mikulski noted that through her work on the Appropriations Committee, she helped secure $750 million for the grant program last year, up from $360 million in 2002. She also directed the federal government to simplify the grant application process, enabling departments to apply online.

For more information about the grants, persons may visit the Maryland Fire and Rescue Institute (MFRI) web site at www.mfri.org.

McHenry Woman Planning To Hike Appalachian Trail

McHenry resident Julia Geisler and her boyfriend, Michael Snyder of Frostburg, will begin a 2,174 mile walk along the Appalachian Trail on March 21. They will embark on their journey in Springer Mountain, Ga., with 2,000 other hopeful hikers, whose ultimate goal is to reach Katadyn, Maine, in six months.

That means 180 days of walking in all types of weather along the world's longest continuous footpath. One who attempts to traverse its entire length can expect to take 5 million steps over 470,000 feet of elevation change (the equivalent of 16 Mount Everest climbs from sea-level in a row), noted Geisler.

"It is not terribly surprising that an average of only 12 percent of those who embark actually reach the trail's end in Maine," she said.

THE BEGINNING OF A VERY LONG WALK – Julia Geisler, McHenry, and her boyfriend, Michael Snyder of Frostburg, will begin a 2,174 mile walk in the woods along the infamous Appalachian Trail on March 21. They will embark upon their journey in Springer Mountain, Ga., with more than 2,000 other hikers. Their ultimate goal is to reach Katadyn, Maine, six months later. See story for details. Geisler intends to submit updates to The Republican during her journey.

When people ask Geisler and Snyder why they want to hike the Appalachian Trial, their response is, "To test our will, to discover our limits, to achieve a goal, and to strengthen our characters."

Preparation for the hike has been under way for six months. It has included working for funds, physical training, gathering of lightweight gear, and repackaging of dehydrated food into numerous Ziplock bags. The couple will pick up the bags at 25 "food drops," which are located at post offices in towns along the trail.

The hikers will also have "lightweight" packs containing approximately 25 pounds of essential items strapped to their backs during the journey.

"We are ready to walk," said Geisler. She intends to submit updates to The Republican during her journey. "Hopefully I can bring a bit of the beauty and diversity of the Appalachian Mountains to you," she said.

Planning Begins For Grantsville Days Celebration

Planning has begun for the 27th annual Grantsville Days, slated for Friday through Sunday, June 25-27. The annual event draws thousands of local residents and visitors to the town for three days of the family-oriented celebration.

Traditional events to be held again this year include fireworks, continuous free entertainment, pulling contests, and children's games, plus a Sunday gospel day featuring an interdenominational service and daylong performances of gospel music.

Business and individual sponsors pay for all events at Grantsville Days, according to an organizer. Sponsor request letters for all Grantsville Days events have been mailed, and sponsors are asked to either send in their donation or call 301-895-5387 to pledge a donation so planning can be completed.

"New sponsors are always welcome, so if your business has not received a sponsor request letter, call to make your pledge soon," the spokesperson said. "We are in need of fireworks sponsors to maintain the level of fireworks that we have had in previous years."

All food booths again this year will be run by local, non-profit groups. The Grantsville Lions Club coordinates the booths and events at Grantsville Days, and the proceeds of Grantsville Days are used to maintain the Grantsville Park The Lions will host a chicken barbecue on Saturday and Sunday. Applications will soon be taken for local non-profit food booths and craft, novelty, display, and game booths. Persons may call booth chairman Rich Towers at 301-895-5903 for an application.

There will be continuous gospel music all day at the Grantsville Park. Persons can bring their own lawn chairs or blankets, or sit in the shade of pavilions 1 or 2 to hear the free gospel concerts.

Nature Connection

by Liz McDowell & Ron Boyer

It's early March in Garrett County and our "spring preview" has been cut short by several inches of fresh snow. But thanks to the higher angle of the sun, this thin white blanket will quickly disappear and the golden-yellow blossoms of coltsfoot will soon color our roadside banks. Until then, the only gold dotting our landscape is the same we've appreciated all winter. The golden hues provided by the weathered leaves of American beech, Fagus grandifolla.

American beech is probably one of the easiest deciduous trees to identify in the winter woods. Unlike other deciduous trees that quickly drop all of their leaves in the fall, American beech holds onto its withered leaves, releasing them slowly over the course of the winter. This unusual characteristic has resulted in it being referred to as "persistent beech." The smooth, light gray bark of American beech also aids in its identification. Beech bark is so smooth that it often attracts the unwanted advances of vandals intent on carving their names on its trunk These attacks are so frequent and remain visible for so many years afterwards that American beech is commonly called the "graffiti tree."

American beech is considered a climax species, with a single tree living as long as 400 years. It is typically found in moist woods within both upland and bottomland habitats throughout most of the eastern United States. In Garrett County it's often seen growing in proximity to eastern hemlock, yellow birch, and sugar maple. Its leaves are somewhat similar to those of American chestnut, another member of the beech family. But beech leaves are more egg-shaped with shorter teeth compared with chestnut leaves. American beech trees can attain a height of 125 feet, though the typical maximum height is closer to 90 feet. The wood is used commercially in the production of clothespins, furniture, and flooring.

The sweet, triangular nuts of American beech are held within a spiny bur. They are eaten by a large variety of birds and mammals, including the ruffed grouse, tufted titmouse, eastern chipmunk, and gray and red squirrels. According to feeding habit studies, these tasty nuts are especially favored by flying squirrels, fox squirrels, and black bears, comprising over 10% of their diets. Native Americans ate beechnuts both as a food item and as a medicinal to expel worms. Traditional herbalists use a tea from the leaves to treat the skin rash caused by exposure to poison ivy. Despite the image of a beechnut on the famous gum that shares its name, neither the leaves nor nuts of American beech were apparently used in the production of Beechnut gum.

If you visit a forest with American beech trees in early fall be sure to check for the presence of beechdrops, Epifagus virginiana. This unusual wildflower ranges in color from tan to a brownish-purple. Since this plant does not contain chlorophyll, it's unable to make its own food. Instead it's parasitic, obtaining its energy by stealing nourishment from the roots of the American beech. If you see beechdrops, you can be certain that an American beech tree is close by.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Avian Influenza Confirmed On Eastern Shore

On Saturday afternoon, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Veterinary Services Laboratory in Ames, Iowa, confirmed the presence of the H7 strain of avian influenza in a commercial poultry flock on Maryland's lower Eastern Shore. This is the same strain that was found last month in two flocks in Delaware, but there is no known connection between the Maryland and Delaware cases.

The H7 strain of avian influenza could be a serious threat to the Delmarva poultry industry if it spreads, but has not been associated with serious human illness, according to the USDA. Avian influenza spreads easily among birds through nasal and eye secretions as well as manure. It can spread rapidly from flock to flock and can be carried across great distances by contaminated vehicles, equipment, and clothing, for example.

This case was detected through the surveillance efforts established after the two positive cases were found in Delaware last month. As of Friday, March 5, a total of 1,950 houses representing 828 farms on Delmarva had each tested negative for avian influenza. This represents approximately 43 percent of the total number of commercial farms and approximately 38 percent of the total number of commercial houses on the peninsula.

The Delmarva Emergency Poultry Disease Task Force, which includes Delmarva poultry companies, epidemiology, agriculture, and health officials from Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and the U.S. governments, is coordinating an approach to address the new avian influenza case.

"We are taking all measures possible to protect Maryland's farm community and our poultry industry," said Maryland Agriculture Secretary Lewis R. Riley. "We placed the farm under quarantine. I have issued a new Quarantine Order to address the new geographic area and situation. It is imperative that each and every poultry farmer, company representative, feed hauler, and all others associated with the birds on the Eastern Shore continue to practice the highest levels of biosecurity on their farms, in their businesses and at home. I thank everyone for their cooperation in this very difficult time."

The positive farm is in the Pocomoke City area and is made up of four poultry houses with approximately 118,000 six-week old broilers. The chickens were destroyed humanely Sunday morning and composted on-farm and in-house. The owner of this farm has an eight house farm with two-week-old birds about one mile from the first farm. Because of the close relationship between these farms and the shared personnel and equipment, as a proactive step to prevent spread of the disease, those 210,000 birds will also be depopulated. His third farm is about two miles from the original farm and the one-week-old birds on that farm will be observed for the time being.

The new quarantine applies to the areas of Maryland south of Route 50 to the Virginia border. The quarantine restricts movement of poultry and poultry litter and imposes additional biosecurity precautions. There are 71 farms with 171 poultry houses within a six-mile radius of the positive farm, all of which will be sampled for presence of avian influenza. Pre-processing testing will continue across all of Delmarva until at least Tuesday, March 16.

Poultry in Maryland accounted for $440 million, or 31 percent, of the state's $1.4 billion agriculture industry in 2002, the last year for which there are statistics. In addition, 60 percent or more of the state's cropland is dedicated to grains for poultry feed. There are approximately 1,100 poultry farms on Maryland's Eastern Shore. Maryland's last outbreak of avian influenza was in 1993 among game birds on a Queen Anne's County farm.

Dairy Farmers To Meet, Dine

The Dairy One and Holstein Banquet and meeting will be held Thursday, March 25, at the Pleasant Valley Community Center. Serving of the meal will begin at 7 p.m.

Wildlife Habitat Program Funds Now Available

David Doss, state conservationist for the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), announced that Maryland and the District of Columbia received funding of $352,000 from the 2002 Farm Bill to use to restore wildlife habitat through the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP).

Landowners interested in filing an application for funding consideration through WHIP should immediately contact their local NRCS or Soil Conservation District office. Applications will be ranked according to criteria that will determine which proposals offer the most environmental benefits at the lowest cost. Sign-up opened on March 5, 2004, and extends through April 9, 2004.

"This is the sixth sign-up that has provided opportunities for farmers and landowners to create wildlife habitat through WHIP," said Doss. Previous funding provided cost-share reimbursement to farmers, landowners, and schools that planted grassland habitat or restored riparian buffers, stream banks, and wetlands for wildlife habitat. WHIP conservation practices restore and manage habitat to benefit game birds, song birds, waterfowl, and other wildlife.

WHIP is a voluntary conservation program that provides technical and financial assistance to landowners and managers to restore upland, wetland, and riparian habitat areas on their property. The program provides full flexibility to landowners, offering cost-share agreements that usually range from 5 to 10 years in duration.

"Maryland enjoyed tremendous success during previous enrollment periods by assisting landowners to implement WHIP conservation practices," said Mark Waggoner, NRCS Maryland WHIP program manager. "WHIP funding can help landowners pay for the planned restoration of upland habitat (primarily native warm-season grasses), riparian buffers, shallow water areas, wetlands, and control of exotic invasive plants (such as phragmites) when needed to restore native habitat."

Based on Maryland's identified wildlife habitat priorities, conservation practices eligible for WHIP funding in Maryland include restoration of grassland habitat in field borders and entire fields; restoration of riparian buffers with trees, shrubs, or herbaceous plants; stabilization of stream banks with trees, shrubs, or herbaceous plants; restoration of wetlands; and establishment of shallow water areas for wildlife. Participants are especially encouraged to restore habitats to their native plant communities.

To qualify for WHIP, the application must consist of at least one acre of eligible wildlife habitat improvement practices, or at least $300 of WHIP cost-share assistance. NRCS may waive these requirements for outdoor classrooms and educational projects. Lands already enrolled in other USDA programs such as the Conservation Reserve Program, Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program, and the Wetlands Reserve Program are not eligible for WHIP.

Maryland's landowners can learn more about WHIP and other conservation programs by visiting the NRCS Maryland homepage at www.md.nrcs.usda.gov.

Plans Under Way To Publish Farm Directory

The Garrett County Office of Economic Development and the Garrett County Extension Office are currently collecting information from local farmers to develop a farm directory for suppliers and services.

Surveys will be sent out this week to hundreds of farmers across the county and in the surrounding mountaintop region, asking for information that will help connect farmers and local citizens in order to develop a more profitable local market.

"The directory will make it easy for consumers to locate farm products and services they desire, as well as for farmers to locate farm suppliers and farm services," a spokesperson said.

The farm directory will include farm names and contact information. Other items the directory may include are farm descriptions, directions to the farms, current products and services offered, and hours of operation. Persons will not be required to list their farms in the directory. Those who choose to do so will be allowed to decide what information will be included.

Farmers are requested to complete the survey whether or not they wish to participate in the directory.

Several other counties and regions across the country have already put together directories and are benefiting from doing so, the spokesperson said.

Cheryl DeBerry, agriculture marketing specialist for Garrett County economic development, said the farm directory will be a resource to help "grow" the agricultural economy throughout the area. "The directory will create opportunities for more profitable markets for farm businesses, thus preserving the farmland and heritage of Garrett County," she said.

Persons are asked to mail completed surveys to the Garrett County Extension Office at 1916 Maryland Highway, Suite A, Oakland, MD 21550. For more information or to be included in the directory, persons may contact DeBerry at 301-334-6960.

Producers Able To View USDA Accounts Online

Agricultural producers will be able to access their U.S. Department of Agriculture information and facilitate online business with the agency with a new electronic "customer statement" recently unveiled by Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman. The customer statement allows USDA customers to view participation and application status in various conservation programs; payments associated with commodity and conservation programs; information on farm loans; and conservation plan and land unit information.

The new online service is part of USDA's electronic government (eGovernment) initiative. "eGovernment solutions will be a major focus for USDA this year." said Veneman. "Our goal is to operate more efficiently in order to be more responsive to the needs of American agriculture and consumers. The customer statement is a major accomplishment towards this goal by making available a wide range of USDA services and programs through a single report at the fingertips of agricultural producers."

The customer statement will be a focal point for providing agricultural producers access to their USDA information and facilitating online business with USDA. "In the future, farmers and ranchers will be able to cross-reference that data with interactive maps of their operations using geographic information systems, or GIS, technology with overlays for roads, soil types, water and other geographic features," Veneman stated. New features will be added to the customer statement as they are developed.

Security is a key feature of the customer statement, the agriculture secretary stressed. Through the use of a USDA-issued indentification, only users will be able to see statements and business transactions with USDA.

Veneman said that USDA's eGovernment initiatives will standardize processes and provide tools to unleash the fuller potential of information technology. In January, USDA unveiled a new design of the USDA web site, which is the first phase in efforts to make the web site more powerful and accessible to USDA information and science. Features will continually be added throughout 2004, such as the customer statement and culminating in August with the launch of "MyUSDA.gov" to provide a customized version of the USDA homepage for individual users based on their unique needs.

To view a customer statement, users can visit www.usda.gov and click on the "customer statement" button.

Renewed Focus on Safe Use of Pain Medicines

Last month, the FDA launched a nationwide campaign to help educate consumers about the safe use of over-the-counter (OTC) pain relievers. Although pain medications can be safe when taken as directed, products containing acetaminophen, aspirin, naproxen, ibuprofen, and ketoprofen can be dangerous when used incorrectly. According to news reports, the campaign will include educational brochures to be distributed by health care providers, articles scheduled to be published in community newspapers, magazine articles, public service ads, and an Internet presence at a designated website.

The main feature of the campaign will emphasize reading labels carefully on OTC drugs before taking them. Not only is it important to strictly follow directions on the label, many medicines sold for different purposes may have the same active ingredient. For example, many cough and cold remedies include pain relievers in their formulas because they are useful in helping aches, pains, and lowering fevers. With prolonged high doses, some of these drugs can cause stomach ulcers and bleeding. Too much acetaminophen can permanently damage the liver. The risk of encountering these side effects can be increased with the consumption of 3 or more alcoholic beverages per day.

|---|---|
| Project Name/Number: | Septage Vacuum Truck WQ03-270-12L |
| Project Applicant: | Garrett County |
| Project Location/County: | Garrett County |
| Project Cost/Loan: | $80,000/$80,000 |

Project Description: The proposed project entails the purchase of a septage vacuum truck to replace the existing 20-year old truck, which is beyond repair. A new septage vacuum truck is essential to everyday sewer operations in Garrett County.

The Garrett County Board of County Commissioners has applied for financial assistance from the Maryland Department of the Environment's State Revolving Loan Fund Program for the proposed project as described above. In accordance with requirements for complying with the State Environmental Review Procedures (SERP) under COMAR 26.03.11 for such assistance, a review has been performed by the Department on the applicant's request for a Categorical Exclusion from a comprehensive environmental review under SERP. The Department has determined that the proposed project qualifies for a Categorical Exclusion pursuant to COMAR 26.03.11.04 because the project constitutes functional replacement of equipment and will not have a significant adverse effect on the environment. This determination is based upon a careful review of the supporting documentation provided by the applicant and other documents available to the Department. In concert with this preliminary determination, the Department has also found the project to be consistent with the Maryland Economic Growth, Resource Protection, and Planning Policy in accordance with Executive Order 01.01.1992.27, and Maryland's Smart Growth and Neighborhood Conservation Policy, in accordance with Executive Order 01.01.1998.04.

As a result of the above determination, the applicant will not need to prepare and/or finalize an Environmental Information Document, and the Department is prepared to approve the applicant's request for financial assistance without further environmental review.

ROTARY DONATES TO HOSPITAL PROJECT – The Oakland Rotary Club recently presented a $1,000 check to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation. GCMH chief financial officer Greg Was, who is also a Rotarian, received the check on behalf of the foundation and thanked the club for its continued support of the hospital's renovation project. The check represented the club's second installment of a $10,000 pledge it made to the foundation. Club president Bob Stephens noted that the local Rotary Club is the only one he knows of that meets in a hospital and enjoys hospital food every week. "Visiting Rotarians are often surprised that one of the best meals in the county is at the hospital," Stephens said. Pictured, left to right, is Stephens presenting the check to Was.

Jennings Randolph Lake To Open For 2004 Season

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has announced the opening of Jennings Randolph Lake for the 2004 recreation season. The boat launch on the Maryland shore, managed by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR), will open on Saturday, May 1, at 7:30 a.m.

The Corps boat launch on the West Virginia shore will open on Thursday, April 1, at 7:30 a.m.

The Maryland launch is on Mt. Zion Road off Route 135 near the salt shed on Backbone Mountain. The West Virginia launch is located alongside Howell Run, just off W.Va. Route 46, three miles north of Elk Garden, W.Va.

The Maryland service charge will be $5 for launching a boat. The 2004 Maryland State Forest and Park Service All-Season Pass can be purchased for $75 for Maryland residents or $100 for out-of-state residents.

The pass offers free day-use entry for everyone in the vehicle to Maryland's 47 state forests and parks, free boat launching at most facilities, and a 10 percent discount on state-operated concessions and boat rentals. For parks with honor box systems, the pass covers entry service charges.

The Corps annual pass and the Maryland all-season pass are valid at either ramp on Jennings Randolph Lake.

There is a $3 fee for using the West Virginia launch on Jennings Randolph Lake. An annual pass that will allow an unlimited number of launches at all Corps parks is on sale for $30 at the Corps park office. "Golden Age Passports" (for senior citizens) cost $10 and Golden Access Passports (for the physically challenged) are free and allow the purchaser to obtain an annual pass for half price, or to pay $1.50 per launch at the Corps boat launch only.

For more information, persons may call the Corps park office at 304-355-2346 or 301-359-3861, Monday through Friday, between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

For information on the Maryland DNR boat launch, persons may call the Herrington Manor/Swallow Falls state parks at 301-334-9180, Monday through Friday, between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

DJJ Youth Center Inmate Charged With Kidnapping

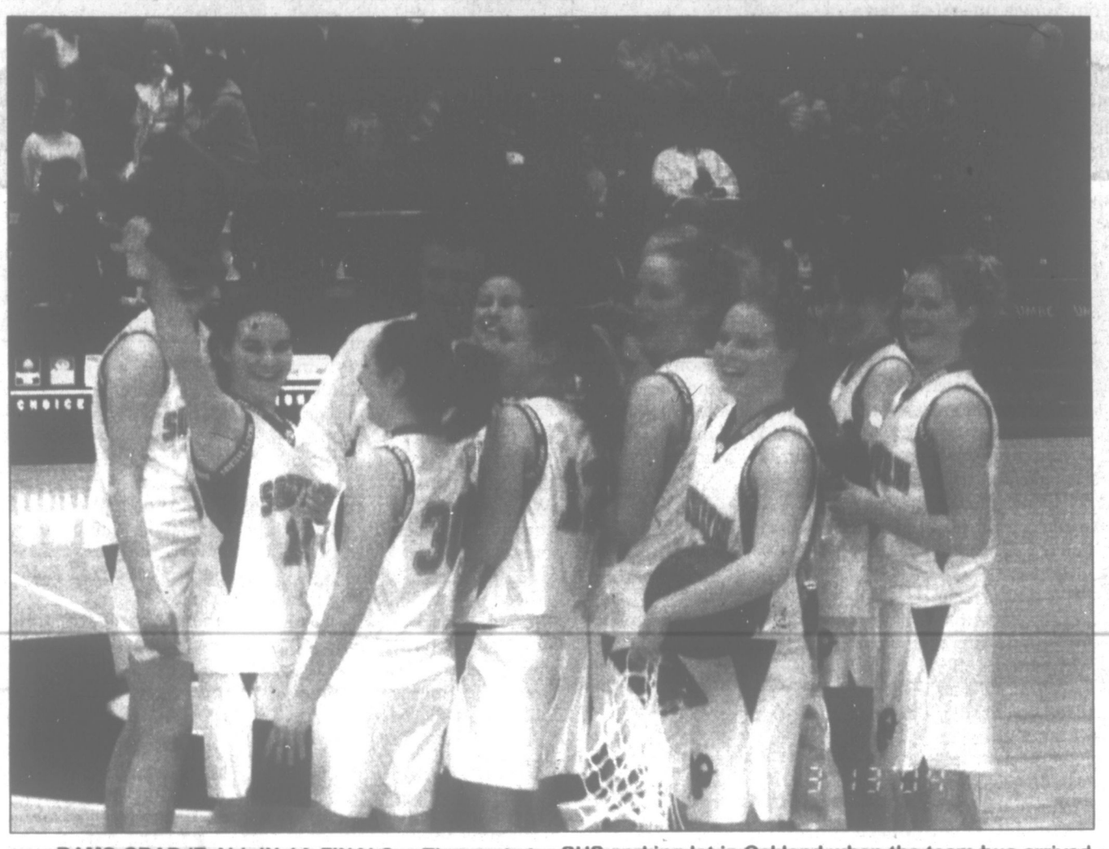
A 17-year-old Baltimore youth faces felony charges after he allegedly kidnapped a counselor at the Department of Juvenile Justice's Meadow Mountain Youth Center Saturday by forcing her to drive him away from the facility before he took her car and fled. English was apprehended a short time later in the Clarysville area of western Allegany County, according to the Maryland State Police.

Charged as an adult, Trae Kevin English is accused of kidnapping, carjacking, second-degree assault, escape, false imprisonment, and auto theft following the 7 p.m. incident. He is being held without bail in the Garrett County Jail pending trial.

Youth center counselor Melissa Martin, who had just left her office at the New Germany Road facility, reported that as she was getting into her Jeep Liberty she heard someone run up behind her. Martin told police the person poked something into her ribs and ordered her into the car.

The suspect then got into the rear seat and ordered Martin to drive. Eventually, Martin pulled into the Amoco gas station at Chestnut Ridge Road and Interstate 68 to obtain fuel. She was allowed to exit the vehicle, but the suspect insisted she leave the keys in the ignition, police said. Martin entered the business and told the attendant she had been kidnapped and asked that police be called. About the same time, the suspect drove off in the vehicle.

A short while later, state troopers from the LaVale barrack stopped the vehicle I-68 near the Clarysville Bridge. English was taken into custody without incident.



RAMS GRAB IT ALL IN 1A FINALS — The storied Southern High School girls' basketball program netted its first Maryland state championship Saturday with a 41-31 Ram victory over Southside Academy of Baltimore. The SHS players are shown above celebrating at midcourt of the University of Maryland Baltimore Campus gymnasium following the title win, with senior guard Robbin Gregg holding the state trophy aloft, and Southern head coach Don Stemple in the background. Approximately 100 Southern fans were in the SHS parking lot in Oakland when the team bus arrived at 1:30 a.m. Sunday morning. It's been a week to remember in households across Ram country, especially in the Stemple household. Within a few hours of the state triumph the longtime SHS skipper was awarded with a new grandson when his daughter, former Ram basketball standout Marci (Stemple) DeHoff, gave birth to her second son Morgan at 3 a.m. in Montclair, Va. ## Arrests Made In Wal-Mart Theft, Pursuit

Two Fayette County, Pa., men have been arrested while a third remains at large in connection with a Jan. 21 felony theft at the Oakland Wal-Mart store that led to a vehicle pursuit on Garrett Highway. Before the chase broke off, the suspect vehicle rammed two police cruisers north of Accident. Maryland State Police trooper J.B. Schlossnagle of the Garrett Bureau of Investigation is the lead detective on the case.

Donald Henry Lycett, 43, and Douglas Allen Cypher, 37, both of Connellsville, are currently incarcerated in Pennsylvania jails on unrelated charges, and both await extradition to Maryland. Lycett, believed to be the driver of the getaway car, faces GBI charges of two counts of assault, one count of felony theft, and numerous traffic offenses. Cypher is charged with felony theft.

A warrant charging felony theft has been issued for the third suspect, Guy Noble Ricks, 47, also of Connellsville. Ricks is not yet in police custody, but is being sought by authorities on this and other unrelated charges.

The charges come in the

New Community Services Program Coordinator Doing "Excellent Job"

Garrett County Sheriff's Office personnel updated the county commissioners this week on their department's activities, including those of the new coordinator of the Community Services Program, Cynthia Smith.

"Cindy has been with us since January and has been doing an excellent job," said Sheriff Dick Sanders.

Smith, a Grantsville area resident, recently retired at the rank of lieutenant colonel with the Maryland State Police after 22 years of service. She is also a graduate of the Johns Hopkins University Police Executive Leadership Program.

"It's good to be back working in the county where I've lived since 1979," Smith said, adding that she enjoys working with and talking to county government personnel.

The coordinator of the Community Services Program monitors the progress of individuals ordered to perform community service assignments by the courts.

The service is an alternative sanction that can be imposed on a defendant by the judge in nonviolent cases that do not necessarily require a period of incarceration as a penalty. The state's attorney can also invoke community service as an option where appropriate as a pre-trail diversion.

Smith said she makes sure that the defendants pay their $25 community service fees, and that they are doing their work. She also "tracks" the number of days that the defendant is suppose to work. For example, if a defendant's 40 day jail sentence is deferred to 40 days of community service, then Smith makes sure that he or she has done 40 days of community service.

The work that defendants provide ranges from performing maintenance duties at state and local parks to developing web sites for nonprofit organizations.

The program gives judges more options, allows defendants to give something to their community, and saves the organizations and county money, noted Smith.

Since the local program began, it has provided 66,112 hours of volunteer service. At the rate of $5.15 an hour, this equals a saving for the community of more than $340,000, according to a report by the sheriff's office.

Barton Man Gets One Year In Jail For DWI Charge

A Barton man pleaded guilty last week in Garrett County Circuit Court to driving while impaired by alcohol. Additional related traffic charges against Melvin Glenn Fazenbaker Jr., 47, were dismissed upon his plea.

Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced him to one year in the Garrett County Jail, suspending all but 15 days of the sentence. A fine of $1,000 was also imposed. Fazenbaker will be on probation upon his release.

He was charged by a Department of Natural Resources officer last June on Savage River Road. The officer noted that Fazenbaker was driving faster than the speed limit, followed him too closely, and failed to dim his high beams.

After stopping the vehicle and observing that Fazenbaker was impaired or under the influence of alcohol, the officer arrested him.

Women's Educational Opportunities Focus Of Free Saturday Workshop

"Second Chances for Women," a free workshop for any woman interested in continuing her education, is set for this Saturday, March 20, at Garrett College. On-site registration will begin at 8:30 a.m., and the presentations will get under way at 9 a.m. The workshop will conclude at 1 p.m. with a free lunch. Free child care will be available for participants who pre-register by calling the number listed below.

"Second Chances for Women will provide a variety of presentations and discussion opportunities for women 20 and older," stated Marilyn Moors of the American Association of University Women (AAUW), which initiated the event. "This workshop will give women a chance to see what educational opportunities exist for them. Whether they are interested in getting a GED, a certificate in massage therapy, or a college degree, they can learn about resources from child care to financial aid. They will also be able to speak directly with other women who have returned to college after taking a break from education."

In addition to panel discussions by women who have returned to college, the workshop will include presentations by speakers representing Garrett College and the Western Maryland Consortium. Participants will also have opportunities to speak individually with representatives from the college and the consortium and to take tours of Garrett College.

The workshop is sponsored by the Business and Professional Women organization and the college. Additional support has been provided by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce and Brenda McDonnell of Brenda's Pizzeria, who is helping provide lunch for all participants.

To register for the workshop or for more information, persons can contact Moors at 301-746-4057.

"Community Kitchen" Seminar To Be Part Of RDC Conference

Development and use of a "community kitchen" will be discussed in a seminar at the Rural Enterprises Conference at Garrett College on March 27. The daylong forum will examine strategies for creating income opportunities for rural and agriculture communities, and is coordinated by the Garrett-Preston Rural Development Coalition.

A survey of the farming community in Garrett County and the surrounding area has revealed interest in producing value-added products such as jams, jellies, ice cream, bottled milk, sauces, herbal products, and more, according to a report from Cheryl DeBerry, agriculture marketing specialist, Office of Economic Development.

Value-added products are those in which raw farm materials are further processed into items with added value.

"We are privileged to have Paul Miller as one of our speakers. He developed the Clinch-Powell Community Kitchen and Appalachian Spring Cooperative in Tennessee," said Dave Moran, president of the Garrett-Preston Rural Development Coalition.

The purpose of developing a community kitchen is to make available an approved facility for processing homegrown products for commercial sale, Moran explained.

Miller, a trained horticulturist experienced in retailing natural and organic foods, is the former general manager of the Knox County Tennessee Regional Farmers Market. He served as the development coordinator and incorporating president of Appalachian Spring Cooperative, a member-owned association of growers producing value-added farm and food products at the Clinch-Powell Community Kitchens in Treadway, Tenn.

He is currently employed by Jubilee Project Inc., a U.S. Department of Commerce Technology Opportunities Program grant project to provide state-of-the-art

In preparation for the warmth, sunshine, and pleasant evenings of summer, plans are under way for the Little Yough Summer Music Festival – "a great place to end your week each Friday with friends, family and neighbors," said Cherie Ross, Oakland Main Street manager.

The current schedule is as follows:

In order to continue doing these concerts without charge to the public, sponsors are needed. The series averages about $20,000 each year in costs, said Ross.

Sponsorship is at the following levels this year: At the platinum sponsorship level, the cost is $1,500. The platinum sponsor's name will be listed as a platinum concert series sponsor on each program, flyer, ad, poster, and press release. Platinum sponsors will also be mentioned in radio ads on a rotating basis. Platinum sponsors will also be allowed to have advertising and/or an exhibit area at the pavilion for each con-

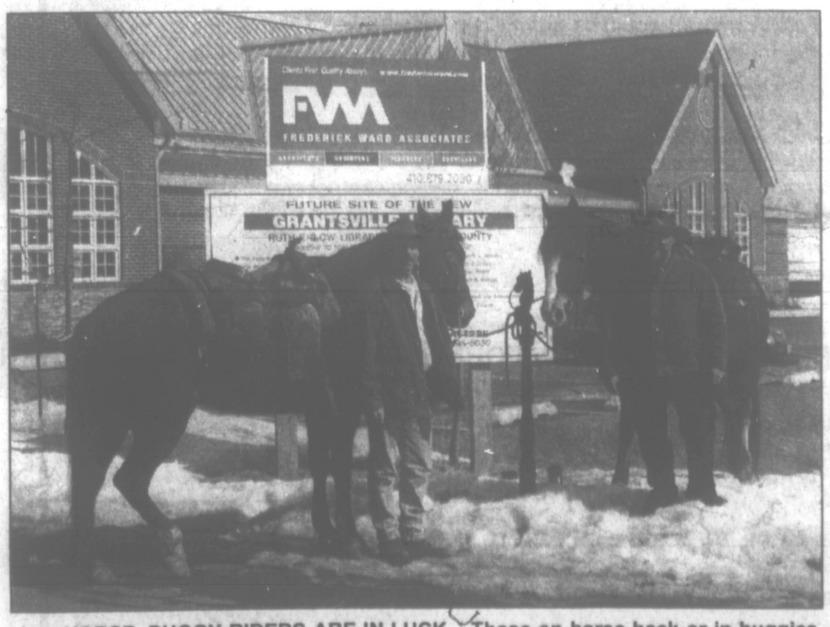
Gun Found In Student's Car, Charges Filed

A Southern High School student faces charges after he told the staff he had a handgun in his vehicle, which was parked on school property Friday afternoon, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Deputies and staff members searched Anthony William Filsinger's vehicle, where they found a .25 caliber semi-automatic handgun, which was unloaded, police said.

Filsinger, 18, Oakland, was arrested and charged with possession of a deadly weapon on school property and transporting a handgun in a vehicle.

He was released from the Garrett County Detention Center after posting $50,000 bond, police said.



HORSE, BUGGY RIDERS ARE IN LUCK – Those on horse back or in buggies now have a place to hitch when visiting the newly constructed Grantsville library. The hitching post, donated to the library by Rosie Cupler, is being used by area residents Tim Bender and Cliff Schrock, seen above. The new library has also noted a change in its hours for the community. The library is open Monday, 11 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday from 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.; and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. April 16 will be the grand opening of the new library.

NHS-SHS HONOR BAND IN REHEARSAL — Not every event combining Southern and Northern high school students involves competition, as evidenced this week at Southern, where musicians from both schools have joined together to create the annual honor band. These accomplished players will present a concert next Thursday, March 25, at Southern High School, beginning at 7 p.m. Making music together has a number of benefits, such as the fun of creating a pleasing sound, getting to know new people, and even helping to break down the walls of division that sometimes go up between rival schools. The public is urged to attend the concert and support the young artists. The bands, both award-winning, are under the direction of conductors Rick Clever and Bill Robinson. Photo by John McEwen.

Partnership Kicks Off "Community That Cares" Effort

The Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families is implementing Communities That Care, a risk prevention program designed to help communities work out a plan for positive development of children, youth, and their families. Information on the program, including youth surveys and possible leadership opportunities, will be available at the upcoming Healthy Communities/ Healthy Youth conference slated for Saturday, April 3, at Garrett College.

"Communities That Care identifies and works toward eliminating risk factors that lead to adolescent problem behaviors such as drug and alcohol abuse, delinquency, teen pregnancy, school dropout, and violence," explained Partnership spokesperson Susan Athey-Oxford explained. "This plan includes maintaining and enhancing current programs in Garrett County that promote safe, stable, and healthy environments for youth and families, and possibly developing new ones proven successful in other communities that support these goals."

The Communities That Care planning system consists of training and guiding Garrett County through the five most critical steps in the prevention process, according to Athey-Oxford: community mobilization, needs assessment, plan development, implementation, and evaluation. The first two training workshops, facilitated by a representative of the Channing-Bete firm of Massachusetts, which offers the program, have been completed, and an organizational structure has been formed consisting of three teams of local officials: an assessment work team; a funding and board maintenance work team; and a community outreach and youth involvement work team.

The remaining three training sessions will occur over the next several months, with the next slated for April. "The teams are seeking public participation, and especially want youth to take an active role, Athey-Oxford stated, noting that the Healthy Communities/Healthy Youth conference will provide opportunities for interested citizens of all ages to join the effort.

The Communities That Care program is part of the Partnership's multi-year agreement with the state and county to help improve and maintain the well-being of children and families in Garrett County, Athey-Oxford concluded.

Persons interested in participating in the Communities That Care planning program may contact the Partnership at 301-334-1189.

Strategic Plan Presentation Set At City Hall

The presentation of the Strategic Plan for the town of Oakland will be held at a public meeting on Tuesday, March 23, at 7 p.m. at the Oakland City Hall. This is the rescheduled date because of inclement weather in January.

During the past year, community meetings have been held in conjunction with Terrell Ellis & Associates of Charleston, W.Va. Ellis has been assisting Oakland and other municipalities in Garrett County with the visioning and structuring of a strategic plan for growth and development.

The process has been designed to help identify development opportunities, community resources, and financing requirements in order to achieve the potential visualized by the communities' businesses and residents. The funding for this planning process has been provided by the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development's Community Legacy program.

Ellis will present the final Strategic Plan that was developed reflecting the results of the months of meetings, research and discussions necessary to develop the vision and the plan. Doug Devlin of Devlin Architecture will be joining Ellis in the presentation.

The public is encouraged to attend and participate.

MMEDC Invests In Helmet Maker Rain & Snow Inc.

The Mountain Maryland Entrepreneurial Development Center (MMEDC) has announced that Rain & Snow Inc., a whitewater helmet company, has successfully completed its near-equity financing through the Rural West Fund.

Located in Garrett County, Rain & Snow designs, manufactures, and sells its GratefulHeads™ brand of helmets in both national and international markets. All manufacturing of the product takes place in Garrett County.

The company is currently expanding its manufacturing capabilities and the GratefulHeads brand, and recently recruited CEO Richard Hill. He relocated to Garrett County from Georgia to lead the company's expansion efforts.

"Rain & Snows Inc. is well positioned to exploit current market demand in multiple segments of the adventure sports industry, and to enter entirely new markets outside the industry," said Hill about the near-equity financing completion. "We are extremely pleased to have completed this phase of our development efforts, and we are running furiously to implement our strategies."

The Rural West Fund is a near-equity capital fund wholly owned and operated by the Mountain Maryland Entrepreneurial Development Center Inc. The fund is designed to support the growth needs of regional companies located in Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties.

Rural West provides capital to support the development plans of companies that possess market offerings capable of penetrating national and/or international markets, while maintaining their local corporate headquarters, noted an MMEDC spokesperson.

Rain & Snow Inc. is the MMEDC's second completed transaction, joining Broadband Communications Corporation of Boonsboro in the Rural West portfolio.

More information about the Rural West Fund and the MMEDC can be found online at mmedc.org. Companies interested in financing or other services may contact the MMEDC at 301-777-9301 or via e-mail at grow@mmedc.org.

Jones To Be Inducted Into Hall Of Fame

Mary Virginia Jones has been named the third inductee in the 10th annual Garrett County Commission for Women Hall of Fame. She joins 2004 honorees Bea Crosco and Mildred Dunbar (whose announcements appeared in last week's issue). The induction ceremony will take place following the Hall of Fame breakfast at the Will O' the Wisp in McHenry on Saturday, March 20, at 9:30 a.m.

She was born in Rowlesburg, W.Va., but has lived in Garrett County for most of her life. Professionally, she was a high school teacher, but her lifelong interest in genealogy and the history of this area is the driving force behind her many and varied contributions to Garrett County, said a commission spokesperson.

Jones has been a member of the Garrett County Historical Society since 1941. She created the Garrett County Historical Museum, which opened in 1969, and served as curator for 16 years. During that time, she established the current methodology for preserving, documenting, cataloging, and displaying the museum's collection.

She was a member of the original building committee for the Ruth Enlow Library, and has been an active member of the library board for many years.

She has also been a member of St. Paul's United Methodist Church for more than 60 years, serving on many boards and committees. Jones was also a charter member of the Garrett County Republican Women's Club, the Youghiogheny Glades Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Order of Eastern Star.

She was appointed by Judge Neil Fraley as the only woman member of a committee to study the juvenile court system in Garrett County.

"Mary is truly the guardian of Garrett County's past," Fraley said.

Persons wishing to attend the breakfast may call Peggy Nelson at 301-387-0033. The cost of the event is $12, and check-in time begins at 9:30 a.m.

Pa. Man Given 30 Days In GC Jail For DUI

A Salisbury, Pa., man recently pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court to driving while under the influence of alcohol. Additional related traffic charges against Ricky Ray Winebrenner, 33, were dismissed when he entered his plea.

Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced him to 30 days in the Garrett County Jail, suspending all but 10 days of the sentence. A fine of $500 was also imposed. Winebrenner will be on probration following his release from jail.

He was charged by Maryland State Police in May 2002 after troopers observed him speeding in a truck in the Accident area. The troopers chased him to I-68, where he eventually stopped his truck.

After the defendant's vehicle was stopped, the troopers observed that he was under the influence and arrested him.

Grants. Cemetery Vandalized; Info Sought By Police

An incident of malicious destruction of property at the Grantsville Cemetery is currently under investigation by the Maryland State Police.

Sometime between 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, March 14, and 5:30 p.m. on the following day, someone apparently used a large vehicle, possibly a snow plow, to damage bushes and a water pump at the cemetery. A damage estimate was not noted in the MSP report.

Persons with any information about this incident are urged to contact the McHenry MSP barrack at 301-895-1101 or 301-387-1101.

Southern Garrett
High School Bands

Dear Friend of Southern Garrett Marching Band:

The Southern Garrett Band Boosters is asking for your help in our first new uniform drive in 17 years. With the life expectancy of a band uniform being 10 years, you can see the need to order new ones. So, in preparation for the next ten years, 70 band uniforms, one drum major uniform, and 16 color guard uniforms were ordered in mid-January with a price tag of just over $30,000, including shipping. Each band uniform costs $403 and includes a helmet and plume (and case), garment bag and raincoat. The color guard uniforms are $75 each and also have a garment bag and raincoat. These uniforms will be here for the fall 2004 season.

Knowing several years ago that the band needed new uniforms, the band boosters managed to save and raise enough money, when we could, to put aside approximately one third of the cost of new uniforms. This was used for the down payment when we ordered the uniforms in January with the balance due upon receipt of our order.

We' re now looking for public support to help us finish paying for this important project and hope that you and/or your organization/business will be able to make a donation to the new uniform drive. Any donation amount would be greatly appreciated and if you decide to donate enough money for a band uniform ($403) or more, we will see that your picture is put in the paper as recognition for this generous donation amount.

Donations should be made payable to Southern Band Boosters Uniform Fund and mailed to P.O. Box 124, Oakland, MD 21550, along with the form below. Thank you for supporting Southern Garrett Marching Band. If you have questions, please contact either Kathy Johnson (301-334-1226), Sheila Edwards (301-334-9344) or Cheryl Skipper (301-334-3178).

Sincerely,
Southern Band Boosters

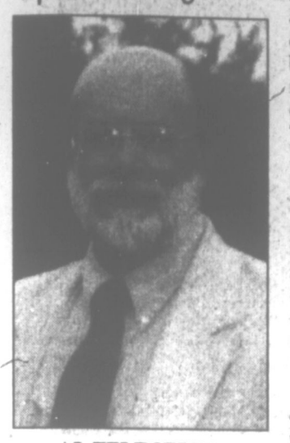
Historical Society Sets Spring Dinner, Speaker Program



AL FELDSTEIN

The Garrett County Historical Society has slated its annual spring fund-raising dinner for 6:30 p.m. Thursday, April 22, at the Pleasant Valley Community Center. Tickets for the benefit, which will include a guest speaker's program, are currently available for $20 per person at the Historical Society Museum in Oakland or through the mail (details below).

The guest speaker will be noted regional historian Al Feldstein of Cumberland, who has drawn praise for his local speaking engagements in Garrett and Allegany counties and beyond. The award-winning historian will show slides of historic sites and events in Garrett County.

Feldstein will also highlight the famed "Braddock's March" of 1755, when British Army Gen. Edwin Braddock and his subordinate, Lt. George Washington, led an ill-fated expedition that departed from Fort Cumberland in an attempt to reach Fort Duquesne (present day Pittsburgh). Their force was attacked by French soldiers and Indian fighters at Fort Necessity, where Braddock was killed and Washington suffered the worst defeat of his military career. The unit passed through present day Garrett County via the original National Turnpike (today's Route 40).

Tickets for the turkey dinner benefit may be obtained at the Historical Society Museum, located in the old Professional Building along South Second Street in Oakland. Mail purchases may be made be sending a check to GC Historical Society, P.O. Box 28, Oakland, MD 21550. For further information, persons may call 301-334-3226.

CHEMISTRY TEACHER HONORED – Sarah Steyer, chemistry teacher at Southern High School, was recently recognized at a dinner at Loyola College after an award-winning essay was written by Marianne Unger, a 2002 Southern graduate and Loyola student. Unger wrote about why Steyer was her most influential teacher. Steyer was presented a certificate and a clock for being named an "outstanding high school teacher." Steyer's "zest for teaching, love of science, and unquenchable thirst for knowledge" inspired Unger to nominate Steyer, she said. "I felt very honored and very grateful to Marianne for choosing me to be the subject of her essay," said Steyer.

Dump Truck Driver Cited In Accident

A Mtn. Lake Park dump truck driver was issued a traffic citation after he failed to yield to an oncoming vehicle on Decatur Street early Wednesday morning, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Jeffrey Gray Meyers, 39, Oakland, was making a wide turn onto Decatur Street because of the attached snow plow and failed to see the 2001 Ford Taurus traveling westbound on Decatur.

The Ford, driven by Beverly Sue Bowser, 37, Oakland, ran off the roadway and struck a tree to avoid hitting the dump truck, police said.

Neither driver was injured.

Bender Honored By Maryland Banker's Assn.

Lisa Bender, marketing teacher at Southern High School, was recently recognized as the runner-up Maryland Financial Teacher of the Year. A luncheon was held in honor of the award winners at the Governor Calvert House in Annapolis, where Bender received a plaque and a check for $500.

Maryland Bankers Association solicited nominations from principals and local bankers throughout the state. Principal Tom Woods and investment banker Rob Sharps wrote nomination letters.

Winners were chosen for their outstanding instructional techniques, classroom management, subject development, and encouraging students to develop a lifelong interest in financial education.

"[I am] very proud to represent Southern Garrett High School, and western Maryland in general," said Bender.

Bender had previously been recognized by the Maryland Council on Economics Education after her students won the stock market game on four occasions. She has been an advocate for financial education in Garrett County for 17 years.

"Financial education is an important part of the educational process. I try to convey as much knowledge to my business students as I can about being a smart consumer with a critical eye to marketing techniques and business strategies," said Bender.

She strongly advises students to compete for scholarship money by writing an essay on banking for the Maryland Bankers Association scholarship contest. Bender would be "more than happy to take interested students to visit the bank."

Driver Faces Charges After Fleeing Scene

An Aurora, W.Va., woman was charged after police located her at a nearby residence on Lynndale Road after she was involved in a single-vehicle accident Tuesday night, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Tina Marie Kemphfer, 26, was arrested and charged with driving under the influence (DUI), driving while impaired (DWI), DUI per se, giving false accident report information, and failure to reduce speed on dangerous highway conditions.

According to police, Kempher and her passengers fled the area after the accident that occurred in the area of Shady Dell Road.

Upcoming Events Discussed By Main Street Committees

Oakland's Main Street program has been "busy reenergizing" as it prepares for many upcoming events in town, and committees have been meeting regularly, according to Cherie Ross, Main Street manager.

The Design Committee is working on a manual of façade and streetscape information, sources, and design to assist business owners and building owners with projects.

While this is being finished, members are working with businesses who call and request assistance with their design and scope of work plans, whether it be for general façade improvement or historic tax rehabilitation credit plans.

The next Design Committee meeting is scheduled for April 7 at 4 p.m. at Oakland Town Hall. New committee members are always needed, said Ross.

The Promotions Committee is making plans to promote the Little Yough Summer Music Festival, Wonderful Wednesdays, May Day, and other upcoming events.

"Extra hands and ideas are always needed for this busy group as they continue to look for new ways to let the light shine on Oakland and Oakland events," said Ross. "A few new faces have recently joined our committee, and we thank all those who put so much time into this and encourage everyone else to come and give us a hand."

The next Promotions meeting is April 22 at 12:30 p.m. Persons are advised to call for location information.

The Economic Restructuring Committee has been completing the business recruitment packages. These packages contain information on Garrett County and the Oakland area, maps, economic and demographic information, and businesses already in the area.

These will be used as prospective businesses to the area are targeted for recruitment or by those businesses that have made some inquiries regarding moving to or establishing a business in the area, said Ross.

As opportunities arise, the group meets with prospective business owners and discusses their needs and works with them to match their needs with local needs and commercial availability, Ross added.

Persons who would like to help identify, recruit, or explore business opportunities in the area are invited to attend these meetings.

The Organization Committee is working on preparing newsletters, event calendars, and database information. Persons currently not on the mailing list and would like to be should contact the Main Street office to be added to the list.

Oakland area residents are invited and encouraged to participate in any of these committees. To help or to receive more information, persons may call Town Hall at 301-334-2691, or Cherie Ross at 301-616-3026.

Placating the Terrorists...

The terrorist bombing in Spain this past week, and more particularly, one of the apparent end results of that attack being a change in leadership of that nation, could have a far more devastating effect on the future of the world than many realize.

Obviously, for the loved ones of those killed and injured this was a tragedy of huge magnitude, and there is absolutely no intention here of somehow diminishing the heart-wrenching loss that those people are now experiencing. But the fact that the terrorists got what they wanted — a change in leadership of Spain — looms as a black, ominous storm on the horizon, literally for the rest of the world.

One of the first comments out of the mouth of the new Socialist Party prime minister of Spain is that he intends to pull all Spanish troops out of Iraq by July. While some may consider PM Zapatero's declaration a courageous acclamation for peace, many others, including the terrorists, will see it as a major victory for their cause.

This situation is similar to that of yielding to the demands of those who take hostages. As tempting as it is because of the great desire that no harm comes to the hostages, giving in to the demands only reinforces the actions of the hostage takers and encourages them to take other hostages again and again. In addition, meeting the demands is no guarantee that the hostages will be freed anyway.

Thus it is hoped that Spain's new prime minister will, over the next several months, carefully consider the likely ramifications of actually going through with pulling his troops out of Iraq. If he holds firm, and thereby placates the terrorists, it will be a green light for them to hit another of America's European allies in similar fashion, and another, and another.

With our own presidential election this year, coupled with the hatred of George Bush by the Middle East terrorists, it seems that the stage may well be set for, God forbid, another attack on our own soil this summer or fall, with the desired effect being the defeat of Bush in November. With that possibility, it is crucial that John Kerry makes it vividly clear to the world that, if elected, he too will stay the course in the war on terrorism.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

It was indeed gratifying to see that Willard Ringer was again a candidate for the Oakland town council, after having served in this capacity before. One has the idea that it must be his concept that sincerity in such a position has real merits.

In an age when some citizens, because of accumulated years of living, are dishonored because of that very fact – age – others believing that there cannot be much thought in progress when age in years is evaluated poorly.

I congratulate Mr. Ringer on his interest in various areas. He typifies what I tell some of my central Maryland neighbors – "The farther you go west in Maryland, the nicer the people are."

Margaret Michael Harless
West Friendship

To the Editor:

I have been asked some questions about the letter which appeared in last week's paper. I will only say that I had a lot of second thoughts about writing it, but my opinions are still the same.

The point I was trying to make, which a lot of people agree with, is that, especially in this area, your life is determined by who you know and what family you're from, not by abilities, experience, knowledge, or skills. I think that is something that needs changed. People need to be judged and treated based on who they are and what they can do, not what their last name is or how much money they make or who they know. Thanks for your time and understanding.

To the Editor:

Congratulations to Don Stemple and to all the Southern girls who were ever a part of one of his basketball teams! I called my daughter Meghan repeatedly during the championship game at UMBC to give her the play-by-play details. She was so excited! Her team tried to win for themselves and for Don several years back just as other teams have tried in the past.

Coach Stemple inspires the girls to give more than 100% for every game. He motivates them to achieve their personal goals and their team goals. Never give up! Don's philosophy goes well beyond the basketball court.

Thanks, Coach, for your gift to the Southern girls of this 2004 Championship Team and all the teams that came before. Thanks to your family, too, who have supported you through every dribble, every year, every team!

Sincerely,
Dayle Dabney

To the Editor:

Local government is mandated to adjust tax rates as tax assessments increase, or to hold a public hearing to justify their action not to adjust the rates. Such a meeting is scheduled for April 13. These meetings are becoming yearly events.

The tax structure is centered around a factor called the constant yield rate. Using this phrase implies that there is such a thing as a constant yield for property taxes. The existing system has become a farce, and has become a cash cow that is being milked dry by the county commissioners. They got away with it last year and they are trying to do it again this year.

In 2001, the total tax assessment was $1.619 billion, and tax revenues were $16.69 million; 2002, $1.70 billion, with tax revenues of $17.1 million (a 2.4% increase); 2003, $1.926 billion, with tax revenues of $18.6 million (a 14.6% increase); and 2004, $2.1 billion (est.), with tax revenues (est.) of $19.9 million (a 7.0% increase at existing tax rate).

These tax revenues far exceed cost-of-living increases and/or inflation.

Irate Garrett County

To the Editor:

Letter-writer Nick Drobac of Aliquippa, Pa., wrote (3/11) complaining about Social Security. He notes that his aged father has been drawing Social Security for 20 years, and it now exceeds his private pension. This is construed as a sign that something is wrong with Social Security. Perhaps nobody ever explained to Nick that social security was originally set up when life expectancy was below 65, so that not all that many people would draw from it, and hardly anyone would still be receiving payments 20 years later. The fact that today many people live beyond age 85 is the principal reason that Social Security is financially insolvent.

Nick Drobac goes on to blame President Bush for everything, including the inadequacy of Social Security. Was it President Bush who made all those people live longer? Hardly! His many other anti-Bush statements could just as well have been composed by any clerk sitting around the office of the Democratic National Committee.

Drobac also throws in the statement, "If SS can be preserved as former President Bill Clinton envisioned," Clinton did nothing to tackle the Social Security financial problem. The gigantic and repeated failing for eight years of the entire Clinton administration was that they postponed various urgent matters to become the next president's problem. Chief among those, as America found out the hard way, were Al Qaeda and the terrorists. Social Security was another issue on which Clinton punted.

George W. Bush is actually confronting the serious problems that Clinton left behind. For that he gets second-guessed by Kerry and gets cheap shots based on zero information from people like Nick Drobac.

To the Editor:

Thank you to David Foster for a lovely and inspiring story. What a nice gift to his sister-in-law and the community. I learned from my own healing from cancer what a gift and teacher serious illness can be. For me also, the cancer experience led to a path of appreciation and to seeing the bigger picture as life presents itself. It is too bad that we so often have to learn from trauma and pain, but it does help then to realize that even cancer can bring lessons as blessings.

I believe that one important message we all need to learn is the importance of self-care. Often cancer strikes those who give away too much of themselves, those who are always trying to meet the needs of others. To paraphrase David's Terry: People need to let others take care of them also. And as Terry put it, "Letting my family take care of me brings them grace and peace, and me too." This is a lesson I learned, too, from serious illness. And, I learned the importance of life style changes. Changes to bring nourishment to the body, mind and spirit – healthy food, lots of water, and creative activities with time for family, friends, and oneself. This is the real path to cancer prevention.

I can see that there is no time for peace and reflection in sudden accidental death, heart attacks, or death in battle. But there is peace in knowing that death is just a part of life. And there is time for reflection on the true value of life if we seek it.

Please, Joyce Schroyer, don't stop sharing your wisdom – don't give in to cowards. As long as we speak out we are still in the game. And, there in such value in seeing from many perspectives. For instance, many are saying the recent vote in Spain was giving in to the terrorists. I say it was honoring and listening to those who wanted the path of peaceful debate.

Sincerely
Cynthia Knight

To the Editor:

Some people achieve recognition, which while justly earned at the time, is also as quickly forgotten. Unfortunately, the achievements of a few seem to repeatedly slip beneath the radar screen. Those few, however, share certain traits: They repeatedly return to their tasks with the same sense of dedication, commitment, and challenge, despite a lack of full recognition. But such tenacity has its own reward in the end, albeit long delayed. This past Saturday, destiny became reality.

Our Southern girls' basketball team took us through probably the most remarkable season ever played by a Southern team and, for that matter, in the region. They played through the adversity of injury which would have sucked the life out of any team – except one coached by Don Stemple. They played without key players in a way that awed their opponents. They played banged up and hurt. But they always played with passion.

Taking nothing away from these remarkable young ladies (all 11 of them), I would pay homage to an individual who is indeed a rare breed of person. Over the years we, the parents and fans, have watched him go through the joys of victory (there were many of those) and the agonies of defeat (not many, but always at the wrong time) – his face always saying it for him: Half of any game was the play, the other half was watching Coach Don on the side lines reacting to good calls and bad, great plays and bad ones, but always... always with passion!

Yes, passion: "1.) an energy fueled by emotion; 2.) ambition with feeling; 3.) the act of pursuing a dream with all your heart."

Don Stemple personifies passion and has gifted it to countless young women over the years, a gift he possesses in abundance.

I feel it safe to say that those who traveled to UMBC this past weekend, or listened to the game on the radio, did so as much to cheer for a remarkable group of young women, as to witness the arrival of destiny long delayed.

Congratulations, Coach, you have definitely earned it. Thanks for coming back year after year committed to the young women you coached and guiding them so passionately toward their future.

Respectfully, a fan and former basketball parent
Tom Dabney

PS. Mr. Editor: As you know passion always has its victims – Coach Stemple is no exception. Perhaps you could find out and share with us, for the record books of course, just how many clipboards coach has passionately, but unabashedly, sacrificed on the basketball courts of the tri-state area over the years.

March is National Social Work Month and I'd like to tell you more about the social work profession and its role in protecting Garrett County's women, children, the elderly and other vulnerable citizens from the perilous spiral of poverty. The consequences of unemployment and underemployment also can lead to devastating social and health problems. To alleviate these problems takes a well-orchestrated

View from My Window

by Jeffrey Wilson

THE PASSION OF THE CHRIST

"Powerful," I said, describing Mel Gibson's film version of The Passion of the Christ. "Powerful is an understatement," was my 18-year-old son's reply.

Nick continued to reflect on the experience of seeing the film together. "I don't think people who don't believe in Jesus should see it. It isn't just a movie." Therein he described both the good and the potential evil of images.

Mel Gibson's movie is not merely a movie; it is an icon of Christ's suffering and death. The good of it as an icon is the vivid representation to the human imagination of Christ's sacrificial self-offering for the world. The potential evil is that the icon, the representation, can displace Christ's real, historical self-offering. In the word, idolatry is that potential evil.

Presbyterians, of which I am one, and other Christians of the Reformed Tradition live out of a historical commitment to iconoclasm, literally "the smashing of images." Our theological forebears took the Second Commandment literally – what is the second half of the First Commandment for other Christians – that we should make no images or likenesses of any kind whatsoever.

We emphasized the potential evil of idolatry because there are and have been so many instances of the potential evil becoming actual. As a positive statement we also wanted to clear the path of all obstacles so that the individual Christian could have access to God mediated by the person, historical and eternal, of Christ alone.

Reformed iconoclasm has about it the lover's abandonment of everything else for the sake of the beloved. The Calvinist Puritan flings the world into the trash heap in order to go altogether and naked to God through Christ in the Spirit.

There is a fly in the ointment, however. That clearing of the world's clutter so passionately undertaken by our Puritan forebears has become a vacuum which the worst of the world's forces have filled.

The lives of Reformed Christians still are largely empty of Christian images, but they are full of secular, pagan, and just plain pernicious and often disgusting images. No better example exists than the television which is situated like a household god, around which living room furniture is arranged and, often, without which no room in the house is complete.

Mel Gibson's Passion has raised old questions for Reformed Christians about images in our faith practice. I say this: Until we have purged our lives of all the non-Christian images we have no warrant to object to Christian images.

I suggest that one way to begin is to substitute Christian images for the non-Christian images. That can be as simple as installing a screensaver on one's computer (another constant tempter to pagan idolatry) with Christian images rather than secular images.

Last month we installed a crucifix in the sanctuary of the church where I serve as pastor. That event seemed to culminate my 21-year ministry there. Everything else I had done pointed to the moment when Christ crucified became the visual center of our worship.

This departure from the iconoclasm of the Reformed Tradition was made possible by personal circumstances. The crucifix was carved by a son of the congregation, and was dedicated to his 94-year-old father, an elder who is in church nearly every week (he took up the offering that morning) and to his late mother. As far as I know the crucifix has received universal acceptance in the congregation.

Then along comes Mel Gibson's Passion, which provides a kind of cultural validation of the particular crucifix in our church. With busloads of Protestants going to see that film at the recommendation of premier Protestant leaders, it is difficult to see what further justification there can be for the absence of the crucifix or other Christian images in Protestant sanctuaries.

Let the final word be "moderation." Calvin and his followers responded to an extreme of Christian imagery with another extreme of Christian iconoclasm. What a lovely thing in this Lent, if Christians, Catholic, and Protestant could arrive at a moderate appreciation for Christian images as encouragement to a living faith. I mean that both as a prayer and as an invitation.

Demos Blast Budget Impact; GOP Accuses Them Of Scare Tactics

by Danny Jacobs
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – Maryland Democrats criticized the Republican's proposed $2.41 trillion budget resolution for fiscal 2005 on Wednesday, forecasting cuts in everything from veterans' research to school funding in the state.

"The budget overall would have an adverse impact on our students, our families, and our seniors," said Rep. Steny Hoyer, D-Mechanicsville, one of five state Democrats who blasted the budget resolution days before the full House is expected to take it up.

The Democrats took turns saying in a conference call that the budget would cut or freeze funding for college grants, transportation, veterans' care and research, Head Start, Medicaid, and homeland security, including bioterrorism research, and port security.

"If we can't protect our first responders ... they can't protect us," said Rep. C.A. Dutch Ruppersberger, D-Cockeysville, who said the budget would cut $17 million for homeland security in the state. "We live in uncertain times, and this is not the time to cut homeland security."

But a spokesman for the House Budget Committee said that overall funding for the Department of Homeland Security would increase by more than 9 percent in 2005, and accused Democrats of using the threat of terrorism for political gain.

Maryland's Democrats "are crossing the line between partisanship and living in fear," said Sean Spicer, a majority staff member on the committee. "For the people of Maryland to think they are not protected is wrong."

The Office of Management and Budget also said in its review of President Bush's fiscal 2005 budget request that Maryland's share of federal dollars would grow 1.51 percent overall in programs that make up more than 80 percent of the total grants given to states.

But Rep. Benjamin Cardin, D-Baltimore, said that the increase will not keep up with inflation, and that the lack of money is best illustrated with specific programs.

"You have to look at what's there," he said. "The growth is so small."

Ruppersberger added that much of the money goes through the state, so the local governments that need aid do not immediately receive it.

Cardin said Democrats will offer their own budget on the floor next week during the budget debate that will include what he called adequate funding for homeland security and for the No Child Left Behind Act, while demonstrating "discipline on the tax and spending side." They said the Democratic plan would bring balance and fiscal responsibility back to the budget process – something they said is missing in the Republican plan that extends the president's tax cuts while doing little to address the deficit.

"The president said the war [in Iraq] was one our children and grandchildren won't have to pay for, but they will pay for it in more ways than one," said Rep. Elijah Cummings, D-Baltimore.

Hoyer said that under the Bush administration's tax cut, over 1.7 million Maryland taxpayers – nearly two-thirds of the state's total taxpayers – would receive a tax cut of less than $100 this year. The Democratic plan would roll back tax cuts for those making $1 million or more, said Rep. Al Wynn, D-Largo, with the resulting revenue used to fund existing programs and "put us back on a path to fiscal responsibility."

Cardin agreed, saying the growing national deficit is "the most important factor for Marylanders (and) is the most important factor for all Americans."

"It's the main reason that we don't have a budget that is fiscally responsible," Cardin said.

But Rep. Roscoe Bartlett, R-Frederick, noted that the budget resolution passed by the Budget Committee is a "non-binding blueprint." It does not specifically mention any federal education programs or Medicaid, he said in a prepared statement, but recommends an additional $1 billion in federal funding in lieu of higher fees for veterans. He said the Democrats were talking out of both sides of their mouths by wanting to decrease the federal deficit while at the same time wanting to increase program funding.

"Anyone can talk about the need to diet, but it's hard to lose weight if you keep ordering more appetizers, side dishes, and desserts," he said. "The federal deficit can never be reduced if spending is increased in every category, but that's what is being suggested."

Senate Gives Preliminary Approval To Spending Plan And Snack Tax

by Rolando Garcia
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – The Senate gave preliminary approval to a $23.7 billion spending plan that trims more than $170 million from Gov. Robert Ehrlich's proposed 2005 budget and includes a new 5-cent tax on salty snacks. The Senate only snipped the edges of Ehrlich's budget, which closes an $800 million shortfall mostly through tapping one-time revenue sources, reducing spending, zipping up tax loopholes, and hiking fees.

Anticipating higher-than-expected costs for Medicaid, mental health programs, and state reimbursements to local jails, the Senate made deeper cuts than those proposed by Ehrlich so there would be a surplus to cover those expenses.

"No area of the budget got a free pass," said Sen. Ulysses Currie, D-Prince George's, chairman of the Budget and Taxation Committee.

The Senate preserved the record $326 million spending increase for public schools in Ehrlich's budget.

Final Senate approval is expected Friday.

In the House, the Appropriations Committee is set to vote on its version of the budget Friday, with it tentatively scheduled to go to the floor the following week.

The Senate also voted to impose a state sales tax on snack foods, such as potato chips, nuts, and pretzels, which had been exempt since 1997. The tax break was granted after Frito-Lay had promised to expand its Harford County plant, but the new jobs never materialized, said Sen. Patrick J. Hogan, D-Montgomery.

"[In 1997] the money was rolling in, and had the state been in the fiscal situation it is now, we would not have repealed the snack tax," Hogan said.

The measures sparked vehement opposition from Sen. Nancy Jacobs, R-Harford, who complained the budget committee never held a hearing on the matter and that the tax could devastate the chief manufacturer in her district. The Frito-Lay plant employs nearly 400 people.

Frito-Lay had only delayed its expansion because it was still working with Harford County officials to get water and sewer services for the new plant, Jacobs said.

"If (the budget committee) had held a hearing, they would have known that," Jacobs said. "This caught us completely by surprise."

Sen. Andrew Harris, R-Baltimore County, a physician, objected to grouping nuts, which provide important nutrients, with other junk foods such as potato chips and pork rinds.

There was no wiggle room in the Senate's carefully balanced budget, Hogan said, and the $17 million in new revenue from the snack tax was essential. The most hotly debated portion of the budget package passed 25-21.

Ehrlich opposes the snack tax and will try to remove the provision from the budget as it works its way through the House, said Neil Bergsman, budget analysis director for the Department of Management and Budget.

"The Senate did a very capable job on the spending side," Bergsman said. "The problems are on the revenue side."

The $169 million surplus in the Senate's budget suggests the snack tax is unnecessary, Bergsman said.

The Senate also approved Ehrlich's bill to close the so-called Delaware loophole. Some corporations operating in Maryland have avoided state business taxes by setting up subsidiaries in Delaware to which they sell patents, trademarks, and copyrights. The parent company then pays its own subsidiary hefty fees for the use of this intellectual property, reducing its taxable Maryland income. Because Delaware does not tax intellectual property, that income is not taxed there, either. Closing the loophole will yield more than $90 million in new revenue annually.

Another $38 million in revenue approved by the Senate comes from Ehrlich's proposal to extend the county portion of the state income tax to non-residents working in Maryland. But the Senate rejected Ehrlich's bid to impose a $1,000-per-bed fee on nursing homes. Senators doubted the administration's contention that the federal government would reimburse the nursing homes so that the cost would not be passed on to patients.

The Senate's budget raises $227 million in new taxes and fees, compared to $187 million in Ehrlich's original budget request. The Senate restored $30 million to a local aid program that Ehrlich cut. The grants are intended to offset the loss of property tax revenue by mandated lower property tax rates near electric power plants. Anne Arundel, Calvert, and Prince George's Counties will receive the bulk of the funds.

The spending cuts amounted to small nips to most agencies, but some of Ehrlich's pet programs fell under the Senate's budget knife. Project RESTART, a criminal rehabilitation program highly touted by Ehrlich and prominently featured in his State of the State address, was pared back from $3 million to a $1 million pilot program in Baltimore City.

Although the Senate approved a balanced 2005 budget, the state will be facing a $1.2 billion shortfall next year, which could balloon to $2.2 billion by 2009.

Maryland To Get Lion's Share Of Federal Farmland Preservation Fund

by Jen DeGregorio
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – Maryland will get more than $6.1 million of an $84 million federal fund for agricultural land conservation, the largest share granted to any state this year and well over the $4.9 million the state received last year.

While Maryland is a relatively small state, the tenacity of preservation activists here over the years has helped it get the largest share in the nation of the Farm and Ranch Lands Protection Program funds for the last two years, a federal official said.

"In Maryland we've always had such ready and willing partners who will go out and do the grunt work," said Mark Waggoner, Maryland's resource conservationist for the Natural Resources Conservation Service.

And state conservationists say Maryland needs all the cash it can get in these tight financial times. The federal money "has become increasingly important as state funds have diminished, and their [federal program] funds have increased over the years," said James Conrad, director of the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation.

Conrad said that last year the foundation got $4 million of the state's $4.9 million allocation and used that money to save about 2,000 acres of farmland.

The federal money is awarded on a competitive basis to private and government preservation groups by state offices of the federal Natural Resources Conservation Service. Those groups, in turn, purchase easements in which farmers agree not to develop their property, but to keep it in agricultural production in perpetuity.

The farm and ranch preservation funds are matching funds, rather than full grants. That means an organization must prove that it has at least half the capital to buy an easement and meet a number of other criteria before it can get money from the federal conservation service.

The service Wednesday gave states the go-ahead to begin allocating this year's funds.

Conrad said his foundation has not yet applied for a portion of this year's fund. But he expects the foundation to again get the lion's share of the state's fund, and to use that money to save more acres than it did last year. He said his group will be competing for that money with well-established preservation organizations in larger jurisdictions like Montgomery and Baltimore counties.

For smaller counties, which have difficulty competing for federal grants, the farm and ranch preservation funds are especially important. Not only do they rely on the funds, they rely on organizations like the preservation foundation to bargain for the easements.

Caroline County, for example, would not have any conservation money without federal funds and the state organizations that help the county get them, said Tammy Buckle, the county's agricultural planner. "That money has helped here in the county to preserve additional acres that we could not have preserved on our own," she said.

But Conrad said it does not matter which agency wins the funding, since it is all going to farm and ranch preservation.

"The point is that the money's still coming and you're still protecting the same amount of lands," he said.

Governor Suggests Legislative Session May Go Into Overtime

by Stephanie Tracy
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – The General Assembly may be teetering on the edge of overtime, according to Gov. Robert Ehrlich, with a mountain of controversial bills yet to be decided and only 26 days left in the regular 90-day session. The governor said Wednesday during a press briefing he was concerned about the lack of progress on some important bills, especially medical malpractice legislation.

"I'm not threatening a special session, but we've tried to frame medical malpractice as a health care access problem," Ehrlich said. "Speaker [Michael] Busch has been very enthusiastic about the bill ... but I'm concerned if we don't make progress we'll end up in a dire situation."

House Speaker Michael E. Busch, D-Anne Arundel, said the House leadership has experienced just as many problems as the administration in stirring up enthusiasm for medical malpractice reform, and credited a bipartisan work group for its efforts in moving the governor's bill forward.

Ehrlich's proposal limits non-economic damages and redistributes and recalculates the cost of claims – all designed to put the brakes on rising malpractice insurance rates. The proposal is still being weighed by committees in both chambers.

The speaker also said House committees have made a concerted effort to work through the administration's agenda.

"The committees have been busting their backsides," Busch said.

The House has already considered the governor's proposal to clean up and redevelop abandoned property, an administration bill to levy a user fee on wastewater usage, and is scheduled to take up Ehrlich's transportation plan this week.

The budget, slot machine legislation, an assault weapons ban, and the governor's transportation package represent some of the most prominent issues pending.

The Virginia General Assembly – facing a similar budget crisis and the challenges of a divided government – was ordered into special session by Democratic Gov. Mark Warner this week after the House and Senate failed to pass a budget by the end of their biennial 60-day session.

Ehrlich also said he was concerned about efforts to restrict the governor's budget authority, calling them "troublesome." Those contentious bills included a bill passed in the House to constrict the Board of Public Works' budget-cutting power.

Another attempt to give the Legislature more control in the budget-making process was killed in the Senate last week, after strenuous lobbying by the governor.

"It's not a personal thing; it's more partisan," Ehrlich said. "It really goes to the culture around here."

The governor and lawmakers started the session on a discordant note – the Legislature reversed three vetoes, most notably the Maryland Energy Efficiency Act, within the first week.

The tension over Ehrlich's revised slots proposal only added to the rancorous atmosphere. The bill passed a Senate committee last month and a House panel is scheduled to take it up in about two weeks.

After meeting with Busch and Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert, the governor said progress was being made. Neither Busch nor Miller would divulge details of their recent meeting with Ehrlich.

"Loose lips sink ships," Miller said.

The slots bill calls for 15,500 machines distributed among licenses awarded competitively to three racetrack locations and three off-track sites.

Despite the fiercely partisan atmosphere in the Assembly, Ehrlich called for a measure of civility in the last four weeks of the session: "I would respectfully ask that these bills be voted on based on their merits and not on politics."

GCHD Initiating Walking Programs Throughout County

"Walking is an inexpensive way to exercise, and can be done alone or in a group," said Amy Ritchie, nutritionist at the Garrett County Health Department. "And you can start reaping the benefits by just walking 20 minutes a day."

Garrett County residents are gaining choices when it comes to walking opportunities, Ritchie said.

Shoppers at the Wal-Mart store in Oakland may follow a trail of footprints winding past the clothes, toys, and through the grocery section. Wal-Mart has teamed up with the Garrett County Health Department to provide a walking trail in the store. A person who follows footprints around the store five times has walked one mile. The walking trail is "open" from 5 a.m. to 10 a.m.

"While you are walking, make sure you read the health messages on the footprints," said Sadie Liller, outreach worker at the health department and the organizer of the Wal-Mart trail. "The messages give you tips on ways to stay healthy."

"The benefits of walking are endless," Ritchie said. "Walking makes you feel better about yourself and improves your outlook on life. It can also help lower your blood pressure and your cholesterol, and help control your weight."

Another new walking program will be starting in Kitzmiller next week, Ritchie reported. The first meeting will be on March 23, 6 p.m. at the Kitzmiller Community Building.

"The Kitzmiller program is a part of the Walk Ways program, and participants will be able to choose to do only the walking program, or combine it with a weight loss program," said Kathy Elliott, outreach worker at the health department and organizer of the Kitzmiller program.

Walk Ways is designed to promote walking and healthy eating. During sessions, individuals learn and apply healthful eating and physical activity information in their own lives, Elliot said. Between Walk Ways sessions, participants use pedometers to count the number of steps they take each day and learn practical ways to increase their steps so that walking becomes part of their daily routines. The health department is partnering with Maryland Cooperative Extension for this Walk Ways program, she said.

Another new event for interested walkers will take place April 17 at Deep Creek Lake State Park in McHenry. A walking race, called "Generation Fit, Steps to Better Health," will be a two-mile team race. It is to begin at 9 a.m. with a mini-seminar, and end with a mini health fair. A team must consist of a member 25 or under, a member 26-50 years old, and a member 51 or older.

In addition to the health department, the sponsors of this event are Frostburg State University and Queen City Striders. Persons may contact the health department for more information or for applications.

The Oakland Armory continues to be open for walkers Tuesday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Twenty laps equal one mile.

Participants in any of these walking programs are also eligible to join the "Just Move It" program of the health department. This ongoing program is free and open to anyone who lives or works in Garrett County. Applications are available at the health department.

Participants receive a free sweatshirt for logging 100 miles and a matching pair of sweatpants when they reach 1,000 miles. There are also incentives at 250 and 500 miles. Every six months, on April 1 and October 1, a drawing is held for a gift certificate for a pair of walking shoes. Participants' names are entered in the drawing according to the number of miles they have walked during the preceding six months, with one chance for each 100 miles logged.

To learn more about any of these walking programs, persons may contact the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-7730.

Two of the students will soon be completing internships at two local businesses – Garrett County Memorial Hospital and Cranberry Medical Center in Kingwood, W.Va. Another student will be furthering her training as a certified nurse assistant. "The training they've received in all the program of the Microsoft Office Suite would make them excellent candidates for any local employer," said Walters. On-the-job training assistance is available to qualified employers. Interested businesses may call Walters at 301-334-8136 for more information.

GOBA Presents New Brochure For Marketing

A new, full-color brochure designed to attract new businesses to Oakland was presented to the membership of the Greater Oakland Business Association (GOBA) at this week's monthly meeting. Featuring the train station and the town logo as well as the slogan "Oakland is a Great Small Town," the brochure is designed to be part of an overall package to be given to any prospects interested in opening a business within the community.

"It's all part of the overall strategic plan that we've developed with the help of our Main Street committees and our consultant Terell Ellis," said GOBA president Peggy Jamison. That strategic plan for Oakland will be presented to the community next Tuesday, March 23, at 7 p.m. in the Oakland Town Hall.

In addition to copy that describes Oakland's proximity to Deep Creek Lake and the offering of financial incentives, the publication contains graphics that highlight the area's growing population trends. It also lists the average rents in the downtown area as ranging from $5 to $12 per square foot, depending on the type of business operating in the space. Median home prices in the county seat are compared favorably to the rest of Maryland.

An insert includes two maps – one of the town and another of local recreational trails. In addition to the discussion about the new publication, some of GOBA's promotional plans were outlined. These include the "Wonderful Wednesdays" promotion that many downtown retailers have said dramatically increased the amount of foot traffic. The concept behind this promotion is to have entertainment and activities in downtown every Wednesday. Some merchants also offer special bargains on those days.

With the spring and summer tourist seasoning approaching, some downtown merchants discussed the level of their sales over the previous year. Blair Glass, owner of Marvin's Men's Wear, said the retail environment seems "pretty good" to him.

"The store owners downtown are careful to offer a unique service that the big chain stores can't match. As long as each of us does his or her thing well and offers a unique service or product, I think we'll all be okay. I'm pretty optimistic about the future," he said.

GOBA president Peggy Jamison agrees. "All businesses have their ups and downs, but through hard work, good marketing, and service, I think downtown is doing just fine," she said.

TEAMING UP TO GIVE SOMETHING BACK TO THE SOLDIERS – Proctor Kildrow American Legion Post #71 in Oakland recently joined forces with the local Wal-Mart Supercenter to provide assistance to wounded soldiers who have returned home from Iraq and Afghanistan. The Post raised $1,000 with a chicken barbecue benefit, and the Oakland store matched that amount. The funds were used to purchase personal care items – such as suit cases, coats, slippers, razors, and gloves – for returning soldiers hospitalized at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C. Pictured above, left to right, are Wal-Mart employees Gina Welch and Sharon Wilson with Legion representative Tom Bittinger as they prepare boxes of supplies to send to Walter Reed. The boxes were then loaded by Wal-Mart workers into two vehicles, which were driven by Bittinger and Carl Rebele, a Legion member and Wal-Mart associate, and personally delivered to the medical center. Bittinger and Rebele (far right) are pictured below with unidentified staff members at Walter Reed shortly after delivering the supplies. "Those brave men and women are shipped back as soon as possible; therefore, many are without any personal care items and effects during their hospital stay," noted Bittinger about the returning soldiers.

"Excellent Job"

Additionally, Smith has calculated it costs the county $49 a day to house an inmate. If 4,500 jail days are deferred to community service each year, however, the county saves $220,500.

Former coordinator Bill Ferry, who retired in January, began the program in 1999. Smith said when she began as its coordinator, not much change was needed. "The structure was there," she said, "I just polished it up."

Sanders noted, however, that Smith has been doing a lot of work researching other community services programs. She is also looking at Allegany County's home detention program as a model for establishing one in Garrett County.

Coming from the MSP side or the "lock 'em side" of the law, Smith said, she would not have thought that she would be in favor of home detention. But, she noted, it gives judges another sentence alternative and saves county governments money.

Home-detained inmates in Allegany County pay a maximum of $55 a week. A sliding fee scale based on an inmate's income is also used, Smith added.

Another cost saver to the county is that inmates with serious medical issues could be detained in their homes. Sanders noted that the county is responsible for the medical expenses of inmates while they are housed in its jail. Medicaid will not cover their expenses. It will, however, if the inmate is detained in his or her home, he said.

The sheriff noted that about half of the inmates have serious health problems. Many also have alcohol and drug addictions, which also add to problems at the jail, he said.

"We can't start today," Smith said. State legislation is needed before a home detention program can be implemented in Garrett County. She noted that it was too late to introduce legislation this year, but not too soon to begin planning for the next General Assembly session.

The coordinator stressed, however, that the legislation drafted needs to include a provision that gives the sheriff the authority to remove inmates from home detention, for whatever reason, and place them in jail.

The home-detention option would only be for certain low-risk offenders and could be set up to allow them to work at jobs outside their homes.

Smith plans to meet with the defense bar, state's attorney, and others to discuss home detention more.

"It's a very neat system," she said about the technical aspect. "Home detention may be new to me, but it has been around for awhile." In addition to Allegany County, several other Maryland counties use this sentencing option.

A vendor would provide an electronic box that works through the telephone line in the inmate's home. The inmate would wear an ankle bracelet that would alert the vendor when he or she is more than 150 feet away from the box. The cost of the system would be paid for by the inmate.

The vendor could also provide a "tox center" that could monitor an inmate's alcohol abstention requirement, Smith noted.

"The technology is sophisticated enough that we can keep these people in bounds, for the most part," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg.

"That's what sold me," said Smith.

Another thing to "keep on the radar" with home detention is state grant funding for construction of detention centers, said Smith. How many sentencing alternatives does a county have and how many of them is it using are questions considered in granting the funding.

In addition to coordinating the Community Service Program, Smith has also been looking at grant opportunities for various Sheriff's Office issues.

The Community Service office is located at the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, 202 South Third Street, Oakland, and is open for walk-ins at any time between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Groups interested in participating in the Community Service Program may call Smith at 301-334-1915.

Healthy Living

Editor's note: The following article was provided by the Garrett County Health Department.

REDUCING COLON CANCER RISK MEANS KNOWING PERSONAL AND FAMILY MEDICAL HISTORY

The removal of President Reagan's colon polyp in the 1980s brought colorectal cancer to national attention, as did current President Bush's colonoscopy in 2002. However, the idea that the average American should be concerned about colon cancer is just now catching on.

The American Cancer Society projects that in 2004 colon cancer will be discovered in almost 147,000 Americans, and will result in the death of almost 57,000. It is the second deadliest cancer (behind only lung cancer) in the Untied States. Over an average lifetime, about 1 in every 18 Americans will fall victim to this disease. Few people know, however, that age and personal and family medical history are significant risk factors for colon cancer.

"People over the age of 50, and those of any age who have a personal family history of colorectal cancer, benign adenomatous polyps, or inflammatory bowel disease, are at risk for the disease," states Rebecca Parks, RN of the Garrett County Health Department.

The parents, brothers, sisters, and children of persons are referred to as "first-degree relatives." If a person's first-degree relative has had an adenomatous polyp or colon cancer, that person's risk of developing a polyp or cancer can be two-to-three-fold higher than that of the general population. This risk increases to three-to-five-fold higher if an affected first-degree relative is under 50 years of age at the time of diagnosis. In cases where such family "links" exist, the average age of colon cancer onset is at least 10 years younger than for those at average risk.

Research also suggests that women who have a personal history of ovarian and uterine (endometrial) cancer are at increased risk of colorectal cancer.

Some people get colon cancer at a very young age for reasons unknown and totally unrelated to personal or family history of the disease. For those at increased risk for colon cancer because of personal or family medical history, screening should be stepped up. This includes a colonoscopy and more frequent screenings begun at a younger age, and at more frequent intervals. "Family history is extremely important to bring to the attention of your physician," Parks said. "Only by doing so can your discussion about colon cancer screening risk, recommendations, and screening options be appropriately personalized."

For more information concerning colorectal cancer and the availability of no cost colorectal cancer screening for qualifying individuals, persons may contact the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-7770 or 301-895-3111.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Today (Monday) was full of surprises. The first thing that I heard when I awakened was bird songs, a very pleasant surprise and something I could use more of. The next one was that I received a post card with a picture of the Casselman Bridge from Iraq, of all places! It was from my only frequent world traveler, Joe Volnakis, who is employed by various international aid organizations to set up their complex support wherever they provide aid. Apparently he is now in Iraq at work for USSAID. They don't have any post cards in Iraq these days so he found an old picture of Garrett County among his papers in one of his suitcases. Evidently he has free postage privileges with the U.S. armed forces. He did not say much about the present circumstances in that war zone. We, his friends, never know where he will pop up next or when he is returning to the USA, but many times he managed to get back for our past barn parties.

No one can say Joe V lives a dull life. But as widetraveled as he is, he still wrote on my post card that Garrett County is one of his favorite places. How strange it is that we have at least one on this side of the Atlantic Ocean, another of my dear friends, who is busy on the computer to send medical aid to the war torn Iraq, while there is another dear friend busy with the task of distributing that aid where it is needed most. I wonder if Jimmy and Joe will ever communicate directly on their computers.

We may be outside of the Beltway, but still Rock Lodge Road and Bittinger are "Maryland Terrapin Land." We had a few very intensive days during the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament, which is known as the most competitive conference in the country. Finally, after all these years since 1971, finally Maryland won the tournament. Every minute of the games was hard-fighting, as you can imagine. Maryland beat our arch rival from the old days when I was a Maryland student, that being North Carolina State, and then in the final overtime victory the seemingly unbeatable team, the Duke Blue Devils.

The joy when we win is not as great as the despair when we lose. But plenty of pulses were racing in this part of Maryland country. The tradition of phone calls to give a verbal high five were made. When I got Ellen Housley she didn't say anything, just squealed with delight.

She is also pleased that her mother got home from the hospital. Margaret is already kept very busy with visitors. Although she is recovering nicely from her surgery, she will have to return to the hospital for further out-patient treatments.

I hope we get a little early spring weather now for all of us to enjoy. Although it is true that this kind of weather is not as beautiful, with all the mud and dirty patches of snow, as real winter, it is still a good chance to really look at the shape of the bare trees. I even used seven exposures on the old shapes of some old maple and old apple trees when I visited the Grove to drop off a miniature rose bush at Ellen's house for Margaret. I thought it is better not to see her myself since I am still not completely over the cold I have had for last couple of weeks.

Brother Barry and cousin Courtney watched the big basketball game on Sunday at Rodney's house, although the Glotfeltys were not at home, and poor Carol Bass had to listen to it on the radio during a trip to Cumberland with Emma for one of her basketball games. My brother Barry will go to California for a conference about sewage disposable this week for several days. Talking about sewage sounds like a real laugh riot, but he prefers to call it the American Society of Agricultural Engineering. Sounds a little more deep or like a more sophisticated title, but he is the representative from Maryland for the big powwow about sewage. However, he said, "Sewage is no joke." The only real sewage joke I can think of is, "Flush twice because it is a long way to D.C."

I just got a couple hot news tips from all the way from San Diego, California. Lea Stanton called me to confirm it is definite that she and Michael will be moving to Ohio in August. She also told me that her father's mother, Lucretia Stanton, will turn 95 on March 24. Another big birthday will be that of Ida Reckner, who will turn 99 on March 20.

Lea and Michael got to attend an episode of "The Price Is Right." She was disappointed not to be chosen as a contestant. She is a big fan of that game show.

Claire Sussman and Blakely Glotfelty, along with the Bass family, attended the NHS Huskies' basketball banquet and watched their cousin, Matthew Bass, win the Coach's Award, as did Landon Southerly when he was on the Huskies' squad. Landon's mother Sheila and I agree that they should call it "The Bittinger Boy Award" because we raise some fine boys in Bittinger who are bright, hardworking, pleasant, eager to please, and dependable, just what any coach or teacher could want. Yes, our girls share the same characteristics too.

It is no surprise that my two NHS students chose their red Maryland Terp shirts for Monday's school day. Although they are younger and do not have so long of a history of being Terps basketball fans, they are the new generation, who are more enthusiastic than any of us old "fogies" can be. Caitlin used her lucky red bandana yesterday for the awesome win over Duke.

Thank goodness I got out yesterday before that wonderful March did its stuff. Yesterday I wanted to plant a few onion sets, but I did not get it together fast enough, as I awoke this morning not to birds singing, but what sounded like handfuls of gravel hitting my window. You could call this "winter mix" or sleet. Whatever it is, it is frozen, white, and just nasty.

But it gave the most wonderful gift to me – a whole day with my daughters. That is so rare and precious to me. I will even smile at this return to winter. But I still am worried about that old saying, "In like a lamb, out like a lion." Will we really have another truly real winter storm in the near future? I am afraid that we probably will have one. That would really be good for more skiing weather on the Wisp slopes. I remember one year during the last week in March brought so much snow that we had the best ski conditions of all that year.

The expression of Boo's face this morning when she stepped outside I could only call dismay.

It is hard to believe that this weather is bad enough to keep even Ruth DiPaolo at home, although she is still suffering from bad sinus problem and cough. Speaking of mothers, I heard from Ellen that her mother can eat almost anything she wants and she will have to put at least 20 pounds on her before she will have to go back to the hospital. So, all those great cooks and bakers in Bittinger, get busy and whip up something to deliver to her.

I checked my Buckel Store almanac for the current weather prediction. It did not call for this mess, but still it is a wonderful calendar. I grew up around that kind of a calendar and I am glad we still have one around. It is rare in these modern days that anyone has the good sense to preserve the best things from the good ol' days.

Maryland Arts Council Grants Are Available

Community-based organizations interested in producing and presenting arts activities in their communities are encouraged to apply for a grant offered by the Maryland State Arts Council, an agency of the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development. Under the Arts in Communities Program, arts activities like senior art exhibits, afternoon concerts, special after-school programs, theatre projects, and poetry readings are eligible for up to $1,000 grants. The program was created to extend Arts Council funding to a broader range of organizations than were previously being served and to better reach underserved audiences.

The Arts in Communities Program is open to not-for-profit organizations such as civic groups, libraries, museums, religious organizations, schools, social clubs, or other community-based groups that present arts programs which are open to the public and accessible to persons with disabilities. Grants can be used to pay artists, technicians, and individuals who coordinate arts activities, rent equipment for performances or exhibits, purchase supplies or materials, publicize arts activities, and meet other costs related to arts activities.

Arts in Communities grants are awarded four times a year. Organizations may submit only one application per deadline and may receive only one grant per fiscal year. The deadlines for fiscal year 2005 are: April 7, 2004, for activities taking place between July 1 and September 30, 2004; July 14, 2004, for activities taking place between October 1 and December 31, 2004; September 15, 2004, for activities taking place between January 1 and March 31, 2005; and January 19, 2005, for activities taking place between April 1 and June 30, 2005.

Completed applications must be postmarked on or before the deadline date and mailed to the MSAC office at 175 W. Ostend Street, Suite E, Baltimore, MD 21230. Applications may be obtained locally from the Garrett County Arts Council, the office which is located in the Gallery, 206 E. Alder Street,, Oakland; telephone 301-334-6580. Applications may also be submitted through the eGRANT$^{sm}$ system at www.msac.org. Hand-delivered applications will not be accepted.

The mission of the Maryland State Arts Council is to encourage and invest in the advancement of the arts for the people of Maryland. In 2002, the Maryland arts industry contributed more than $898 million to the state's economy and provided more than 16,000 jobs to Maryland residents. For more information about the Maryland State Arts Council, persons may call 410-767-6555 or visit the web site at www.msac.org.

RESERVATIONS GOING FAST FOR SPITFIRE GRILL – The phone is ringing at Our Town Theatre as folks make for reservations to see The Spitfire Grill. Performances of the musical are scheduled for March 22-27 at 8 p.m., and for March 28 at 2 p.m. (The March 22 and 27 performances are sold out.) "This musical is a celebration of small town life," said Jane Avery, director. "The story unfolds when Percy Talbott, a feisty parolee, follows her dreams (based on an old travel book) and arrives in the small town of Giliad, where she finds a place for herself working at Hannah's Spitfire Grill, the only eatery in the depressed town. The grill is for sale but there are no takers, so Percy suggests that Hannah raffle it off. Entry fees are $100 and an essay on why the person wants the grill. The best essay wins. Soon mail is arriving by the wheelbarrow-full, and things are definitely cookin' at the Spitfire Grill. The upbeat score and inspirational lyrics will gladden the heart and bolster one's appreciation of life here in Garrett County." Reservations are strongly suggested, and persons may make them by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640. Pictured pouring coffee is Connie Reams as Percy, with Hannah (Patty Brenneman) beside her. ## GLAF Season To Begin With Grand Dérangement

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) will present Grand Dérangement on Friday, April 2, in the Garrett College auditorium at 8 p.m.

Grand Dérangement is a multi-dimensional experience, combining theatre, dance, music, and song. Some of the group's credits are performances at Disney World's Millennium Celebrations with a 90-minute New Year's Eve Show at Epcot Center; touring extensively in Europe and North America; being featured guests on CBC television and radio shows, and being voted one of the three most popular international performers at the prestigious "Festival International de Lafayette," Lafayette, La.

The group has successfully created a distinctive sound, in its own image, said Beth Johnson, GLAF executive director. The group was formed in 1998, and has already traveled the four corners of the world. Their performances touch many Acadian and universal themes and are guaranteed to entertain and stimulate any audience, she added.

The group comes from small villages stretching along the shores of St. Mary's Bay in Nova Scotia. Their first album, Tournons la page became the launching pad for the group. In addition to traveling all over the Maritimes, they have performed in France, Belgium, Romania, and the United States.

The musicians of the Grand Dérangement unite their talents to create innovative music form, blending different styles to establish their own distinctive sound, said Johnson. The members of the group are Daniel LeBlanc, fiddle guitar and vocals; Briand Melanson, drums, percussions, and main vocals; Christiane Theriault, Janice Comeau, and Michelle LeBlanc, dancers; and Michel Thibault, artistic director.

Michel Thibault is the composer-songwriter and artistic director of the group. Daniel Le Blanc, the fiddler of the group, composes the reels with the assistance of band members Briand Melanson and Jacky Comeau. The compositions relate several universal and Acadian themes. Their musical style is based on Acadian traditional music to which they have added a rock flavor, a flash of Celtic and Irish influence and world beat rhythms, said Johnson.

Tickets are $15 for adults and $5 for youth, 12 years and younger. Seating is reserved.

Advanced ticket purchase is suggested by contacting the GLAF office at 301-387-3082 Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

This performance is made possible by sponsor partners Garrett County Self Storage, Total Biz Fulfillment, and Hobby House Press, and GLAF season sponsors Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty, Deep Creek Mountain Resort, and the Sprenger-Lang Foundation.

Mark Twain To "Return" To MLP This Weekend

The Mountain Lake Park Historic Association will host Mark Twain (portrayed by actor Richard Hill) at the town's museum in a historical re-enactment program and student art display set to get under way at 2 p.m. this Sunday, March 21, at the MLP Ticket Office. Refreshments will be provided.

Twain performed at the Bashford Amphitheatre during the height of Mtn. Lake Park's Chautauqua experience. Considered one of the funniest and most sought after public speakers in America's history, Twain undertook hundreds of speaking engagements that refined his story-telling skills to an art form before he gained widespread fame as an author.

The self-taught public speaker perfected his skills as an orator by attending lectures of famous figures such as Charles Dickens, and by studying how charismatic ministers held the attention of their congregations. Referring to the many hours of preparation that went into his presentations, which had the appearance of being totally ad-libbed, Twain once quipped that it took him "three weeks to make a good impromptu speech."

Hill has portrayed a variety of characters in numerous plays at Our Town Theatre, including Camping With Henry and Tom, The Man Who Came To Dinner, Seascape, and Smoke on the Mountain. Most recently he played the duel roles of Abe Jonkers and The Author in Valley Song by Athol Fugard.

Art posters created by Yough Glades and Dennett Road elementary school students will be displayed at the town museum, housed in the historic Ticket Office located along G Street off Route 135. Visitors will have the opportunity to browse through the museum before and after the presentation to learn more about the history of Mtn. Lake Park.

For more information, persons may contact Katharine Smith of the MLP Historic Association at 301-334-3249.

THE SCOREBOARD SAID IT ALL at the conclusion of Saturday night's state crown-clinching 41-31 win by the Southern Ram girls over Southside Academy. Despite scoring one of their lowest point tallies of the season, the Rams used a stifling defense and a board-clearing rebounding scheme to take the title with ease over the much taller Southside squad. The state champs are shown below during the long midcourt celebration that followed the contest, posing with the state trophy, player plaques, the recently shorn net, and assistant coach Fred Gregg in the background at left standing beside Southern head coach Don Stemple. Another celebration scene is pictured above to the right, where SHS principal Tom Woods is giving a hug of congratulations to senior Justine Pagenhardt (#10), one of many hugs going around after the final buzzer. # Ram Girls Rely On Fundamentals To Score First Maryland 1A Hoops Title

The Southern High School girls' basketball team claimed the 2003-04 Maryland 1A basketball crown over the weekend, capping an amazing and highly emotional post-season run by rolling to a 41-31 victory over Southside Academy in the state title game Saturday in Baltimore. The championship victory came after the Rams bested Loch Raven 61-50 in the previous night's semi-final match-up.

It has been a long time coming for SHS coach Don Stemple, and he reveled in the moment following the win over Southside. "Some of these girls are 17 years old and already have a state championship. I'm 62 and it took a long time for me to get one," the Rams' skipper said on the floor of the University of Maryland Baltimore Campus gym. "It's hard for me to put the feeling in words. It's just fantastic."

The "final four" tourney run for SHS showed some strengths of the squad that, while not lying dormant, had been overshadowed throughout the season by the Rams' high-powered point production on offense. Friday's semifinal win over North Region champ Loch Raven (19-7) came despite early foul problems for SHS as Stemple plugged in some reserve players from his deep roster, while Saturday's crown-clinching triumph was sparked by strong rebounding, along with trademark team defense.

The Rams' 11-point win over Loch Raven came after a shaky start. Despite moving out to a 13-9 first-quarter lead and a sizable 30-18 halftime advantage, Southern threatened to shoot itself in the foot by getting into early foul trouble against the physical Raiders. Stellar SHS forward Becca Flanagan was limited to just two minutes of play in the first half overall, after drawing her third foul with 5:34 on the clock and the Rams up by a 6-0 tally. Flanagan had scored Southern's first four points.

A foul shot by Jasmine Scheffel made it 7-0 with 5:27 left in the opening quarter. Loch Raven came back to tie the score at 9-9, and Sabrina Scheffel picked up her third foul for the Rams. The period ended with Southern leading 13-11. Loch Raven tied the score at 13, but then Gregg connected on the first of her two three-pointers. Two foul shots and another trey by Gregg had Southern leading 21-15 with 3:53 left in the half. After Brannan bucketed a three-pointer for Loch Raven, the Rams scored the final nine points of the half. A rebound follow by Brown with three seconds left gave Southern a 30-18 halftime lead.

SHS was up 48-31 after three periods, and with just over four minutes remaining the Rams held an insurmountable 61-33 lead. The Raiders, who played their starters to the final buzzer, scored the game's last 17 points.

Guard Robbin Gregg paced the Rams with 18 points, netting 14 in the first half alone. The senior also dished out six assists and snagged three steals. Flanagan, whose foul problems sat her down on the bench for over half the contest, still tallied 14 points and six rebounds. Fellow senior Justine Pagenhardt contributed 11 points and two steals. Sophomore Kendra McLaughlin came off the bench to contribute nine points and a team-leading nine rebounds. Sophomore center Caitlyn Brown came in to hit a couple of key buckets and also had five rebounds and four steals.

Loch Raven was led by Laura Queen and Kim Brannan, who scored 13 points apiece in playing the entire game.

"Our key was going to our bench, and those girls responded," Stemple observed. "Kendra and Caitlyn really stepped up when we needed them. Robbin and Justine held the fort when things looked shaky, as they not only scored, but they guarded well and gave us some excellent ballhandling."

South Region winner Southside Academy of Baltimore beat East Region representative Pocomoke, 59-49, in the other semifinal to gain entry to Saturday's championship game against SHS. The night could have had a homecourt atmosphere for Southside, which is located not far from the UMBC campus, but Garrett County fans packed the area with red and white, and loud cheers, for their Rams.

The contest was a defensive battle, "our best of the season," Stemple said afterward. "We held a team that was averaging 57 points a game to only 31. They took a lot of hurried shots and shots they really didn't want to take. Our girls also did a tremendous job of boxing

Outlander™ MAX 400 H.O. Quest™ MAX 650 Traxter™ MAX
Introducing the world's first ATVs designed with a passenger in mind. To create the Bombardier™ Outlander MAX 400 H.O., the Quest MAX 650, and the Traxter MAX, we had to rethink everything about the ATV. So we began with an extended wheelbase which positions both riders in front of the rear axle shafts for greater stability. Then we added a step-up rider/passenger seat and raised footboards for more comfort and control. And exclusively on the Outlander MAX 400 H.O., we offer an optional feature, the Convertible Passenger Seat/Rack System, which allows you to quickly convert from a two-rider quad to a one-rider machine with extra cargo capacity. So, whether you use your ATV for work or play, now you can take a passenger along for the ride.

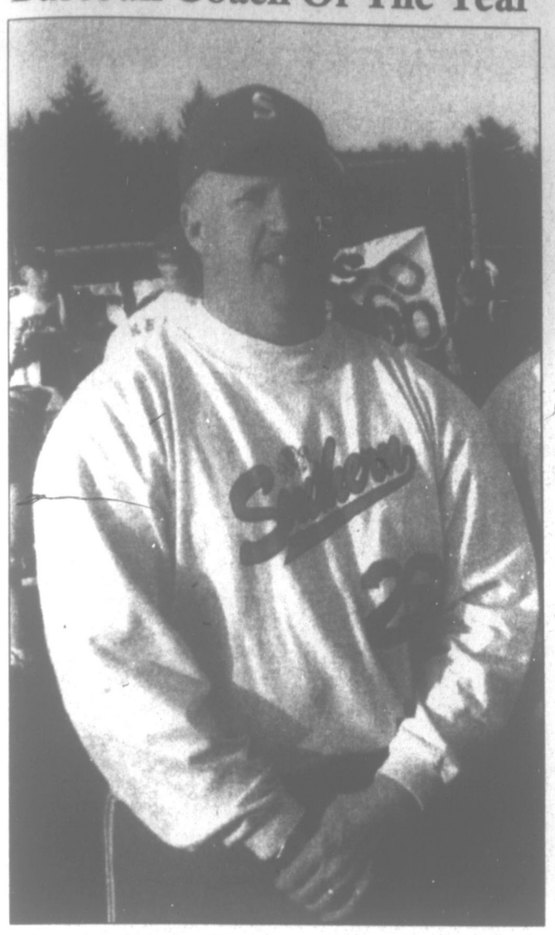
Jim Bosley Named Maryland Baseball Coach Of The Year



Two dozen years of hard work, and outstanding success, as head coach of the Southern High School varsity baseball team, was recognized in Baltimore on Saturday, where Jim Bosley was named the Maryland Coach of the Year.

Only one coach from all schools in the state (classes 1A through 4A) is so honored each year.

The announcement and presentation were made during halftime of the Maryland State 1A girls' state championship game, played at the University of Maryland-Baltimore County and won by the Southern girls' varsity.

In his 24-year tenure at the helm of the SHS varsity baseball program, Bosley's teams have amassed an overall record of 354-110, making him the most successful coach in the area and one of the winningest in the state, with a .763 percent success rate.

His teams have won nine of the 17 area championships ever awarded, and eight of nine Western Maryland Interscholastic League titles.

The Rams have also won several regional championships and have made five state tournament appearances.

"None of this could have been accomplished without good players, as well as an outstanding group of coaches over the years," Bosley said. "Fred Colaw, Ed Wildesen, Terry Helbig, and a few others helped get the program on solid ground, and my current coaching staff of Dan Holler, Steve Weaver, and Charles Plaugher, as well as our jayvee coaches, Tom Bosley and Greg Tressler, are second to none. So I think of this as a six-man Coach of the Year award.

"Besides good players and good coaches, I also credit this award to our community because of the great support it has always given to our program," Bosley concluded.

Bosley has begun his 25th season as the head coach of the Rams, who are slated to open their season Saturday, March 27, against Hampshire.

SMITH NAMED PRE-SEASON ALL-STATER — Southern High School pitcher Chris Smith has been named a pre-season All-State player, the first time a Southern Ram has ever been so honored. The senior left-hander is among just 15 players selected for the recognition by a vote of all the high school coaches in the state. The selections are made based upon a player's previous season stats, which in Smith's case included an 11-1 record. His 11 victories were the most by any pitcher in the state last year. Smith is pictured above receiving a plaque from Dave Norton, president of the Maryland State Association of Baseball Coaches. The presentation was made February 28 at Camden Yards in Baltimore. See story for details.

Southern's Chris Smith Named Maryland Pre-Season All-Stater

For the first time in the history of the Southern High School baseball program, one of the most successful in the state, a team member has been named a Pre-Season All-Stater.

Chris Smith, who set a school record last season and led the entire state in the number of pitching victories, is among 15 high school players in Maryland who were selected for the honor by a vote of coaches throughout the state. Smith was one of six pitchers in that group to receive the designation.

The senior lefthander finished last season with an 11-1 record, which gave him the most wins in the state and set a Ram record. In 61 innings pitched, he walked 32 batters and struck out 100, also a school record. His ERA was 0.92.

The first-team All-Area selection as a pitcher is also one of the top hitters on the Ram squad, having finished last season with a .298 average (17-for-57) with 15 RBI.

"Chris obviously had an outstanding year," stated his coach, Jim Bosley, "and he has an opportunity to do as well again this season. He has been to several camps since last year and has been receiving a lot of attention from Division I and II schools, as well as major league scouts.

"He is a hard-throwing lefty (mid to upper 80s) who has an outstanding breaking ball and change-up to go with his fast ball," Bosley said.

Bosley added that Smith, the 2003 Ram MVP, was the "main reason" Southern captured both the Area and Western Maryland Interscholastic League championships last year.

Smith and the other 14 honorees were all recognized at a special presentation held at Camden Yards in Baltimore on February 28. Presenting the awards was Dave Norton, president of the Maryland State Association of Baseball Coaches.

Smith, who transferred to Southern last year from Frankfort High School, is the son of Chris and Gail Smith, Swanton.

Bonser Included In Who's Who In Sports Publication

Robert Jeffrey Bonser, an 11th grader at Southern High School, was recently selected for inclusion in the 2003-04 high school edition of Who's Who in Sports, a national publication that honors outstanding achievement in high school athletics.

His accomplishments include Soccer Midfielder of the Year 2003, captain of the varsity boys' soccer 2003, Minds in Motion award winner 2001-03, and recipient of the Most Coachable award from the Internationals Soccer Camp in Ohio 2001.

He was a member of the track and field team in 2002 and 2003. He has been on the distinguished honor roll and regular honor roll each year during high school, and was the German Student of the Year in 2002.

Athletes are selected based on their athletic achievement from the nearly 7 million students who participate in competitive athletics.

Who's Who in Sports has been honoring high school athletic achievement for 25 years, and is one of the leading sports publications of its kind in the nation, according to a spokesperson.

Lakers Fall To 0-3, But Then Crush PG Owls, 17-0

The baseball team of Garrett College dipped to 0-3 this past week before erupting for 17 runs and recording its first win, 17-0, in the nightcap of a doubleheader with Prince George's CC, played Saturday in Largo.

Previous to that win, the Lakers were hammered by host Allegany College of Maryland in a single game played last Thursday, 13-1, and were nipped in the first game of Saturday's twinbill with the PG Owls, 3-2.

Freshman Allegany hurler Pat McKitrick all but shut down the Laker bats last Thursday, as he tossed seven innings, struck out 11, and gave up just one walk.

All nine starters for Allegany recorded at least one hit, with Jason Cunningham smacking a three-run homer and a two-run double, and Todd Shickling stroking three hits, including a two-run blast.

It was the Trojans' season opener.

The Lakers finished with a 6-5 edge in hits in the first game against the Prince George's Owls on Saturday, but the home team broke a 2-2 tie with a run in the bottom of the seventh to win the contest.

Garrett was trailing 2-0, but then knotted the score at 2-2 in the top of the seventh. Nic Morris hit a double and a single, while Giancarlo Silvestri and Dan Arenas each contributed a double.

Former Southern High School standout Tobi Stoner earned the complete-game win on the mound in the nightcap, which was called after five innings because of the 10-run rule. Stoner fanned six batters, gave up just two hits, and walked none.

The Lakers were up 6-0 going into the top of the fifth, which is when they recorded 11 more runs to seal the victory.

Silvestri had four of the Lakers' 20 hits, with two RBI and two runs scored. Aaron Lowden had three hits, including two doubles; Alfonso Fortunato and Taylor Billingsley each rapped three hits; Morris had a double and a single for three RBI and two runs scored; and Arenas chipped in with two hits and scored twice.

The Lakers, who are 3-1 overall and 1-2 in the Maryland JUCO standings, will play at Frederick this Friday.

Lakers Cruise By Cavs In NJCAA Opener; Take On Scoring Machine Monroe Tonight

The unseeded Lakers made a big splash in the opening round of the National Junior College Athletic Association Women's Division II Basketball Tournament last night, as the Garrett College squad the swamped sixth-seeded Kankakee Community College Cavaliers 70-61. GC's trademark team effort was sparked by big games from speedy guard Jenna Bradford, who led all scorers with 25 points, and post player Tiffany McFarland, who dominated the inside as she netted 23 points.

There's nowhere to go but up for the Lakers, but they have a steep climb as the tourney moves into its "elite eight" tonight in Overland Park, Kansas. Garrett takes to the court at 7:30 p.m. (ET), and the Lakers will have to hit the floor running as they are matched up against Monroe Community College of Rochester, N.Y., the nation's top Division II scoring power and second-ranked defensive unit.

Garrett boosted its overall record to 27-4 with last night's win over Kankakee (22-11), the NJCAA Region IV champion. The Lakers went after the Cavaliers with a vengeance and, after the first half, was up 29-26. Garrett outscored Kankakee 41-35 in the second half en route to its nine-point victory.

Bradford's 25 points came on a 7-for-12 field goal tally and a superb 11-for-12 showing from the free throw line. The sophomore also grabbed a team-high 11 rebounds and snagged six steals to lead in that category. McFarland connected on 10 of 15 field goal attempts on the way to her 23-point showing. Ashley Liller scored eight points and dished out a game-high five assists, while LaSha Anderson had eight points and four assists. Lovarsha Knox hauled down eight rebounds.

Halftime: Garrett 29-26.
Three-point goals - Garrett 1-5 (Kennedy 0-1, Liller 1-4), Kankakee 3-27 (Rewerts 1-14, Hinkle 2-10, Johnson 0-1, Sunday 0-1, Hooper 0-1). Fouled out - none. Reboiunds - Garrett 44 (Bradford 11), Kankakee 48 (Lillard 13). Assists - Garrett 20 (Liller 5), Kankakee 13 (Rewerts 4). Total fouls - Garrett 17, Kankakee 18. A - 145.

Kankakee was led by Hillary Gribble's 15 points and Iva Milevoj's 12-point tally. Samantha Lillard took game-high rebounding honors with 13.

The Cavaliers were making their 11th national tournament appearance in the last 13 years. In 1995 Kankakee won the NJCAA title, and lost in the championship game in 1993 and 1996.

TONIGHT'S GAME

Garrett's quarterfinal contest with Monroe tonight promises to be the Lakers' toughest outing of the year.

Ranked fourth in the country and the third seed in the tournament field, Monroe brings a 25-2 mark to the contest, and the Tribs are in search of their second national title in the past three years. The Tribunes are the top-scoring Division II squad in the nation with a 90.7 points per game average, and are second in team defense in holding opponents to 41.8 ppg. GC is right on the Tribs' scoring heels with a second-best ranking of 89.1 ppg, which sets the stage for a high-scoring shootout tonight.

Monroe's two losses were to Kirkwood CC when Kirkwood was No. 1 in Division II and to Gulf Coast CC when that squad was No. 1 in Division I. The powerhouse Tribunes racked up some of the most lopsided victories in that nation this season, with scores of 145-16 and 112-16, for example.

MCC coach Tim Parrinello's career record is 241-22, and his Tribs are making their eighth straight NJCAA Tournament appearance.

Monroe's balanced lineup has a number of Division I quality players, with standout shooting guard Tara Walker leading the way. "She is the best kid we've ever had here," Parrinello said of the 5-9 Walker, who is averaging 18.4 ppg in very limited playing time as the Tribs rotate a very deep squad around the floor. Walker scored a school record 42 points in just 22 minutes of play against Erie CC in January. Arkansas, St. John's, Rhode Island, Hofstra, Buffalo and Albany are among the Division I schools pursuing Walker, who scored over 2,600 points during her four years at Marist High School in Jersey City, N.J.

Monroe's powerful lineup includes freshman point guard Renee Taylor, who is averaging 16.5 points and ranks No. 1 nationally in assists (8.9 per game) and steals (6.0); sophomore forward Melissa Gathers (13 ppg, 14.4 rpg); freshman guard Ashley McMillen of Penfield (9.5 ppg); sophomore forward Dezara Williams of Edison Tech (8.1 ppg); and reserve center Natalia Benton (8.9 ppg).

A victory would send Garrett into an 8 p.m. semifinal tomorrow and, the Lakers hope, a shot at the Division II national championship on Saturday at 8 p.m.

Lakers Scott, Stackhouse Are All-Region XX

Two members of the Garrett College men's basketball team have received post-season honors for their outstanding play during the just completed 2003-04 season.

Akeem Scott, a transfer student from CCBC-Catonsville, was named to the All-Region XX squad, as well as the All-Maryland JUCO first team, while sophomore Darren Stackhouse was also selected as an All-Region XX team member.

Scott, a 6' sophomore guard, averaged 16.5 points, 5.5 assists, and 3.2 steals per game for the Lakers.

Stackhouse, a 6-6 sophomore forward, led the Lakers in rebounding with an average of 8.3, and also averaged 12.7 points per contest.

The pair led the Lakers to one of their most successful seasons, finishing 26-6 overall. Coach Dennis Gibson's squad finished tied for second in the Maryland JUCO Conference with a 14-3 mark and was the runner-up in the Region XX tourney.

wake of an extensive investigation by the GBI, the Oakland and Connellsville police departments, and the Uniontown detachment of the Pennsylvania State Police. Several persons in the Connellsville area were interviewed as leads were being developed, and investigators have a suspicion that the matter is drug related.

The trio is accused of loading three Wal-Mart shopping carts filled with a combined total of $2,000 worth of electronics and other merchandise, and walking out of the store without paying. A store greeter witnessed three men loading the items into a 1990 Eagle Premier parked in the fire lane in front of the store, and the vehicle left the parking lot and headed north on Garrett Highway.

The Premier was soon spotted by state troopers in McHenry, who took up a pursuit, and in the vicinity of the Cove Overlook the car rammed two police cruisers, causing minor damage but no injuries. Police were forced to break off the chase at that point, and the vehicle continued north to Keysers Ridge, then turned west on Route 40 and fled into Pennsylvania.

The suspect vehicle was located the following morning in Uniontown, Pa., with some of the merchandise still in its trunk.

Southside took its only lead at 4-2 on a steal and lay-up by Lewis. Pagenhardt connected on a pair of three pointers and Gregg followed with a trey to give Southern an 11-4 lead at the 2:29 mark in the opening period that ended with the Rams leading 11-6.

A three point play by Flanagan gave Southern a 16-8 lead at the 4:43 mark in the second half, and the Rams took a 20-10 lead into the locker room at halftime.

Southside closed to within three points with the first seven points of the second half on two driving lay-ups by Lewis and a three-pointer by Lanier Brown. Jasmine Scheffel converted one foul shot, and Gregg went coast-to-coast for a lay-up for Southern's only three points in the third period, which ended with the Rams clinging to a 23-19 lead.

With Southern leading 27-23, Gregg came up with a key steal and got the ball to Flanagan for a lay-up to push the lead to six points with 4:58 left. Another driving lay-up by Flanagan made it 31-23 with 4:24 on the clock on the way to the final 10-point win that gained the Rams their first title in six state tourney appearances over Stemple's two-plus decades of coaching at Southern.

Stemple's players drew on some sound basketball fundamentals with aggressive defense and rebounding. Despite a pronounced height disadvantage, the Rams maneuvered and boxed out to a 52-37 rebounding advantage. Flanagan and Pagenhardt hauled down a dozen rebounds apiece, and Jasmine Scheffel grabbed seven boards.

Flanagan, who paced SHS with 18 points (the team's only scorer in double figures) and 12 rebounds, commented afterward that the Rams were more focused than Southside's players were. "It was a total team effort and not just one player. We have been working for this for a long time and it feels great," she said.

Pagenhardt and Gregg had seven points apiece, and Gregg also dished out six assists and had a pair of steals.

Tiffany Lewis scored 10 points, and Angela Speight had six points and 10 rebounds for Southside (17-5).

Pagenhardt, whose half-court buzzer-beater a week ago had propelled Southern over Poolesville in the West Region final and into the state tournament, commented, "When you play Southern basketball you have to play defense and that's the most important thing. We knew we had to stop their penetration and second shots, and that's what we did."

That's what the Rams had to do, because Southern's offense scored one of its lowest totals of the season. The Rams connected on just 14 of 48 field goal attempts for an uncharacteristic 37.5 percent, while Southside hit just 13 of 57 field goal tries for a miserable 22.8 percent and sank just 3 of 14 free-throws.

Southern, which closed the season with a 23-4 record and a 13-game winning streak, loses five seniors this spring to graduation, making the state title win all the more fraught with emotion.

"We've been working for this since the sixth grade," said Gregg who, along with fellow four-year starter Flanagan, joined the Rams' elite "Thousand Point Club" of career scorers this season. "We were just pumped up the whole game and determined to win, and really got after it."

effort.

Social workers in Garrett County support local policies that narrow the ever widening gap in access to supports that allow individuals to be self-sufficient. The Self-Sufficiency Standard is a calculation based upon a number of factors that determines how much income families need to make basic ends meet. But self-sufficiency also includes variables concerning the individual's level of confidence about the future, the belief that one can be effective in their lives, and have established their own safety net of resources and relationships to rely on when times get tough.

Social workers know that many people in poverty, especially single parents with children, need access to day care, low-income housing, mental health treatment, and legal, educational, and employment opportunities.

As a consolidated voice, social workers urge political action on promoting gainful employment with benefits, extending health care coverage, and many other issues crucial to ending poverty.

In addressing the issues of poverty and social justice, social workers help spearhead efforts to enhance human well-being by working within needy communities to organize and utilize their assets and combine them with additional resources to strengthen health care, education, and financial support systems.

Social workers use their training to advocate the principles of social justice and look beyond the symptoms of poverty to get at the root of solving this worldwide and local problem. It's a requisite for helping people to become vital, contributing members of society.

Sincerely,
Susan Athey-Oxford, MSW
A Garrett County social worker

To the Editor:

I belong to the Church of One.

My church considers spirituality a private matter. It does not proselytize. It does not impose its spiritual symbols on others or attempt to influence others with the rhetoric of its spiritual beliefs and values.

According to the Mountaintop Ministerial Association, only about 10 percent of the population of Garrett County attends any Christian church on any given Sunday. The association itself is comproed of pastors representing no more than 20 of these local churches.

The Mountaintop Ministerial Association facilitates regular prayers at public meetings of elected county officials and plans to erect a huge cross at a highly visible location on a hilltop near Oakland.

Its constitutional right to pursue the latter is beyond question. (The legality of the former is another matter entirely, and one more appropriately addressed through litigation than letter writing.)

Whether the association's cross erection project reflects good taste or sensitivity to the sensibilities of community residents is a relevant concern worthy of prayerful consideration, given the fact that 90 percent of the local population deliberately declines to attend church services on any given Sunday.

The association claims "no hidden agenda–just a deep burden for those less fortunate." It contends that its hilltop cross will constitute a "symbol of hope to the downtrodden, the beaten, the poor, the destitute, the homeless, the lonely."

It is remarkable and worth noting that the association seems to confuse the symbolic value of its public cross project in Oakland with that of the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor. Installation of a huge concrete dollar sign above Oakland with the inscription "In God We Trust" might be just as uplifting and perhaps less controversial (though hardly in better taste).

For many, the association's proposed monument will constitute little more than one more provocative religious symbol imposed on the public by one cult or another at nearly every turn in the proverbial road.

Let us pray…

Sincerely,
Ben Reston Swanton

To the Editor:

We are a group of moms and dads wanting to give our teens something to do with their spare time. We want to keep them off drugs, from drinking, out of jail, and from getting pregnant. We want teens to have fun and make friends between all of them. We want to give them a safe place to hang out, a place where they can be themselves. We also want to provide information for things they are interested in doing, such as a place to play ball, video games, swimming, etc. We're planning to get teens discounted rates for places they want to go and have fun, at least until we can get a permanent place to provide these things. Of course, this will take time.

As parents, grandparents, neighbors, and friends, our goal is to buy or build a big enough place to have a youth center, where all kids can come to have fun. We're starting with teens because they have no after-school programs and nowhere to go locally just to hang out with each other. This is what teens want, a place to hang out without being chased off.

We want the teens to know that someone is doing something for them instead of just talking about it for a change.

We went to Southern High School and handed out surveys to get feedback from the teens. This was a necessity. We wanted to know just what they want to do. They did not hold back their feelings or thoughts. This was great!

We want teens involved as much as they're willing to be to make this plan a success. We cannot do this without their involvement. We need their ideas, so, if they're telling you what they want, like, or don't like, let us know. We want this to happen as much as they do.

We as a community can make something happen with volunteers and donations. We hope to get everyone involved, whether you can volunteer an hour a month or 10 hours a day. We need helping hands to do this for our teens. Please keep in mind this is not going to happen overnight, but it will happen soon and be a success with everyone's help and support.

We would like to invite you to become a part of our planning group, T.E.E.N. Inc., whether it be as a volunteer or if you would like to give a donation. T.E.E.N. stands for Teenagers Expressing Entertainment Needs. Our address is T.E.E.N. Inc., P.O. Box 131, Oakland, MD 21550. If you have any questions, please contact Elaine Hinebaugh (301-334-2321) or Jeremiah Beard (301-334-8216).

To the Editor:

"Instead of Janet Jackson and gay marriage, the government should be concerned about its obscene half-trillion dollar budget deficit," commented C.W. Barron in the Feb 9, 2004, edition of the financial weekly that bears his name. President Bush took office with a $350 billion surplus and turned it into one of the largest deficits ever, due in no small part to his tax cuts! The president's 2004 deficit projection does not include any funding past election day for his invasion of Iraq.

The following week, N. Gregory Mankiw, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, said that outsourcing jobs (to India, the Middle East, and elsewhere) is, in the long run, a good thing for the U.S. economy. Mr. Mankiw predicts 2.6 million new U.S. jobs in 2004. He predicted 1.7 million new U.S. jobs in 2003; almost none were created. In his former capacity as a Harvard professor of economics, he would have been free to make any "predictions" he liked; however, as a member of the administration, his comments should have some basis in fact and some appreciation of the real world. Bill Seidman, chief financial commentator for CNBC, said on his February 19, 2004, segment that the addition of the 2.6 million jobs would only restore employment to the level in existence when Mr. Bush took office. He concluded by saying the financial community has no idea how Mr. Mankiw arrived at his projection.

More recently, Mr. Page, secretary of education, labeled the National Education Association "a bunch of terrorists" for taking issue with the president's No Child Left Behind policy. Unfunded federal mandates like No Child Left Behind simply shift the burden of taxation to state and local governments, thereby negating reductions on federal income tax.

Chairman Greenspan has suggested that Social Security benefits should be cut to balance Mr. Bush's budget deficits.

The president's tax plan, if completely implemented, would shift the burden of taxation from capital formation to wage earners (i.e., from large corporations and the very wealthy to the American work force, which has been a pillar of economic strength in this country.)

The foregoing suggest that the Bush administration is operating in a vacuum and completely out of touch with the American work force.

Coupled with the outsourcing of jobs, Mr. Bush's tax plan will erode the purchasing power of the American work force. Outsourcing now includes accounting, payroll, call center, and engineering positions, as well as manufacturing jobs. American unemployment and underemployment have not been this high since Herbert Hoover was president.

In the presidential campaign, Mr. Bush will say that the unemployment rate is dropping because his tax-cut plan is working. This claim is based on a statistical aberration. The unemployed receive benefits for up to 26 weeks, after which they are no longer counted as unemployed, whether they have found work or not! There were just 21,000 new jobs created in February 2004 and a meager 1000 in December 2003. As my college statistics professor often said, "Figures lie and liars figure."

GIRL WITH A PEARL EARRING

"Girl With A Pearl Earring" is the name of one of the most famous artworks by 17th-century Dutch painter Johann Vermeer, a contemporary of Rembrandt whose work received some moderate acclaim during his lifetime but who was not really appreciated until a few centuries after his death. The painting's subject matter is no more or less than its name implies, depicting simply a beautiful young woman, half smiling, her body in profile, her head turned playfully toward the viewer, with a blue cloth wrapped in her blonde hair and a large, smooth, teardrop-shaped pearl hanging from her left ear. The film by the same name marks an impressive big-screen debut for erstwhile British TV director Peter Webber, who, along with cinematographer Eduardo Serra, has imbued it with a look comparable to the style of the master's paintings: its dark, rich, layered tones, defined by soft candle lighting and a deeply naturalistic sense, convey a staid, contemplative, and, well, some might say, dull sense of reality.

Okay, okay, art lovers, back off; I'm not saying Vermeer's works are boring—on the contrary; their rich detail and devotion to perspective and light interplay make them quite intriguing—but you have to admit, most of them are not exactly action-packed. And neither is Webber's movie. Based on the novel by Tracy Chevalier and adapted for the screen by Olivia Hetreed, it is a quiet and deeply real film that will attract Vermeer scholars, lovers of the old masters, and those who read Chevalier's book, as well as anyone who enjoys genuinely artistic cinema for its own sake. But if you're interested in a thrilling plot, or even a decent romance, you may be somewhat disappointed. Webber's film drips with art, but it doesn't exactly inspire deeply felt emotion.

The film stars Scarlett Johansson (who recently impressed Bill Murray—and all the rest of us—with the easy sincerity she displayed in Lost In Translation) as an apparently fictional servant girl of Vermeer's (Colin Firth), who could have served as the model for the painting. The film begins in Vermeer's home of Delft, Holland, in 1665, where Griet (Johansson), a poor girl who is probably in her mid-teens, must leave her parents and go to work for the artist's family. When she arrives, she meets Tanneke the cook (Joanna Scanlan), who shows her what her duties will be, including scrubbing, cleaning, laundry, fetching water, and doing dishes. She also meets Vermeer's spoiled, pregnant wife (Essie Davis) and her aging mother (Judy Parfitt), who instruct her to clean the artist's studio only when he is not there, and not to touch anything. One day when she is scouring the studio windows, Vermeer discovers her and asks her to pose. Her interest and understanding of the way light and color work together inspires the artist, and he is soon letting her buy his supplies and even mix the paint, much to the chagrin of his increasingly jealous wife.

Her charms also work on a few other men, such as a young butcher named Pieter (Cillian Murphy) and Vermeer's wealthy, middle-aged patron, Van Ruijven (Tom Wilkinson), who is so taken with her innocent beauty he asks for a family portrait with Griet included as a servant. His intentions prove more dubious than it first seems, however, and Griet soon finds herself caught between the artist she respects, his suspicious family, and his oily employer, who makes it clear that he desires she do more than simply a model for a painting.

Some may think Johansson got this part because her name fits in so well with the nationality of the characters (actually, she is of Danish descent), but anyone who sees the painting for which the film is named will not disagree she bears more than a passing resemblance to the girl in question. Her nationality and even her looks are less of a factor, however, than her ability to portray Griet with the kind of quiet delicacy required for the part. Johansson and director Webber could have chosen to make the character more assertive; the girl in the actual painting could be construed as almost saucy in her expression, but she chose the more difficult route. Her quiet, faithfully servile demeanor, betrayed by flickers of an emerging sexuality and a higher, more intelligent understanding of Vermeer's gift, combine to ensure we would see her as an innocent but astute young woman—a delicate flower just on the verge of blooming, and aware of it—which makes the artist's insightful perception of her, and Van Ruijven's loutish misuse, all the more emotionally resonant. Consider the scene where Vermeer asks her repeatedly to wet her lips, and she, reluctant, chooses to do so without ever showing her tongue. This scene, at once conveying her desire not to tempt him and the seductive nature over which she may or may not have any knowing control, smolders with pent-up sexual tension.

Like all great art, Vermeer's "Girl With A Pearl Earring" —which, incidentally, is on display at the Mauritshius Museum of Art in The Hague—seems to convey more than is immediately visible on the surface. And thanks to the artistic abilities of Webber, Hetreed, Serra, and of Johansson, Firth, and the supporting cast, this film does that also. Just as its use of color and lighting recollect the intriguing beauty of Vermeer's multi-layered artworks, so does the screenplay, the exquisite acting, and the judicious, style-conscious direction bring to mind the depth of his subject matter. ★★★★

April 29, 1914 ~ March 18, 1996
God looked around His garden and he found an empty place.
He then looked down upon this earth and saw your tired face.
He put his arms around you and lifted you to rest.
God's garden must be beautiful, He always takes the best.
He knew you were suffering. He knew you were in pain.
He knew that you would never get well on Earth again.
He saw the road was getting rough and the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed your weary eyelids and whispered, "Peace be thine."
It broke our hearts to lose you, but you didn't go alone.
For part of us went with you, the day God called you home.

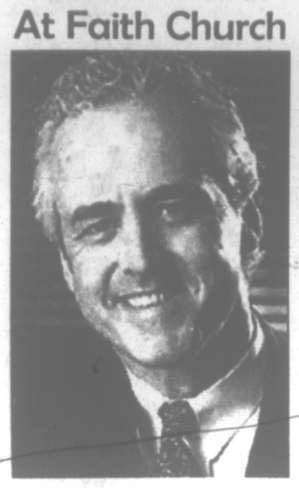
Deeper Life Conference Set At Faith Church



ROBERT BAKKE

The Deeper Life Conference of Faith Evangelical Free Church in Mtn. Lake Park is scheduled for Friday through Sunday, March 26-28. Services will take place at 7 p.m. nightly and 10:45 a.m. Sunday. Nursery care will be provided at each service.

The featured guest preacher will be Dr. Robert Bakke, director of the National Prayer Advance of the Evangelical Free Church of America, a post he has held since 1993. He is the founder and host of the nationally broadcast Concert of Prayer, an annual prime time television and radio special that airs on the National Day of Prayer.

Bakke holds a master's of divinity and a doctorate in ministry from the Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary. He served as a pastor in Connecticut and New Jersey churches for 14 years, and in 1987 he helped lead major prayer movements in New Jersey and the New York City area.

Those movements became the nucleus for the 1991 New Jersey Billy Graham Crusade, and Bakke served on the Crusade's executive board and held the position of Crusade prayer chairman. The one-day Billy Graham Crusade in Central Park drew 250,000 people for one of the largest religious gatherings in U.S. history. In 1993, Bakke completed a doctoral thesis titled "The Concert of Prayer: Back to the Future." Through extensive research in the archives of Princeton, Yale, Harvard, and others, Bakke came to the conclusion that famed early American preacher Jonathan Edwards' "Concert of Prayer" (1742) was a common denominator to three massive international awakenings, scores of nineteenth century revivals, and the modern missionary movement.

In conjunction with the Deeper Life Conference, the church will host a Ladies' Spring Luncheon starting at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, March 27. (See page B-2 for details on the Ladies' Spring Luncheon.)

Faith Evangelical Free Church is located at 1009 Maryland Highway. Further details on the three-day Deeper Life Conference and the ladies' luncheon, persons may call the church office at 301-334-4172.

Driver Charged, Three Injured In Vehicle Mishap

The driver of a 1990 Subaru sedan was charged and her three passengers were injured when she apparently lost control in the heavy slush on the road south of the intersection of Bittinger Road and Beachy Road Tuesday morning, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Patricia Ann Michaels was charged with speed greater than reasonable and driving with a revoked license.

According to police, Michaels lost control in the slush, traveled off the road, and struck a drainage ditch.

A passenger, Charlene Wood, and two juvenile passengers were transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries.

Bittinger firefighters also responded to the 9:45 a.m. scene.

Local Hospice Will Host 11th Teleconference On Alzheimer's

Hospice of Garrett County Inc. and Garrett College will join other organizations across the United States as a host for the Hospice Foundation of America's 11th annual Bereavement Teleconference, "Living With Grief: Alzheimer's Disease." This program, moderated by Cokie Roberts of ABC News, will broadcast live via satellite, Wednesday, April 28, from 1:30 to 4 p.m. at Garrett College in the Continuing Education building, Room 305.

An expert panel will discuss what is known medically about the diagnosis, progression, and treatment of the disease; explore some innovative programs for patients and caregivers coping with Alzheimer's; focus on the particular grief issues that patients and families face during the course of this illness; and examine the challenges and opportunities that Alzheimer's disease presents to clinicians, caregivers, hospice workers, and policy advocates. The panel also will discuss dementias other than Alzheimer's.

Reaching an estimated audience of 125,000 people nationwide, the live satellite video teleconference will benefit a wide range of professionals as they support their communities and help people cope with grief and loss issues associated with Alzheimer's disease.

Roberts will lead a panel of noted authorities to include: Kenneth J. Doka, PhD, College of New Rochelle; Parag Dalsania, MD, Veterans Affairs Medical Center; Lisa Gwyther, MSW, LCSW, Duke Medical Center; William Haley, PhD, University of South Florida; Richard Ham, MD, West Virginia University Center on Aging; Lin Noyes, RN, PhD, Alzheimer's Family Day Center; and Theresa Rando, PhD, Institute for the Study and Treatment of Loss.

Jane Sealing, Garrett County Hospice director of bereavement, explained that "grief and loss issues, which are unique to Alzheimer's, can be especially challenging for those caring for a family member or other loved one. By understanding the unique demands that family caregivers must face, we can work to support them and provide them with effective coping skills."

The teleconference is produced by Hospice Foundation of America, a nonprofit organization working to educate health care professionals and the families they serve on issues relating to illness, loss, and grief. The program is sponsored by the Foundation for End-of-Life Care, in cooperation with the Adventist Communication Network, Alzheimer's Association, U.S. Administration on Aging, and U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs.

Health care professionals, educators, clergy, and others concerned with the effects of Alzheimer's disease, as well as the news media, are encouraged to attend. For more information, persons may call the Hospice office at 301-334-5151; Grantsville area, 800-521-5252; or TTY 800-735-2258.

STOCK MARKET TEAMS RECOGNIZED BY BOARD – The top-seeded Stock Market team in the state from Southern High School and the team of sophomore girls that finished 27th in the 581 teams were recently recognized by the Board of Education. Lisa Bender's group of Michael Muenchow, Jimmy Hinebaugh, and Drew Taylor defeated 580 other teams throughout the state when they took first place. The group started with $100,000 and ended with $146,000 at the end of the 10-week game. Katie Nichols, Destiny Kitzmiller, and Sarah Ford made up the sophomore team, that earned second place honors for the Western Region. Prior to the start of the statewide competition, students attended lessons on the history of the stock market, its role in the U.S. economy, and principles of investing. Rob Sharps, a local stockbroker, visited the classroom to discuss investment strategies for short-term investors and lifelong investors. The students were taught to analyze companies through fundamental and technical analysis. They researched PE ratios, looked at quarterly reports, and watched the Federal Reserve actions during the game. Pictured above, from the left, are Jim Raley, board president; Bender; Muenchow; Taylor; Kitzmiller; and Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent. Hinebaugh, Nichols, and Ford were absent.

TRUCK REPORT

Bobby Hamilton and Mike Skinner put on the kind of finish the Craftsman Truck Series is famous for — Hamilton beat a sliding Skinner by a few feet to win Saturday's EasyCare Vehicle Service Contracts 200, the circuit's first at Atlanta Motor Speedway.

The two former Nextel Cup drivers swapped the lead several times in the closing laps of Saturday's race before a crash by Robert Huffman set up a two-lap sprint to the finish.

DID YOU KNOW

Ryan Newman, who started on the pole for Sunday's Golden Corral 500, needed only 84 starts to capture his 20th career Nextel Cup pole.

Slow at Vegas, Earnhardt sprints to victory at Atlanta

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Hampton, Ga.

It was the kind of mettle that wins championships. Dale Earnhardt Jr. and his crew rebounded from an embarrassing run at Las Vegas with a runaway victory in Sunday's Golden Corral 500 at Atlanta Motor Speedway.

"We went from hero to zero back to hero," Earnhardt said.

The victory was his second of the season — the other came in the season-opening Daytona 500 — and moved him from seventh to third in the season standings. But in between, there was the 35th-place finish at Vegas that knocked him out of the points lead, which he had held for two races.

"Last week was as bad as it ever gets," Earnhardt said, adding that he and his crew, led by his uncle, Tony Eury Sr., and cousin, Tony Eury Jr., "likely would have self-destructed" after such a disappointing run in previous years.

But this time, they remained calm and spent most of the previous week testing and trying to fix their problems.

"We're going to test and test until we can lap the field if we can, until we figure out everything we can know," Earnhardt said. "I'm determined and devoted to run like this every week, no matter what the cost.

"I don't care if I don't sleep in my own bed for two straight months. We're going to do what it takes."

Earnhardt started seventh and, except for one brief segment early in the race, ran in the lead pack throughout.

He brought the 125,000 fans to their feet on Lap 214 by passing a surprisingly strong Casey Mears to lead for the first time. Then, after a late-race round of green-flag pit stops, he drove by Jeremy Mayfield with 16 laps to go and won by a 4.5-second margin. It was his first victory at AMS in 10 tries, and the 11th of his 151-race Cup career.

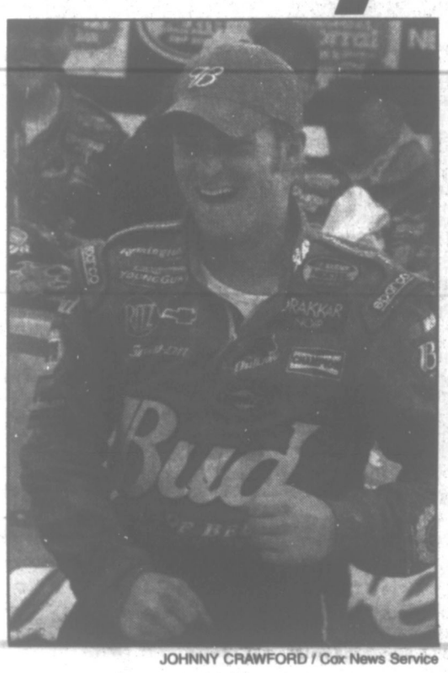
Mayfield took second ahead of his Evernham Motorsports teammate, Kasey Kahne. Jimmie Johnson finished fourth, ahead of Ryan Newman.

Mayfield said the difference in the end was that while his crew was flawless on pit stops, Earnhardt's crew guessed more correctly on their late-race chassis tweaks.

"I guess Junior and his crew made more aggressive adjustments," Mayfield said.

Points leader Matt Kenseth, who rode a two-race victory streak into AMS, bounced back from a poor qualifying effort and a spin on pit road to finish sixth. He will take an 82-point lead over Tony Stewart into the next race at Darlington. Stewart finished seventh in the 500 after leading a race-high 127 laps.

The early-season points race is beginning to look very much like the Busch Series title chases of 1998 and 1999. Earnhardt prevailed both times; Kenseth finished second in '98 and third in '99.



JOHNNY CRAWFORD / Cox News Service

A week of tinkering produced a faster car and a victory celebration for Dale Earnhardt Jr. and his crew.

Four drivers who entered the race in the top 10 in points suffered setbacks. Elliott Sadler and Kevin Harvick were victimized by ill-handling cars. Mears and Jamie McMurray blew engines.

"Wow, that was a bad day," said Sadler, who finished 29th, five laps behind, and dropped from third to eighth in the standings.

The wreck-free 500 was slowed only three times by the caution flag, and all the slowdowns were to clean the racing surface of small pieces of debris and oil on the track.

RACE STATISTICS

Average speed of race winner: 158.679 mph
Time of race: 3 hours, 9 minutes, 15 seconds
Margin of victory: 4.584 seconds
Caution flags: 3 for 17 laps
Lead changes: 16 among 8 drivers

Transmission troubles extend Wallace streak

By RICK MINTER and AL LEVINE
Cox News Service

Hampton, Ga.

Rusty Wallace's winless streak reached 102 races Sunday after his No. 2 Dodge expired with transmission trouble 34 laps short of finishing the 325-lap Golden Corral 500.

He came in 35th, after starting 11th. He had two top-10 finishes the past two races.

"We broke a fourth gear," Wallace said. "I've never had a transmission do that. The car was flying."

Sorry, we're closed

NASCAR President Mike Helton announced Sunday that pit road will remain closed the first time the cars pass by it when the caution flag is displayed.

The rule will apply to all three of NASCAR's top divisions: Nextel Cup, Busch and Craftsman Truck.

"We're going to leave pit road closed, and it's purely to make the environment safer, and at the same time, keep it fair competitive-wise," Helton said, explaining that drivers won't have to worry about catching up to the cars in front of them to keep from losing ground while headed to pit road.

Budding broadcaster

Could broadcasting be in Bill Elliott's future? Elliott was in the Performance Racing Network booth Sunday, adding his commentary to the radio broadcast.

He received high marks.

"Bill added a great deal of insight to our race broadcast," said Doug Rice, vice president/general manager of PRN. "He seemed very relaxed and had a lot of fun in the booth. Bill gave the listeners a different perspective than anyone else could deliver. He's a budding broadcaster and could become an on-air analyst with very little coaching."

Atlanta

It is one thing for Dale Earnhardt Jr. to have a cologne sponsorship slapped on the fender of his Chevy. But NASCAR's greatest anomaly ascended to unforeseen levels of crossover appeal this weekend, even by his own standards.

He met a couple, brokered a wedding ceremony and decided to serve as their best man.

"I was just hanging out in this bar in Orlando, and this guy asked a girl to marry him on the spot, and I was, like, 'Whoa,' " Earnhardt said Sunday. "Then he started asking where was the best track to get married, and I said everybody does it in Victory Lane. He said, 'That's where we're going to do it.' These people were going to drive all the way from Orlando. All I had to do was walk over from my bus. So I figured being the best man was the least I could do."

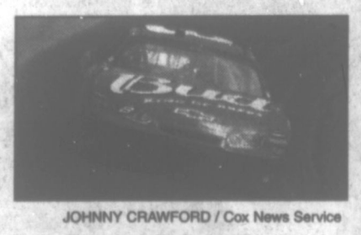
Earnhardt, whose deep friendship with the couple dates back five days, dressed for the occasion: jeans, a Budweiser hat and shirt, and sunglasses.

One day after Saturday's nuptials between Vinny Zeuli and Michelle Menendez at Atlanta Motor Speedway, Earnhardt made a second visit to Victory Lane. Mr. Earnhardt, by the power vested in NASCAR, we present you with your second checkered flag in four events and this week's bounce-back award.

There is something to be said for positive karma.

He speaks his mind. He drives. He endorses everything from Drakkar to Bud. He stands up as best man one day and wins a race the next, all without leaving the track.

And if the Vinny and Michelle union blows up, don't call Dale. It's just one of them weddin' deals.



JOHNNY CRAWFORD / Cox News Service

Dale Earnhardt Jr. led for 55 of the 325 laps in Sunday's Golden Corral 500, including the final 16.

INSIDE TALK

Young Kahne proving he can get the job done

A rookie who seems to do no wrong and a veteran on the rebound elevated their Evernham Motorsports team another notch toward Nextel Cup supremacy Sunday at Atlanta.

Kasey Kahne, the rookie who has posted three top-three finishes in his first four starts, finished third behind teammate Jeremy Mayfield, who was on the verge of losing his job last season because of poor performances.

Now, both are in the top 10.

The driver switch in the No. 9 from the semi-retired veteran Bill Elliott to Kahne and a change in crew chiefs from Mike Ford to Tommy Baldwin seem to be working.

"We've been real consistent so far — two seconds, a third and a blown engine," said Kahne in one of the great understatements of the season. "I'm working with a lot of good people, a lot of good coaches, and it's been going good so far."

KAHNE

The 23-year-old Kahne knows that his good fortune isn't likely to last forever.

"I feel like all the time, 'How is this happening to me?' " he said. "Things are going so smooth and so good, we've just got to keep the bad days away."

Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

PLAYING THE LOTTERY

Q – I've been buying a lottery ticket every week for 10 years, and have never won anything! Do you think it's rigged? If I skip a week, will I have to start all over?

A – The entire industry of gambling is based on the hope that people won't know much about the theory of probability. If everybody understood probability, lotteries and other gambling enterprises would wither away in no time at all.

Understanding the basic principle of a lottery is fairly easy: If they're going to give a million dollars to one person, then they have to take one dollar away from a million people. Or, they have to take a dollar away from you for a million weeks, almost 20,000 years. Plus a small handling fee, of course.

There are two essential new terms here: expected value and utility. In any gambling event, the expected value is the amount you receive if you do win, times the chance that you might win – the [payoff] times the [probability of winning]. If you have one chance in nine million of winning three million dollars, then the expected value is [$3,000,000] x [1/9,000,000] = $0.33, or 33 cents. If it costs you a dollar to play, then you have the certainty of parting with one dollar, which subtracts from the expected value of your winnings, leaving a net loss of 67 cents. The expected value of the whole transaction is -$0.67; that is, you "expect" to lose 67 cents, because you know you're parting with a dollar, but have an expected value of winning 33 cents.

When you go to a kids' sporting event and participate in a 50/50 drawing, 50% of the money goes to benefit the team, and the other 50% goes to one lucky winner. A lot of people throw in a buck, because it kind of helps the team and you don't really miss one dollar. Your expected value is a loss of 50 cents. Church bingo is roughly the same thing, where you plan on blowing $20 or so for the evening and don't really mind very much if you don't win.

This is where the concept of utility comes in, and it is an essential factor for sustaining any gambling enterprise. You assign a utility value of nearly zero to a single dollar, but you assign a very great utility to having the entire boodle of a whole lot of money all at once. Real gamblers don't sit down and do actual calculations like this, but you basically figure "If I had 3 million dollars, I'd be a hundred times happier than I am now." In that case, you get to multiply that 33 cent expected value by 100 (resulting in $33.00), and now it looks like a good bet. That is, you perceive it as a good bet explicitly because of the very high utility that you associate with winning.

Seen from the other side, whether it's a race track or a casino or the state government running the lottery, it is absolutely essential to their success that the individual gamblers have a highly distorted idea of the utility of betting. If not for that, individuals would have no motivation to gamble at all, because it's a losing proposition.

Meanwhile, the casino or the government has no illusions about utility: a buck is a buck. Money comes in and most of it goes out, but "we just keep taking our cut." The Mafia had a slogan "always pay off a winner," because they didn't want to run the risk of an individual gambler perceiving a lower utility value. Keeping people's hopes up is essential to getting a lot of action going, and with it a nice steady cut going to the one running the game.

No smart game operator would ever rig a game! For one thing, somebody with a terrific computer program might detect the irregularities and figure it out and then break the bank. More important, though, is that if people ever got the impression that it was rigged, their perceived utility would drop like a rock, and they'd quit participating. The state lottery draws in the most money when it's honest and dependable. The current controversy over installing slot machines at race tracks has to do with keeping the gambling money inside the state of Maryland, instead of seeing it go to West Virginia, Delaware, or Atlantic City, N.J.

Finally, it won't hurt your chances at all if you skip a week or two or 52. These are what is termed stochastic processes – each event has no memory of the previous event. If you flip a coin 5 times and it comes up heads every time, that's just an exceptional event, and the probability is still ½ that it will come up heads the sixth time. The numbers that come up in the lottery each time are totally random digits – if it comes out 123456 one time, that says absolutely nothing about what the number will be next time. That's a stochastic process. If you skip a week, your winnings are zero, but the certainty of your loss is also zero, so you break even – which is better than having a negative number for the expected value of participating.

To "break the habit" of gambling means to change your perceived utility value from a high value to a normal value, and to accept the simple statement that "a buck is a buck." It also entails forgetting the notion of "feeling lucky" and realizing that random numbers are indeed random. Once you realize these two things, you'll understand that gambling has a net negative value; and moreover, you'll realize that the state lottery is an optional tax that you don't have to pay.

'Smallville' hero started out as a model

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Tom Welling

Q: What other acting projects was Tom Welling involved in before being cast as Clark Kent in "Smallville"? He looks as if he could have been a model. –Becky Buller, Goltry, Okla.

A: A native New Yorker, Welling was discovered at age 21 by a catalog shoot scout who encouraged him to try modeling, a career that took Welling around the world for a few years until he decided he'd rather try acting.

He got his first big break in a romantic role opposite Amy Brenneman on "Judging Amy," a 2001 gig that expanded from three to six episodes after the character clicked with viewers. He also had smaller guest shots on "Special Unit 2" and "Undeclared" before signing for "Smallville."

The hit WB Network series, which films in Vancouver, British Columbia, keeps Welling pretty busy, but he recently squeezed in a feature film appearance in the Steve Martin-Bonnie Hunt holiday comedy "Cheaper by the Dozen." All in all, not bad for an actor who turns 27 on April 26.

Q: Who sings the theme song to the TV series "Sue Thomas: F.B.Eye"? I love it! –Carole Pilgrim, Orange, Calif.

A: That's Jessica Andrews performing "Who I Am" from her compact disc of the same title.

Q: During the early episodes of "The O.C.," Marissa (Mischa Barton) had a younger sister, but since the Julie-Jimmy divorce, no one ever mentions her. What happened? –S. Zerger via e-mail.

A: Nothing. A Fox publicist for the hit series assures me that Kaitlin Cooper, played by young actress Shailene Woodley in early episodes, is still very much an unseen presence there at home with her mom, Julie (Melinda Clarke), and there have been, in fact, passing references to the character, usually in the context of how she complicates her mother's schedule.

Woodley, who recently costarred with Ann-Margret in the Hallmark Channel movie "A Place Called Home," probably will continue to make occasional guest appearances on "The O.C.," but she never has been designated a series regular nor has her character ever been a key figure in the story lines – so far, at least.

Q: I understand that the first name of Shania Twain's husband is Mutt. I assume this is not really his birth name. What is his real name? –Barb Kranick, Oconto Falls, Wis.

A: Composer and producer Mutt Lange, who has been married to Twain since 1993, was born Robert John Lange in Mufulira, Zambia, on Nov. 11, 1948, the son of a South African father and a German mother.

Shugars Earns Previews Property Specialist Status

Goldie Shugars, a sales associate at Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty of McHenry, has earned the Coldwell Banker Previews® Property Specialist designation. To date, only 5 percent of the more than 90,000 Coldwell Banker sales associates have been awarded this designation, according to Ruth Seib, broker/co-owner of Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty.

"In addition to a demanding performance criteria based on successfully selling luxury properties, Shugars had to complete a prescribed certification course to earn the Previews Property Specialist designation," said Sieb. "The course covers topics such as developing a detailed market analysis for sellers of luxury homes and how to make use of Previews' resources to implement specialized marketing plans that will expose exceptional properties to affluent buyers on a worldwide basis."

Shugars has been affiliated with Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty for nearly 20 years and has been consistently among the top producers in the company, noted Seib. She is a graduate of the Realtors Institute, holds the Certified Residential Specialist designation, and has Coldwell Banker's Resort Property Specialist certification.

She has been actively involved with the Garrett County Board of Realtors, having served as president, director, and chair or member of numerous committees. Shugars has been selected by the board as the Realtor of the Year two times, named a Distinguished Sales Associate, and presented the Hope Award. She has also served on various committees for the Maryland Association of Realtors.

A member of the Christ Reformed Church, Shugars is also an active member of the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club, the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland, and the Maryland Historicity Square and Round Dance Club of Hagerstown.

She is married to Sam Shugars and has a daughter, granddaughter, and great-grandson.

Man Arrested, After Reported Fleeing On Foot

An Oakland man was arrested after police were advised that two males had been seen fleeing the scene of a single-vehicle accident on foot Thursday night near Garrett County Lighthouse on Oak Street, according to Oakland City Police.

A man walking along Route 39 was taken into custody for questioning, and it was discovered that he was the passenger in the vehicle. Russell Tasker of Mtn. Lake Park identified the driver as Reecle Calvin Horn Jr., 29.

Police located Horn, and he admitted to driving the vehicle and fleeing on foot, police said.

Horn was charged with driving while impaired, driving under the influence, and leaving the scene of an accident.

He was released on a $2,500 unsecured bond.

Garrett County Sheriff's Department K-9 assisted in the investigation. Oakland firefighters also responded to the scene.

Correction Noted

Some information that was received concerning the names of three students who were chosen as the Physical Education Students of the Month for January at Dennett Road Elementary School was incorrect.

The correct names are Hayley Chapman, Jaquelyn Rowan, and Max Bittinger.

Maryland Forest Association To Hold Workshops

The Maryland Forest Association (MFW) has recently broadened its advocacy to include individual tree health, and will hold a series of regional workshops with this focus.

All workshops will be held from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. on Saturday, March, 27, in Room T-105 of the Technology Building on the campus of the Allegany College of Maryland.

Each workshop will be held in conjunction with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the Maryland Arborist Association (MAA).

All workshops will discuss methods of incorporating forest fire protection into the urban landscape, seasonal timeframes for undertaking tree care activities, making property a healthy component of the Chesapeake Bay watershed, and reasons why a certified tree care professional should aid persons in their quest for tree health.

Additionally, professional arborists will demonstrate tree services in which their companies specialize.

Becky Wilson will represent the DNR, and Bob Meade of Meade Tree Service will make presentations.

Persons with questions may contact Steve Resh at 301-784-5307, or e-mail sresh@allegany.edu.

The Lone Cypress

This cypress tree standing by the sea appears as a lone sentinel guarding the shore. Yet, if you look closely, someone has built a wall around her base protecting her roots from harm. Perhaps she is not so alone at all, but striking, majestic and sure, standing against the horizon.

At times, we all feel alone. Perhaps we experience the loss of a close friend or relative; or we feel that they do not understand us. A serious illness can isolate us from our healthy peers. Yet, a wall of support can surround our soul as well.

That support comes from our Heavenly Father. Rose Kennedy once said, "I have always believed that God never gives a cross to bear larger than we can carry. Birds sing after a storm. Why shouldn't we?" Certainly, she lived her belief, for so many tragedies have struck the Kennedy family through the years. Perhaps this sense of peace was the secret to her longevity.

Don't you want to possess the peace that comes from faith in God?

1 Corinthians 14:33 assures us, "For God is not a God of confusion, but of peace." Won't you seek God at your church or synagogue this week? The protection of God's peace will surround you and keep your soul rooted in Him.

Blessed To Be Alive

Spring is the time of year that most reminds us of God's continual creation. With each new Spring, we realize that God has created a universe that continues to create or recreate itself anew every year. During this season, all of nature is on the verge of coming alive again, and we understandably think of Spring as a vestige of creation. But is not every dawn a vestige of creation, with new light breaking on new life each and every day? Indeed, to take this to its logical conclusion, every moment of every day is truly a new creation. The universe is continuously in the process of unfolding. To really appreciate each and every present moment is to glimpse God's eternal act of creation as it happens. To treasure and enjoy every new day and season that we are given is not only a blessing, but also a chance to grow in the love of God. The Bible tells us to lead a life worthy of the Lord, fully pleasing to Him, bearing fruit in every good work and increasing in the knowledge of God (Colossians 1:10). How blessed we are to be alive while God is creating His world.

Yet He is not far from each one of us, for in Him we live and move and have our being.

R.S.V. Acts 17:27-28

Certain Antioxidants & Fatty Acids Can Reduce Hay Fever Bouts

Consuming large amounts of certain antioxidants and fatty acids such as omega-3, can reduce the development of springtime bouts of hay fever, according to a growing body of evidence reported in the medical literature. While the risk of developing seasonal allergies can be decreased, one study is showing that consuming other antioxidants and fatty acids can actually increase the risk of suffering from hay fever. In the study, 334 adults with hay fever and over 1,000 adults who were allergy-free recorded their diets. Researchers then calculated the amount of fatty acids and antioxidants each person consumed.

Those who consumed large amounts of eicosapentaenoic acid (an omega-3 fatty acid) experienced a reduction in hay fever risk. But that trend did not carry over to those who ate a lot of other fatty acids such as oleic acid; surprisingly this group had almost 3 times the risk. A diet rich in vitamin E appeared to protect people from seasonal allergies while a high intake of beta-carotene, also an antioxidant, appeared to increase the risk.

Collecting
by Larry Cox

Q. I have inherited a large box of sheet music. Now that I am 81, I must find a new home for this collection. Can you help me? — *Betty, Pueblo West, Colo.

A. As you might suspect, most people collect sheet music for its colorful covers rather than for the music itself. I recently attended an auction and was amazed to see certain sheets of music sell for well above the $50 mark because of both design and subject matter. For example, collectors are especially interested in sheet music that features illustrations promoting sports, politics and comic characters. One of the better reference books for collectors is the Sheet Music Reference and Price Guide by Anna Marie Guileen and Marie-Reine A. Pafik.

A quick check of eBay found hundreds of pieces of sheet music available, including a 1913 issue of Irving Berlin's "Monkey Doodle Doo" ($45); Elvis Presley's "Love Me Tender" ($70); and an early copy of the 1895 hit "And the Band Played On" ($20).

Wayland Brunnell is an appraiser who specializes in sheet music. His address is c/o Clean Sheets, 199 Tarrytown Road, Manchester, NH 03103. Beverly Hamer is an established dealer. Her address is P.O. Box 75, East Derry, NH 03040.

Q. I am intrigued by a German dress sword that I own. It is in its original case and seems to be in excellent condition. — *Patricia, Jersey City, N.J.

One day, however, he opened the bill to find his charges had increased to 19,249 baht. Perhaps unsurprisingly, he had a heart attack on the spot and was dead before he even reached the hospital.

Aging Dogs Can Live Life of Riley

Dogs face a lot of the same problems as people do as they get older. They have less energy as time passes, and they often gain weight. They can develop arthritis, a painful stiffness of the joints (made worse by excess pounds). Dogs can even get a type of memory loss similar to Alzheimer's — they may not recognize their owners, understand basic commands or remember to go outside when they need to "go." They're also more susceptible to infections and can develop cancer in different parts of their bodies.

Sounds pretty grim, doesn't it? But there are ways to help an older dog have a happier life. Having a good relationship with its owner is a great start.

I'm reminded of an older neighbor who walks his aging chocolate Lab daily. They're the best of friends, and their ritual never changes. My neighbor will walk up the street holding the dog's lead, moving at a slightly slower-than-normal pace. When they turn to go back, the old Lab nuzzles her owner's hand — it's her turn to hold the lead. They walk home at a slow pace as the Lab tires, still holding the leash-end between her teeth.

Knowing your dog that well is a big advantage when dealing with advanced age. If your dog is in pain from arthritis or kidney stones, you'll know something's wrong and can take it to the vet. If memory problems or other disorders appear, you'll catch them early so the proper treatment can be started. So spend as much time as possible with your pet, even before the years catch up with him or her.

Driver Cited For Failing To Stop For Bus

An Oakland man was issued a citation after the driver of a school bus on Route 219 at Mountainside Drive documented the tag number of the vehicle that failed to stop for the bus's flashing red lights, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Garrett Halsey O'Brien, 19, was issued a $275 citation for the violation, and has the option of paying the fine or appearing in District Court. This violation carries three points on a convicted driver's license, police said.

In a separate incident, David Wayne Welch, 41, Deer Park, was arrested on drunk driving charges after failing field sobriety tests, police said.

He was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and driving on a revoked license.

His vehicle was stopped because it had an obstructed rear license plate.

County Native Named Autism Teacher Of Year

Judy Custer Falls, a native of Garrett County, has been named the Autism Teacher of the Year for the state of Virginia.

The 1977 graduate of Southern High School, who resides in Moneta, Va., was recognized March 5 in Richmond by the Commonwealth Autism Service, formerly known as the Autism Program of Virginia.

Autism is a developmental disorder of brain function causing impaired social skills, problems with verbal and nonverbal communications, and unusual or severely limited interests, according to the National Institutes of Health.

The Bedford County (Va.) school division appointed Falls, previously a special education teacher at Moneta Elementary School, its first-ever autism specialist about three years ago. Her duties include advising teachers and parents, as well as working directly with children with autism.

"Her work with Bedford County schools has been invaluable," stated Sara Staton, special service director for the Bedford County school division.

John Toscano, executive director of the Commonwealth Autism Service, said that Falls "really does exemplify that which we are trying to highlight – a combination of a tremendous amount of competency in working with children with autism, and energy and passion for the work."

Falls, who is the daughter of Hubert and Mae Custer, Sand Flat Road, holds an associate in arts degree from Garrett Community College, a bachelor's degree from Bridgewater College, and a master's degree from Lynchburg College. She is married to Ricky Falls, and they are the parents of two daughters, Caitlyn, 14, and Cori, 12.

Fresh Air Fund Day Named By Gov. Ehrlich

This summer, thousands of inner-city boys and girls will escape the hot, noisy streets of New York City to enjoy the simple pleasures of summertime fun in the country through free Fresh Air Fund vacations. In honor of the Fresh Air Fund's 127-year-old tradition of serving children, Gov. Robert Ehrlich Jr. has proclaimed March 20 as Fresh Air Fund Day throughout the state of Maryland.

Families who participate in the Fresh Air Fund's Friendly Town Program open their homes to New York City children for two weeks or more in the summer. There are more than 300 Friendly Towns located throughout 13 northeastern states from Virginia to Maine and Canada.

"By sharing their homes with New York City children, our host families tell us that they gain a new appreciation for their own communities and form relationships that last a lifetime," said Jenny Morgenthau, executive director of the Fresh Air Fund. "This year, we are looking for new host families in the Oakland area to continue our 127-year-old tradition of giving youngsters a summertime break from the sometimes dangerous city streets."

First-time Fresh Air visitors are 6- to 12-years-old. Reinvited youngsters can participate in the Friendly Town Program through the age of 18. Volunteers "simply want to share" what they have with city children and introduce them to the joys of suburban or country life, Morgenthau noted. "Families find hosting so rewarding that more than 65% of all Fresh Air children are invited to visit the host families year after year."

"Fresh Air hosts range from young families to grandparents," said Alice Orendorf, volunteer Fresh Air Fund chairperson in Maryland. "There is no age-limit. All it takes is the willingness to open your heart and home to a New York City child."

Treatment for Fungal Infection of the Nails

Fungal infection of the nails (medical term is onychomycosis), is a condition that affects up to 15% of the North American population. Although such infections can occur in the fingernails, most are found in the toenails. Fungal infections involving the toenails are associated with wearing tight footwear and for many, the use of public showers and locker rooms. It has been estimated that almost a third of all diabetics have a fungal infection of the nails due to circulation problems in the feet. The nail typically thickens and develops a yellowish-brown discoloration. A white superficial infection can develop on the surface of the nail. The infection can spread to other toes or the fingernails.

Although treatment of nail fungus can be successful, such treatment may take 9 months or longer. Recurrence of the infection is common. For white, superficial infections topical treatment with clotrimazole miconazole or terbinafine can be effective after removal of the infected portion of the nail. Lacquer like ciclopirox can also be effective topically. For deep, more involved infections that have reached the nail bed, oral medicine like griseofulvin itraconazole or terbinafine are sometimes prescribed.

MARKETING MAPLE SYRUP – Displaying the new Garrett County maple syrup containers is (from left) Cheryl DeBerry, Garrett County's agricultural marketing specialist, with Kay and Randall Steyer of Oakland, producers of Steyer Brothers Maple Syrup. Funding for design and production of the jug came from the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce and the Garrett County Development Corporation. See story for more details.

County's Maple Syrup Production Gets A Major Marketing Boost

Garrett County's maple syrup producers got a major marketing boost recently with the availability of jugs that identify the contents as "Garrett County, Pure Maple Syrup."

The words are embossed atop a scene that includes a sugar shack, a maple leaf, and a horse-drawn sugar tank on a sleigh with a farmer collecting maple water.

"We really do think that these will be a big help," said Kay Steyer of Steyer Brothers Farms, one of the region's largest maple syrup producers. "The initial response we're getting is very, very good. We're delighted."

Steyer, who married into a family that has been producing maple syrup in Garrett County for more than 100 years, said the syrup is being sold in local stores in and around the lake area in jugs ranging from one-half pint to one gallon.

Cheryl DeBerry, Garrett County's agricultural marketing specialist, said the $2,000 to design and produce the jugs came from the Chamber of Commerce and the Garrett County Development Corporation.

"A lot of people visiting Garrett County want to take a bit of the county back with them and this is a great way to do it," she said.

While the front of the jugs labels the syrup as originating in Garrett County, the reverse side has pictures of black-eyed Susans and a Baltimore oriole. The copy reads, "Garrett County lies nestled in the Appalachian Mountains of Western Maryland, home of Deep Creek Lake. The high elevation and cool climate make Garrett County a prime place to produce delicious, high quality syrup. The tradition of 'sugarin' as it is called here, has gone on for generations. Pure Garrett County Maple Syrup is delicious on pancakes, biscuits, buckwheat cakes, waffles, cereals, French toast, ice cream, yogurt, and fruit."

The jugs also list the size of the container and the nutritional facts of the syrup.

Friendsville Man Receives 30 Days For Bad Checks

A Friendsville man pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court last week to three counts of bad-check writing. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Daniel Curtis Warnick, 24, to 30 days in the Garrett County Jail for each count, which would run consecutively.

The sentence was suspended, and Warnick was placed on probation.

He was charged last April after three checks he wrote to a local business in December 2002 were returned for insufficient funds. Full restitution had been made prior to Warnick's trial, according to the state's attorney.

Chamber To Launch Spring Coupon Promo

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce is conducting its 4th value season online coupon promotion, "Spring Into Savings." Discount coupons will be displayed on the web site www.garrettchamber.com, which appears in all chamber promotional advertising. Printed coupons will also be available at the Visitors Center in McHenry for residents and visitors.

This advertising opportunity is available to all chamber members who wish to participate.

"We are looking for business owners who would like to increase their spring sales through this countywide effort that will run from April 5 to May 21," said chamber tourism marketing director Deb Clatterbuck.

She added that in order to gauge the effectiveness of the countywide sale, businesses will be asked to track coupon usage and report it to the chamber.

Coupons should offer a 25 percent discount or more and may include a logo and/or photo. Any business wishing to participate may contact Rachel May at 301-387-4386 or 301-245-4400, or send e-mail to rachel@garrettchamber.com by March 29.

Oakland Woman Faces Charges From MSP, OPD

An Oakland woman was charged by two police agencies in connection with an incident early Sunday morning that began with the report of a hit-and-run in McHenry and ended with a driving while under the influence charge in Oakland. The Maryland State Police and the Oakland Police Department cooperated in the investigation.

Evelyn Victoria White, 21, was stopped in Oakland at approximately 2:30 a.m. by an Oakland police officer who observed a vehicle matching the description of a vehicle that had been involved in a hit-and-run accident earlier at the Black Bear Tavern. The officer stopped a suspect vehicle on southbound Garrett Highway near Wal-Mart after noting it didn't have a rear license plate and there was damage to the rear bumper.

Further investigation determined that White had struck a parked car at the McHenry establishment and left the scene. White admitted to striking the parked vehicle and was charged by the state police for that offense, and was handed the DUI charge after her blood alcohol content was determined to be .15, almost twice the legal limit.

White was released on her signature to her parents, police reported.

The second course, "Computer Skills II," will be offered from 6 to 9:15 p.m. beginning Monday, May 3, and continuing for a total of four consecutive Mondays. This course increases the student's understanding of computers and operating systems. ## Number Of Garrett County Homeless At Record High

by Glenn Tolbert

The number of homeless people in Garrett County is at a record high as various care agencies, being hit by budget cuts, scramble to deal with those without a place to live.

There is a yearly total of 90 people considered homeless in Garrett County. Thirty of these people became homeless for a wide variety of reasons, according to Trish Yoder, executive director of the Mountain Top Mental Health Associates Inc.

"All of those homeless have a diagnosis with a mental illness. And there are 60 additional homeless who are not mentally ill. These are yearly totals with an average homeless population in the county of five or six at any given time. Some have been forced to leave their homes because they are out of high school and have burned their bridges with their parents. Still others have been released from jail with no place to go," Yoder said.

There are only a few homeless in the area known as "transient homeless" persons. Most of the total number of homeless are Garrett County residents.

The problem of homelessness and mental illness in general is aggravated by a $60,000 cut suffered by a program designed to provide the mentally ill with access to psychotropic drugs, as well as other client support, such as transportation and basic needs, including food and clothing. Once at $90,000, the budget was cut to $30,000, thereby depriving many of those in need of pharmaceutical assistance.

Many of those coming from jail with mental illness often have a high recidivism rate. "Some quit taking their medication and cause problems in the housing that was provided for them," Yoder said. "But more and more people with mental illness get arrested and wind up in jail."

The Mountain Top Mental Health Association, which Yoder heads, contracts with mental health providers for mental health services to inmates and parolees of Garrett County.

Perhaps as important to those in regional care agencies is a shelter in which to temporarily provide housing for homeless persons. Current methods of dealing with the homeless in Garrett County involves a partnership between the Mountain Top Mental Health Associates, the Garrett County Community Action Committee, and the Dove Center. Under this partnership a homeless person can stay as long as 15 days in a local motel while personnel from the agencies scramble to find more permanent living conditions.

"What we really need is a fully staffed, transitional-type housing shelter to house the homeless until the various agencies can address their needs for a more long-term solution and they can receive the supports they need to be maintained in the community," said Yoder.

HOW LONG CAN YOU WAIT?

You want the highest possible sale price for your home, but how long are you willing to wait for it? If you don't price your home right from the very beginning, you may end up paying dearly for it later.

Have you noticed a home in your neighborhood that's been on the market for a while, and the owners have reduced the price, maybe even more than once? Why wouldn't someone purchase a home that's been so drastically reduced?

Because one of the first questions buyers ask is, "How long has it been listed on the market?" You'd probably ask the same question if you were in their shoes. If buyers know that a home has been listed for a long time, they naturally assume that something is wrong with the house or property, or they assume that they can make a lowball offer to desperate owners.

Avoid putting yourself at their mercy by pricing your home fairly the moment it hits the market. That's when activity will be the hottest, and other agents and buyers will be most interested in the new listing. Don't ask too much now and then reduce your price after all the best prospects have come and gone.

Contact a professional real estate agent who will analyze comparable homes and your goals and motivations to come up with a fair asking price.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Nat'l Ag Week, March 14-20, Being Observed

National Agriculture Week, March 14-20, is currently being celebrated on both a national and local level. Additionally, March 20, the first day of spring, will mark National Agriculture Day.

American agriculture celebrated its first National Agriculture Day in 1973. "Since the beginning, Ag Day has been a chance for the general public to say 'thanks' to the hardworking men and women of agriculture," said agriculture marketing specialist Cheryl DeBerry, Garrett County Economic Development.

"Maryland farmers are stewards of the scenic open land that many of the state's residents appreciate and a few take for granted," she continued. "Farmers also work hard to ensure that consumers have a safe and local food supply. Our hard working farm families work 365 days a year on the land they love.

"Make the connection by supporting local farmers through your purchases. In doing so, you enable Maryland farmers to keep Maryland open, beautiful, and fed."

For more information about National Agriculture Week, persons may visit online at agday.org.

Produce Meeting Slated To Connect Growers, Buyers

In an effort to help produce growers increase their profits, the marketing staff at the Maryland Department of Agriculture will sponsor a produce buyer/grower meeting on Monday, March 29, at MDA headquarters in Annapolis in Room 110. Registration will begin at 1:30 p.m. and the meeting will start at 2 p.m.

This free program will enable farmers to meet the buyers from several grocery store chains, including Dave's Natural Markets, Fresh Pride, Giant, Safeway, Super Fresh, and Weis Markets. Farmers will have the opportunity to speak to the buyers one-on-one and will receive a handout with specifications for each of the stores. Last year, the Maryland Eastern Shore grocery stores sold about $600,000 of fresh produce, and the Maryland's Best program partnered with Weis Markets in a "buy local" campaign.

There will be opportunities throughout the day for farmers to learn more about the different services that the Maryland Department of Agriculture provides to growers, including the Maryland's Best, Shore to Store, and Farm Sense programs.

Registration must be made with MDA headquarters by the deadline of Thursday, March 25. Interested persons can obtain registration forms by calling the Garrett County Extension Office at 301-334-6960, or visiting the office at 1916 Maryland Highway, Mtn. Lake Park.

• NATIONAL • AGRICULTURE DAY

HONOR OUR FARMERS

March 20, 2004

MARYLAND FARMERS – PROVIDING MORE THAN JUST FOOD

Taking a Sunday drive across the Maryland countryside can quickly remind consumers where their food is produced. The sweet fresh air may sometimes harbor a whiff of a dairy farm nearby, or the eyes might catch a glimpse of beautiful, undulating fields of corn as the car whizzes by a grain farm. Whatever the path, agriculture is closer to each mile you drive than you think.

Saturday, March 20, 2004, is celebrated across the nation as National Agriculture Day, and aims to pay homage to the industry that provides Americans with more than just food.

"Farming is more than just food," explains Lynne Hoot, executive director of the Maryland Grain Producers Association. "Healthcare and personal care products, adhesives, crayons, paper, printing ink, and bio-fuels are just a few of the everyday products Marylanders use that come from plant and animal by-products."

Bio-fuels, like ethanol, are non-traditional agriculture products that are renewable sources of energy that benefit consumers, farmers, and the environment. "Ethanol burns cleaner than gasoline, resulting in better air quality," Hoot says. "While traditionally corn has been the crop of choice for mid-Western ethanol plants, Maryland grain producers are leaning toward ethanol production from barley – a winter cover crop that works to protect the environment."

Beyond food and fuel, Maryland agriculture generates a stronger economy by providing jobs. From the farm fields and the local hardware store to restaurants and baseball games, dollars from agricultural products are benefiting the community.

"In 2002, Maryland's 12,200 farms grossed nearly $1.7 billion in farm income," reports Norman Bennett, Maryland state statistician. "Multiply this along the chain of other industries agriculture touches and you can easily see that this number is much larger as it relates to the total state economy."

Farmers are not wealthy by any means. In fact, according to the Agriculture In Maryland – 2002 Summary, the average farmer only netted $18,270 from the farming operation, causing many farmers to look beyond the farm for other sources of income.

Farming is a labor of love that continues to provide more than just safe, great-tasting, nutritious, and affordable food for Maryland consumers. It's a business that works to preserve the environment, stimulate the economy, and advance research to benefit all Americans.

Three members also volunteered to participate in the West Virginia Angus Cook-Off on April 9 at Jackson's Mill.

The Rural Enterprise Conference at Garrett College on March 27 was announced, with youth participation urged. The club is continuing to collect pop tabs for Ronald McDonald House and Campbell product labels for Aurora School.

First-year member camp is May 7-8. A picnic table, donated by Preston County Assessor Terri Funk, is being raffled off, and three members volunteered to sell tickets. Proceeds help defray camp costs.

Jesse Schalker told of the three parts of a meeting, and demonstrated how he is making his project exhibit. Nathan Cussins' talk was about the history of tractors. Showing how a rocket works was Nathan Lawler's demonstration. Tyler Harsh named four types of sports fish and told where they are found and the lures to use. A food pyramid was used by Tracy Teets to show recommended portions of a balanced daily diet. Richard Norwish prepared "kits" for each member to construct a bluebird house. Sara Lewis gave out information on the placement of the houses, and how to provide nesting materials. This was an activity of the Conservation Committee.

Thirteen members, three leaders, and three parents were present. The next meeting will be April 12 at 6:30 p.m. at the Farmers' Wildlife Park, Horse Shoe Run. Cleaning the grounds will be followed by the regular meeting, with the Health Committee in charge of program and devotions.

Bike-A-Thon For Children's Hospital Slated In Terra Alta

Terra Alta and surrounding area residents are being asked to participate in a Wheels-For-Life™ bike-a-thon on Saturday, April 24, to benefit St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. The rain date is May 1.

Coordinated by Kelly Host, the event will be begin at 9 a.m. and start at the Terra Alta Assembly of God Church, which is located by the railroad tracks in Terra Alta.

"By participating in or attending the event," said Host, "you will help raise funds for this internationally recognized hospital. These funds will help St. Jude in its ongoing fight against childhood catastrophic diseases."

Students and residents in and near the town will receive sponsor sheets. They will then go into the community and receive pledges or donations for riding their bicycles in the event. Participants can receive a flat-fee donation or a specific amount per mile.

"I urge anyone who knows of a student or resident who is participating in this event to sponsor him or her," said Host.

Any business that would like to help by making a donation may contact her at 304-789-5141. Persons interest in participating in the bike-a-thon may also call Host.

"Our goal in holding this event is to help the children of the world who are stricken with diseases like cancer, AIDS, and sickle cell anemia," she said. "St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is a world leader in the fight against these diseases, and they have made great progress because of the help of people like the citizens and students of Terra Alta."

Located in Memphis, Tenn., the nonsectarian hospital was founded by the late entertainer Danny Thomas. ALSAC/St. Jude, the fund-raising arm, covers all costs not covered by insurance for medical treatment rendered at the hospital. Families without insurance are never asked to pay, noted Host.

Cultural Heritage Workshops Set In W.Va. Locales

A workshop titled "Destination Businesses: A Branded Marketing Approach for Cultural Heritage Tourism Businesses" will be presented at three locations in West Virginia next month. The offering is the third in a series of workshops sponsored by the West Virginia Cultural Heritage Tourism Program.

The three-hour workshops are set for 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 13, at Pipestem State Park; 2 p.m. Wednesday, April 14, at the Fairmont Holiday Inn; and 9 a.m. Thursday, April 15, at the John Brown Museum in Harper's Ferry National Park.

"The fastest growing segment within the tourism industry is cultural heritage tourism," said Scott Gerloff, CEO of the Potomac Heritage Partnership, a non-profit specializing in the field. "Cultural heritage tourists spend more money, come back more often, and are willing to pay more for extraordinary experiences, and West Virginia is perfectly suited to take advantage of this opportunity."

A specialist in heritage tourism, Gerloff will be one of the workshop presenters who will provide information on how businesses can connect directly with these tourists. The main speaker will be marketing consultant Jon Schallert, a nationally recognized expert in destination business strategies. Schallert's session will teach business owners how to focus on creating an effective brand, capable of drawing tourists from hundreds of miles way. Cost effective and high impact marketing and promotional strategies will also be discussed.

Friendsville Mayor Faces Assault, Fleeing Charges

Friendsville mayor Spencer Ray Schlosnagle faces charges of second degree assault, fleeing and eluding, and speeding filed by a Maryland State Police trooper who pursued Schlosnagle's vehicle through Grantsville last Thursday afternoon, March 18, before making a traffic stop on Dorsey Hotel Road.

State Police said that at 2:15 p.m. a Jeep was clocked by radar traveling at 79 miles per hour on eastbound Interstate 68 west of Amish Road. When the trooper stepped out into a traffic lane to flag the vehicle down, it slowed down on the shoulder, but the driver yelled something to the trooper and pulled back onto the highway and sped away. The trooper immediately got into his unmarked cruiser, and a chase ensued that eventually led to the exit ramp at Bittinger Road, where the Jeep pulled off to the shoulder and slowed down as the driver was making "numerous hand gestures" and "appeared to be highly agitated," before again speeding up and pulling his vehicle away from the cruiser.

The Jeep allegedly failed to stop at the posted stop signs at both Bittinger Road and Grantsville's Main Street, reportedly forcing several vehicles to brake quickly to avoid collisions. The trooper also said he observed the driver "looking back at me" and continuing "to make numerous hand gestures."

The pursuit continued east on Main Street to Pennsylvania Street, where the Jeep turned left onto Dorsey Hotel Road, striking the unmarked police cruiser that had continued operating its emergency lights and siren from the start of the chase. The two vehicles then accelerated northbound on Dorsey Hotel Road, and as they began to descend a hill with a sharp left curve, the cruiser was able to turn inside of the Jeep and get in front to bring it to a halt south of Killdeer Lane.

Schlosnagle was taken into custody and charged at that point, and was subsequently transported to Oakland, where he was released from custody when he posted a $5,000 bond set by a District Court commissioner.

According to a spokesperson for the Schlosnagle family, at the time of the incident he was extremely distraught over the impending death of his mother, Alta Schlosnagle, who at that

JUST ANOTHER WORK DAY for DNR Wildlife and Heritage Service staffers became a once-in-a-lifetime event for members of the local media yesterday. Newspaper folks along with a few other guests were invited to go along on a routine tagging and assessing of a Garrett County sow and her four cubs. The sow shown above is enormous, weighing in at 343 pounds, and a well-known bear to the local DNR authorities. "We've known about her since she was born here 15 years ago," said Harry Spiker, the Bear Project leader at the at Mt. Nebo DNR headquarters. She and her cubs were all deemed healthy by the officials, who weighed them, took hair and blood samples from the mother, and tagged the ears of the cubs, among other procedures. See story. Pictured in front as he helps haul the heavy sow out of her den is Paul Peditto, director of the Wildlife and Heritage Service of Maryland. Directly behind Peditto is Rob Harvey, and behind Harvey is Rick Latshaw. ## W.Va. Man Faces Drug Charges After Traffic Stop

A Grant County, W.Va., man was arrested for driving while intoxicated (DWI) early Friday morning by Maryland State Police troopers who stopped his truck for repeatedly crossing double lines on Garrett Highway north of Oakland. After a subsequent vehicle search turned up suspected marijuana, additional drug-related charges were filed as well.

Gerald Eddie Friend Jr., 31, Dorcas, was stopped shortly after 2 a.m. on southbound Garrett Highway at Mayhew Inn Road. After failing sobriety tests, he was arrested for DWI, and a search of his 1992 GMC truck uncovered ¾ ounce of suspected marijuana in a plastic bag under the driver's seat, an eight-inch "bong" smoking device, two additional pipe-type smoking devices, scales, and numerous other drug paraphernalia devices from inside the center console, plus a large metal tin on the rear floorboard.

Friend was charged with DWI, possession of mari-

Media Members Invited To Witness Routine Assessment Of Black Bear

By Mary Sincell McEwen

What is a regular practice for the black bear experts of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Wildlife and Heritage Service was a special event for several members of the local media yesterday. A routine black bear tagging and assessment took place in the county, and writers and photographers were invited to come along.

All attention was focused on a 15-year-old sow, "bear #90," and her four cubs. The bear has been a subject of research for years, according to Harry Spiker, Bear Project leader, who is headquartered at Mt. Nebo.

"We know she was born here in Garrett County in 1989. She was tagged as a cub. In 1990, she was reported as a nuisance bear, so we trapped and released her. She was re-trapped in 1991," Spiker said. He said the sow was relocated about 30 miles away, but found her way back to her original location some time later.

"That's why we don't trap and release anymore," said Clarissa Harris, manager of the Western Regional Wildlife Response Team. "They are intelligent animals and can find their way back." (Nuisance bears are

Garrett Container Systems Earns '03 Quality Award

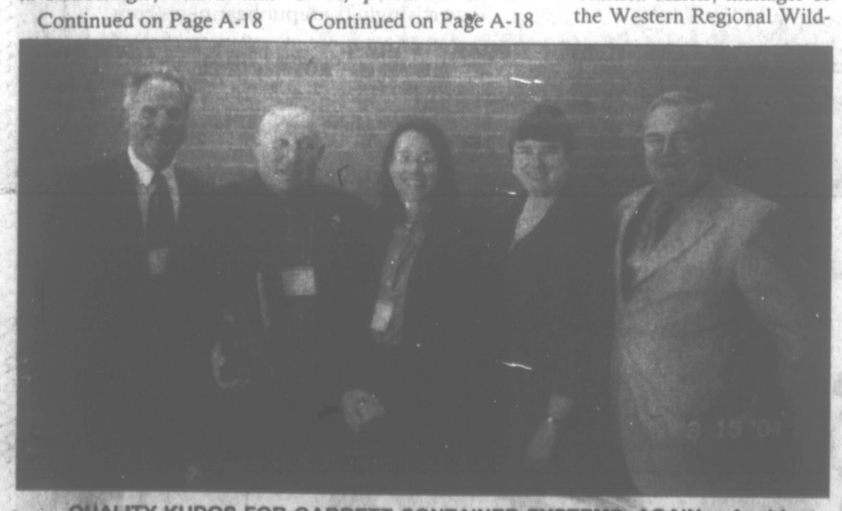
Garrett Container Systems (GCS) was recognized with the 2003 Quality Silver Award during the recent U.S. Senate Productivity and Maryland Quality Awards luncheon at the Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory in Baltimore. GCS quality support manager Jim Kesselring and vice president of sales Danny Goforth were on hand to accept the award on behalf of their Accident-based company, with a number of dignitaries in attendance including U.S. senators Paul Sarbanes and Barbara Mikulski.

The U.S. Senate Productivity and Maryland Quality Awards program is structured from the performance of excellence criteria of the Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Awards Program.

"The Silver Award recognizes Garrett Container Systems' commitment to organizational performance, increased customer and stakeholder satisfaction, alignment of the organization around a management process that will sustain performance, motivate staff and employees, and achieve a world class quality performance," a presenter said at the event.

GCS employees deserved the recognition, according to Goforth. "GCS employees are the resource, tools, and determination behind the growth and continuous improvement of the company," he stated.

A team of examiners visited GCS in December to evaluate the facility and manufacturing operations, and conduct interviews with management team employees and team leaders.



QUALITY KUDOS FOR GARRETT CONTAINER SYSTEMS, AGAIN — Accident-based Garrett Container Systems earned the 2003 Quality Silver Award, which recognizes company performance, productivity, and quality based on the criteria of the Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Awards Program. ## Boat Launch Fee Hike Proposed To DCL Board

The cost of launching boats at Deep Creek Lake State Park may increase next year. Lake manager Paul Durham asked the Deep Creek Lake Policy and Review Board to increase the park launch fee to $10 a day during its Monday night meeting.

The current $2 fee was set in 1994. Board members voted to increase the launch fees to $5 on weekdays and $7 on weekends and holidays. Additionally, the weekend fee would increase $1 a year for the next three years until it equals the $10 requested.

A public hearing on the increases will be held, probably in June, according to Durham. He noted that this was just replacing money lost because of budget cuts. The state is currently conducting an overall fee schedule revision. He added that many other parks already increased their fees to $10.

Durham will report back to board members if the Maryland Department of Natural Resources agrees to the proposal. The next board meeting will be May 27.

Fugitive Jailed After Fleeing MSP On Foot

A Washington, D.C., man was apprehended with the help of a K-9 unit after he ran into a wooded area off Interstate 68 east of Grantville during a Monday afternoon traffic stop, according to the Maryland State Police at the McHenry barrack. The suspect, who reportedly possessed a handgun and almost $6,000 in cash at the time of his arrest, was also wanted by Virginia authorities on multiple felony charges.

Shelton Keith Coates, 20, was riding in a Dodge Neon that was stopped at 2:15 p.m. on eastbound I-68 at Lower New Germany Road when a trooper observed a seatbelt violation. When the odor of suspected burnt marijuana was noted emanating from the vehicle, Coates, the front seat passenger, fled into the woods.

After a search by state troopers, a Cumberland Police Department K-9 unit, and MSP helicopter Trooper 5, Coates was located later in the day when the German shepherd police dog and his handler tracked the suspect to his hiding spot in a shed off Lower New Germany Road. He reportedly had a 9 mm handgun, $5,968.27 in cash, and several fake identifications on his person.

Coates was charged with possession of marijuana, possession of a deadly weapon, carrying a handgun, fourth-degree burglary, making false statements to

GC Notes Rise In Enrollment

A slight increase in enrollment at Garrett College this spring semester has been reported by Crystal Roberson, director of enrollment development.

According to the enrollment figures compiled at the close of the registration period, a total of 595 students are enrolled this semester, compared to 586 who were enrolled in spring 2003, representing a 1.5 percent increase. This increase has occurred among part-time students, who number 257, compared to 239 last spring.

"We are seeing more local residents coming to college," Roberson said. "In an environment of rising tuition, cost is a critical factor when students determine where to start their education. Because Garrett is a small college, faculty and staff take a genuine interest in students' progress and provide a very supportive environment for academic growth. It is gratifying to see our community taking

OUT OF CONCERN FOR THEIR INTERNATIONAL PEERS, Broad Ford Elementary School's fifth grade students raised more than $1,400 for UNICEF. The money will be used for food, immunizations, water purification tablets, and education for those living in underdeveloped countries. The students' efforts earned them the honorary distinction of "UNICEF Ambassador School." The project, written by Board Ford's fifth grade teachers, won the grand prize in Co-nect's national project competition, winning the school $500. ## Polce Notes New Grantsville Roads Garage Nearly Finished

The move to the new Grantsville Roads Department garage is about 95 percent complete, according to the department's general superintendent, Fred Polce. Phone lines, a time clock, and oil and grease systems, however, still need to be hooked up, as well as acceleration and deceleration lanes constructed to the new facility.

Polce reported on the status of the garage during a departmental update with the Garrett County commissioners this week. He noted that the Grantsville crew has been doing the finishing work at the new garage and will also construct the accel/decel lanes.

Garrett College will be using the old Roads Department garage in Grantsville as a campus for its new diesel training program. The Diesel Institute of America, which has conducted a program in the county for several years, will soon be leaving the county, but the college is continuing the program.

The college's maintenance crews have been doing refurbishing work and creating classrooms in the old garage in preparation for classes this May. "They've done a nice job at the old place," said Polce.

Various types of leasing and ownership arrangements between the college and county are currently being explored, according to Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator. The college will be responsible for the maintenance, insurance, and upkeep of the former garage, he added.

Polce also reported that all the Roads Department crews would be going off night shift schedules and removing snow plows from their trucks on Monday. He noted, however, that his crews had three snow removal days in April last year.

According to the superintendent, the crews had 70 snow removal days this winter, compared to 99 days last winter and 41 in the winter of 2001-2002.

Total snow accumulation for this winter was about 162 inches, compared to 236 last year and 77 the previous year.

Polce said his department had not exceeded its FY 2004 budget for snow removal, but was over budget for overtime hours by about $60,000.

The total cost of snow removal this winter was $1,633,055.72, which included wages, overtime, equipment, anti-skid material, salt, plows, chains, and other materials. The average per day cost of snow removal was $23,329.37.

Once the weather improves, the road crews will begin their paving projects. Beginning in Cranesville, they plan to pave nearly 53 miles of county roads.

Once those are completed, there will be only about six or seven miles of unpaved roads left in the county of a total 700 miles, according to Polce. Five years ago, the county had about 100 miles of roads that were unpaved, he noted.

Strategic Plan For Oakland Unveiled Tuesday Evening

Oakland's Community Legacy's Strategic Plan presented to the public this week calls for the preservation of the town's historic flavor while improving the views that visitors receive when traveling on Third Street (Route 219).

The plan, prepared and presented by Terrell Ellis of Terrill Ellis and Associates of Charleston, W.Va., was supplemented by architect Doug Devlin of Pittsburgh. In the 26-page plan, Ellis called Oakland "one of the healthiest little communities in the state."

"There are very few vacancies in the downtown area, and overall the historic ambience and charm is still there," she said. "There are charming neighborhoods, and the public housing is remarkable for its designs and affordability."

Devlin generally agreed with Ellis but had some suggestions for implementing improvements "in order to make Oakland's gateway more visually appealing."

According to Devlin, these car and pedestrian "gateways" include Rt. 219 and the entries into downtown on Green and Alder streets. The improvements include developing guidelines for landscaping to make the signage that advertises businesses more compatible with their surroundings, in addition to improved sidewalks and the addition of a bike lane.

Devlin described the "new urbanism" going on within the world of architecture and highway engineering.

"Basically it's a recognition that a road is more than just a way to move traffic and that it should also serve the function of attracting business and pedestrians as well as allow for the movement of cars and trucks," he said.

Among the numerous recommendations made by Ellis and Devlin are: the further development of the hiking and biking trail to connect with Broadford Lake, Mt. Nebo, and Herrington Manor; the development of the Water Street area to make the best of its "funky" appearance and its proximity to the river; and the review of the current zoning ordinance to determine if it inhibits the development of home-based businesses.

This last point drew considerable attention from some of the 18 people attending the meeting because current zoning restricts home-based businesses to 25 percent of the total ground floor of the residence. Devlin pointed out that in the age of cyberspace where many people run a business from their homes, that this restriction needed

Arrest Made Following Investigation Of Threatening Signs In Building

An arrest was made Wednesday in Cumberland after troopers from the Maryland State Police Homeland Security and Intelligence Bureau assisted the Garrett County Sheriff's Office in the investigation of threatening material placed in a window of a building on Third Street in Oakland on Friday, according to authorities.

As a result of the investigation, an arrest warrant was issued for Barry Eugene Sweitzer, 36. He was charged with "threatening/ state official/to injure."

He is currently incarcerated in the Allegany County Detention Center pending a bail review hearing.

Members of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office and the Oakland City Police Department responded to the building in Oakland Friday evening after signs placed in the windows of the building caused alarm to both law enforcement officers and civilians, according to authorities.

The pedestrian and traffic situations, as well as some of the statements on the signs, were all reportedly causes for concerns, police said. After one of the building owners authorized the removal of the signs, precautions were taken to assure the safety of any persons entering the building.

A Maryland State Police K-9 unit was called to check the building, and Oakland Volunteer Fire Department members routed traffic away from the scene. Utilizing a thermal imaging camera from the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company and the K-9 unit, officers entered and secured the location without incident, police said.

Task Force Arrests Two On Numerous Drug Charges

Two Oakland residents were arrested on drug charges after a search and seizure warrant was executed on a residence on Reese Street in Oakland Wednesday evening, according to the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force.

A search of the residence revealed a quantity of suspected marijuana plants, suspected marijuana, and numerous pieces of drug paraphernalia. Lisa Cole, 40, and William Cole, 19, were arrested.

Both were charged with manufacturing marijuana, possession with intent to distribute marijuana, possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia, and maintaining a common nuisance.

Both are being held in the Garrett County Detention Center pending a bond hearing with a District Court commissioner.

Task Force investigators were assisted by uniform members of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office and Oakland City Police.

re-examination.

"Oakland wants hard working professionals who want to move here to feel welcome. This type of ordinance may restrict them from coming here as well as cause some current residents to have thoughts about leaving here," he said.

The issue of work in the Oakland area was also addressed by Ellis, who pointed out that the county seat had only minimal job growth over the past few years. Household income in Oakland has tended to lag behind the rest of the county and the national average, she said. Part of the strategic plan addresses those issues.

"First we want to make sure that our existing businesses stay healthy. Then we want to use places like the train station and the area around it to help create new businesses. Under this program to develop this study we can make available expertise from the state to come and assist our businesses owners. There may also be façade monies and other assistance available," she said.

The entire Community Legacy Strategic Plan for Oakland may be read at town hall or at Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc.

Oakland is the fourth town to have been presented such a plan. The other three are Grantsville, Friendsville, and Loch Lynn. Kitzmiller's plan will be presented Thursday, April 15, at 7 p.m. in the town hall.

The remaining communities are in the process of having their strategic plans prepared.

God saw her getting tired

He closed his arms around her

In tears we saw her fade away our hearts were broken;
we wanted her to stay.
But when we saw her sleeping,
so peacefully free from pain,
we could not wish her back to suffer so again.

So, keep your arms around her, Lord, and give her SPECIAL care.
Make up for all she suffered

HOMEWORK HOTLINE HITS BROAD FORD – Homework Hotline, an after-school program produced by West Virginia Public Television, visited Broad Ford Elementary School recently to film the morning announcements and conduct interviews with 19 fourth graders for an upcoming episode. Students can call in to the show, which airs Monday through Thursday at 5 p.m., and ask for help on their math or science homework. Teachers will work through the problems on the air with the caller. Teachers also remain after the broadcast to answer questions that did not make it on air due to time limits. Begun in the fall of 1992, Homework Hotline has just wrapped up its ninth season as a television program. While at Broad Ford, Devin Hartman filmed while Kara Haas interviewed the students. The students were also filmed doing a "teaser," which generally opens the show. Students were asked numerous questions, including the best thing at school, what should be changed at school, their hero, favorite way to exercise, and what they want to be when they grow up. Those interviewed were Ashley Upole, Christina Hall, Kenny Harvey, Catherine Baker, Colton Forrester, Jaden Polce, Corinne Weaver, Olivia Gaither, Lindsay Crabtree, Briana Wagner, Matthew Roy, Bobbi Jo Dick, Jasper Tasker, Emily Huxford, Drew Miller, Taylor Gosnell, Alycia Horner, Patricia Sherrard, and Mikail Perrine. Above, Haas demonstrates to Taylor Gosnell how to hold the microphone. Suzanne Sincell, curriculum coordinator, was also filmed as part of the show. Below, Hartman is seen through the window as the morning announcements are filmed. Logan Miller, Leah Moran, and Jessica Cooper are seen reading a dog biscuit advertisement. Others involved in the announcements were Katelynne Eggleston, Micaela Beckman, Kate Ware, Claire Wilkinson, Gina Stuck, Lex Ozias, Kristen Yant, Shanna Holliday, Naomi Keefer, and Bobbi Kent.

Five Injured In Vehicle Collision; Pa. Man Cited

Five people were injured Sunday evening when a van operated by a Pennsylvania driver reportedly drove through a stop sign at the end of a exit ramp off Interstate 68 and struck a car that was traveling south on Bittinger Road, according to the Maryland State Police. Poor visibility due to falling snow contributed to the accident, the police release stated.

Troopers cited Sheldon Crutchman, 57, Uniontown, at fault in the accident, as he reportedly "failed to stop and yield right of way" in the 5:47 p.m. mishap. Police said that Crutchman had exited the Interstate before realizing he had taken the wrong exit, and drove his 2004 Pontiac Montana van up the ramp and into the Bittinger Road intersection without stopping. There the van collided with a southbound 2000 Ford Taurus SE operated by Susan Kamp, 65.

Both Kamp and her passenger, a 13-year-old juvenile relative, were transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, as were two unidentified adult passengers and one juvenile who were riding in Crutchman's van. Crutchman and two other passengers in his vehicle reportedly refused medical treatment at the scene.

The Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the crash site.

In other state police accident investigations recently released to the media, a Frostburg area (Garrett County) woman was charged following a Friday, March 12, two-car collision on Route 40 east of Grantsville. The mishap injured each of the three occupants of the other vehicle, who were transported by the Northern Rescue Squad to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where they were treated for minor injuries.

At approximately 8:15 a.m., a 1994 Pontiac operated by Tammy Jo Garlitz, 17, was southbound on Meyersdale Road when it came to the stop sign at the Route 40 intersection. Although Garlitz did stop at the sign, according to the report, she then allegedly pulled into the intersection in an attempt to make left turn, and was struck by an eastbound 1995 Pontiac that had the right of way.

The second vehicle was operated by Shawna Marie Lenhart, 24, Accident, who was slightly injured along with her two passengers, Lucinda Marie Green, 39, Swanton, and a 7-year-old juvenile.

Garlitz, who escaped injury, was charged by state troopers for failure to yield right of way and failure to give full time and attention to her driving.

Information was released yesterday concerning a Tuesday, March 16, single-vehicle crash on I-68 just west of Grantsville. The 7:03 a.m. mishap occurred when Samantha Fontaine, 21, Grantsville, lost control of her 1992 Oldsmobile Cutlass on the westbound interstate at Shade Hollow Road. The car traveled off the right side of the slush covered roadway and struck a guardrail.

Fontaine was transported by the Northern Rescue Squad to Cumberland Memorial Hospital. The press release did not indicate severity of her injury, or if any charges were filed.

Tickets Still On Sale For OVFD May Cash Bash

A cash bash that will literally award tens of thousands of dollars will be held Saturday, May 1, by the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, and tickets for that event are currently on sale.

A total of 1,000 tickets will be sold for $100 each, and 72 of those tickets will be winners. One ticket will be drawn every five minutes on May 1 from noon until 5:55 p.m. While most of the winners will receive their $100 investment back, there will also be several $1,000 and $5,000 prizes awarded, along with a grand prize of $10,000.

The OVFD will provide food and beverages throughout the day to all ticketholders.

Tickets are available from all members of the Oakland VFD, or persons may telephone 301-334-3776.

Bayard Man Arrested After Found In Car

A Bayard, W.Va., man was arrested after a complaint was made to police of a vehicle parked along Wilson Road near the intersection of Wilson Corona Road for approximately four hours with a person inside, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Harry Lee Beckman Jr., 25, was arrested and charged with driving while impaired (DWI), driving under the influence (DUI), possession of a concealed dangerous and deadly weapon, and possession of a controlled dangerous substance other than marijuana, police said.

After an initial appearance before a District Court commissioner, he was released on his own recognizance.

Deputies Continue Investigation Of Tuesday Accident

A two-vehicle accident remains under investigation by Garrett County sheriff's deputies. The mishap occurred when the vehicles struck each other while attempting to pass a bus that had slowed down.

According to the report, both Kera A. Hinebaugh, 17, Oakland, and Gerald R. Wilson, 38, Oakland, were traveling behind a school bus on Oakland Sang Run Road Tuesday morning, when the bus slowed down to allow them to pass. Both vehicles attempted to pass at the same time which caused them to strike each other on the side, police said.

There were no injuries reported.

A Life-Saving Program...

The Maryland legislature and Governor Ehrlich are feverishly debating and negotiating on how best to deal with the state's financial crisis, a crisis that was generally inherited by Ehrlich from the previous administration. The solution undoubtedly lies in a combination of generating new revenues and cutting costs, with neither of those actions being easy or popular.

The governor wants the legalization, albeit limited, of slot-machine gambling to generate a large chunk of new revenue, while the Democratic-controlled House and Senate prefer to raise taxes and various fees. Part of the latter's proposal is an increase in the state sales tax from 5 to 6 cents on the dollar, a move that opponents say will cause a mass exodus of Maryland shoppers to neighboring states.

As for cost cutting, there is in nearly every budget both fat and waste that could and should be eliminated. In some cases, there is probably justification for wiping out certain positions, and perhaps even entire agencies.

However, there are also some agencies that are doing outstanding, valuable work in our communities that should be continued, but are already being slashed. An excellent example is the Life Skills program, which provides special care, instruction, and opportunities to children who, for various reasons, simply cannot function in the conventional school setting. Many of them are innocent victims of an extremely difficult home life. Without this type of intervention in their young lives, most of them are destined to utter failure, often leading them into a dead-end life of crime and destruction. Our prisons, which are extremely expensive to build and operate, are literally loaded with people from exactly this kind of background, and for whom there was no Life Skills program.

The local Life Skills program has already had to eliminate some positions and is facing more extensive cutbacks which could ultimately destroy the program altogether, or render it virtually ineffective.

It is sincerely hoped that those in control in Annapolis realize that certain programs, such as Life Skills, must be considered as wise investments in the future, and thereby should not only be maintained, but also strengthened. The end result will be great savings of money down the road and, more importantly, the saving of many lives.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Call out the dogs. It's time for a fight.

The ship is sinking clean out of sight.

Carl Rove has to pull out all his hair to make this round peg fit into a square.

The president's actions speak louder than words, and you can't make a Sunni into a Kurd.

You can't find a rabbit sniffin' for bear, and the truth can't be made up out of thin air.

Regime change is scheduled for later this fall. Let's send them to Texas, it's best for us all.

To the Editor:

This letter is concerning the young ministers that are not allowed to attend the church known as the Pentecostals of Oakland.

It has been said that they and their families were the reason that we left Oakland, which is a great untruth. We left the church of Oakland, which we loved, but leaving was God's will and we were not "run off" by these families who stood beside us for 22 years. They are good people and it's a shame they can't go to the church that they were raised in.

I think someone needs to dig into the word of God. We are supposed to be soul savers, not soul haters. To whomever is telling this fib, I hope their conscience won't give them any rest until they make things right.

Sincerely,
Etta L. Jacks

To the Editor:

Bush's foreign policy is like a ship without a keel.

Today (March 22), after initially hesitating, the Bush administration criticized Israel on killing Sheik Ahmed Yassin, a founder of the militant Palestinian group Hamas. "We are deeply troubled by this morning's incident in Gaza," the White House spokesman said.

Yet also today, the House voted and passed the "Iraqi Liberation Resolution." This resolution commends the U.S. military and states that the war in Iraq has made the world safer. I wonder if the families of the 10,000 civilians killed in the last year in Iraq by coalition troops feel they live in a safer world. I wonder if the Palestinians feel safer.

Also, today we hear of severe fighting in Afghanistan between rival factions of the ruling government – fighting that could result in the demise of elections later this year. Also today, the Counter-Terrorist and Narco-Terrorist Rewards Program Act was passed in the House. This Act will double the reward for the capture of Osama bin Laden and increase the amounts and types of rewards handed out by the State Department. Bush calls N. Korea a nuclear threat, but not Pakistan, which has a military leader who took office by force. Why?

Just last week the Spaniards saw how much safer our world is now. They kicked out the old government party and voted in a new one. I think we have an administration with no leader, like a boat without a keel. I think we should follow Spain's lead.

Cancer – what a devastating word. Where do I turn? What do I do?

There is hope that one day a cure will be found. One way you can be a part of this hope is by participating in Garrett County Relay for Life. This year the American Cancer Society Relay for Life will be held June 11 and 12 at the Southern High School track. Come join us for a weekend of good food, laughter, and tears.

Yes, it is a tiring weekend, but when you take time to think about why you participate, it makes it all worthwhile. Maybe the money raised will help you personally some day. Great advances have been made in the treatment of cancer, but the work is far from done.

The next team captains' meeting is set for Monday, March 29, 6:30 p.m. in Room CE305 at Garrett College. Anyone interested, team captain or not, is invited to attend.

For more information, please call Donna Broadwater at 301-334-3923 or Rick Broadwater at 301-334-2500.

There is No Finish Line Until We Find a Cure.

Thank you,

To the Editor:

March 31 is Kick Butts Day. More than 400,000 people in the United States will die this year from a tobacco-related disease. We know that 90 percent of smokers start using tobacco regularly at or before 18 years of age. Isn't that astonishing? So in order to give kids a fighting chance, we are asking for your help. If you or any of your readers know someone who smokes, ask them to not smoke for this one day. If they need help quitting they can call the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-7730 and ask for Mike Wilburn.

There are many effective ways state and local officials can protect young people from tobacco. They can use funds from the states' 1998 legal settlement with the tobacco companies to pay for tobacco prevention programs; they can increase tobacco taxes; and they can pass smoke-free laws to protect us from secondhand smoke. Consider these facts: Each day, more than 2,000 kids become new regular smokers; roughly one-third of them will die prematurely from a tobacco-related disease.

Today's youth are not just part of the problem, they're part of the solution. And the S.T.E.A.M. groups from Southern and Northern high schools want tobacco companies to know that on Kick Butts Day and every day throughout the year, we're going to fight them every step of the way.

To the Editor:

March is Social Work Month and I'd like to tell you more about how Allegany and Garrett County social workers are providing a wide range of supports and services for local families of all sizes and descriptions.

In today's society, family does not always mean the traditional model of married parents with biological offspring. In fact, less than half of America's children live in a traditional "nuclear" family. Divorced, separated, or unmarried parents who have individual or shared responsibility for children now factor into the family definition. So do grandparents caring for grandchildren, gay and lesbian couples with child responsibilities, and adoptive and foster parents. All these American family types come with special strengths, needs, and challenges.

Social workers define "family" as two or more people who assume obligations and responsibilities generally conducive to family life. As such, all families deserve support systems that include access to economic resources, health care, employment, education, housing, and social services.

Poverty, homelessness, drug and alcohol addiction, abuse, and neglect are key factors for families splitting apart. Social workers are equipped to help families cope with stresses of life and deal with problems associated with these situations. They work through support systems, counseling, coordinating resources, and advocating for clients.

Supporting families involves many functions, including:

1. Counseling families to find working solutions to problems;
2. Placing abused children in nurturing homes;
3. Helping to find employment and housing for homeless families;
4. Helping pregnant women, adoptive parents, and adopted children through states' adoption systems;
5 Helping those in need make best use of the public welfare system; and
6 Aiding women and their children who are victims of domestic violence.

Making the new American family stronger takes a family-centered approach along with a clear view of social problems and the many ways to address them. Social workers are there to help.

To the Editor:

On January 12, 2004, I received the gift of life. After being diagnosed with kidney failure after the birth of my second child and starting dialysis a year later, I felt like my life was over. I look back now on these last two years and realize just how lucky I really am. I can't possibly thank everyone individually in this letter, but there are several people that I must say thank you to.

First of all, I want to thank God. He answered my prayers, my family's prayers, and the prayers of many friends. Thank you to all the churches who have kept me on their prayer lists. God truly does hear our prayers.

Next I want to thank my husband Bobby, and our two little boys Matthew and Michael. Their unconditional love and support gave me the strength to get through this.

To DJ Crable, my kidney donor, what can I possibly say to you? You gave me a second chance at life and for that I am truly grateful. To DJ's wife Brenda, his three girls, his parents, and brothers, thank you for supporting DJ's decision to help me.

To my dad, mother, Rob, and Dena, thank you for being by my side once again. I know this has been hard on you.

To the doctors and nurses at the Thomas E. Starzyl Transplant Clinic at UPMC in Pittsburgh, thank you for the wonderful work that you do. I can't remember the last time I felt this good.

To my friend Patti Boehl, thank you for your help in trying to find a donor for me. The response was unbelievable and I want to thank everyone who offered to be tested. Your kindness will never be forgotten.

To Dr. Bender at Ruby Memorial Hospital, Linda, Fay, and Melissa at the dialysis center in Morgantown, thanks for always being there for me.

To my cousin Carla and the rest of the staff at the dialysis center at Memorial Hospital, you guys were great. You always made me smile even though I usually felt like crap. I'm thankful that I no longer need dialysis, but I will miss seeing you all.

Please know that even if I have not mentioned your name specifically, I think of you often and thank God that you are my friends. May 2004 be a happy and healthy year for all of you (I know it will be for me!).

Thanks again to each and every one of you.

Sincerely,
Marla Phillips Mayles

To the Editor:

I respectfully disagree with your editorial in last week's paper on two counts: The Spanish government did not fall because of the terrorist attack, and if John Kerry is elected, he must change foreign policy, not "stay the course."

I am looking at a picture on the front of the Washington Post dated Sunday, March 23, 2003. Thousands of demonstrators in Barcelona, Spain, are protesting their government's support of the U.S. led war. I cannot help but think that public outcry like this had something to do with the people of Spain toppling their current government.

Fareed Zakaria on This Week with George Stephanopolis Sunday had this to say about the Spanish election: "I think in the last week there has been a massive misreading of the Spanish election. This was a tight election always.... Aznar ran a very authoritarian administration and most importantly, 90 percent of Spaniards opposed the war in Iraq. This was not appeasement in the face of terror, and it is insulting to Spain to say that. This is a country that has battled terrorism admirably and courageously for 30 years while America traded arms for hostages."

You conclude your editorial by challenging John Kerry (if elected) to continue the Bush foreign pol-

Busch Billion-Dollar Tax Plan Looks Likely For House Passage

by Rolando Garcia
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – The House of Delegates was poised to give preliminary approval to $1 billion in tax increases Wednesday during a late-evening session. Delegates batted down on party-line votes a series of Republican-sponsored amendments to gut the tax hikes crafted by House Speaker Michael Busch, D-Anne Arundel. Democrats and Republicans caucused just before the Wednesday night session, trying to line up their positions.

When House Appropriations Committee chairman Norman Conway, D-Wicomico, emerged from the party meeting, he said he was confident the House would approve the tax package, but declined to speculate on whether it would get the 85-vote supermajority needed to override a promised veto from Republican governor Robert Ehrlich. The tax plan includes a 1-cent sales tax increase earmarked for public schools, an income tax rate boost from 4.75 to 6 percent on Marylanders with incomes above $200,000, and an increase in vehicle excise taxes from 5 to 6 percent. It also provides about $350 million in tax relief, lowering the state's property tax rate from 13.2 cents to 5 cents per $100 assessment, and increases the earned income tax credit for poor taxpayers.

Although Democrats have better than a two-thirds majority in the House, the margin of victory for the tax hikes was in doubt because moderate and conservative Democrats said they would vote against it, fearing voters' wrath in the next election. While there's an effort to keep Democrats in line behind Busch, Majority Whip George Owings, D-Calvert, who opposes the tax hikes, said Democratic delegates from rural areas would have to break ranks with the House leadership.

"A lot of delegates just can't vote for it; their constituencies wouldn't stand for it," Owings said.

Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert, has declared the plan dead on arrival in his chamber and that pushing it forward without a veto-proof-majority was an "exercise in futility."

Republicans blasted the tax increases, warning they would hamper the state's economic recovery. Higher sales taxes would drive shoppers to neighboring states and the Internet and hurt small retailers in Maryland, said Delegate Christopher Shank, R-Washington.

Legislative analysts have estimated the sales tax increase would cost the state $600 million in retail sales. Republicans also criticized the income tax increase for targeting the most successful and entrepreneurial Marylanders. Democrats defended the tax hikes as a better way to fund public schools and fix the state's long-term budget woes than legalizing slot machines, which Ehrlich has proposed. "[The tax package] will fund education in a stable, responsible, and non-addictive fashion," said Majority Leader Kumar Barve, D-Montgomery.

Senate Leader Calls House Tax Package Dead On Arrival

by Rolando Garcia
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – A $1 billion tax package working its way through the House of Delegates is unlikely to clear the Senate and could imperil Democratic legislators from rural areas, said Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller, D-Calvert.

House Speaker Michael Busch, D-Anne Arundel, unveiled a tax plan that includes a 1-cent sales tax hike earmarked for public schools, an income tax rate boost from 4.75 to 6 percent on Marylanders with incomes above $200,000, and an increase in vehicle excise taxes from 5 to 6 percent.

The tax proposals will get a chilly reception in the Senate, which passed a smaller package of taxes and fees totaling $227 million. Without sufficient votes in either chamber to override Gov. Robert Ehrlich's promised veto, Busch's plan is an "exercise in futility" Miller said.

"Its no secret the majority of senators think [Busch's tax plan] is premature," Miller said, noting the 2005 budget can be balanced without major revenue measures.

As late as Friday, Busch was publicly noncommittal about what revenue measures he would support, but just hours after he publicly presented his plan Monday, it was approved by two House committees and will be debated on the House floor Wednesday. The brisk pace has upset GOP lawmakers, who say Busch is trying to muscle through a massive tax hike with little deliberation.

"Legislation like this shouldn't be rushed through at the 11th hour," said Minority Whip Anthony O'Donnell, R-Calvert.

The showdown between Ehrlich and Busch was distracting from other tax measures that Ehrlich might agree to, such as the salty snack food tax and closing corporate loopholes, Miller said.

"I'm dealing with two jocks [Ehrlich and Busch] who are very competitive and used to getting their way," Miller said.

The plan would cost the average Maryland family an extra $20 a year and would provide a more stable source of funding for education than slots, said Appropriations Chair Norman Conway, D-Wicomico.

"Nobody likes taxes, but education is a priority, and we have to pay for it," Conway said.

Busch said a traditional tax increase was a more fair and responsible way to fund public schools than legalizing slot machines.

"I would suggest to you that that's a better solution than asking Marylanders to gamble $23 billion a year at the racetrack, hoping to make $600 million a year to go to their education fund," Busch told Baltimore's Sun newspaper Monday. Busch's tax hikes will likely die in the Senate's budget-writing panel, Miller said, and a conference committee between the two chambers could then try to hammer out a compromise on smaller tax measures more palatable to Ehrlich.

Ehrlich's budget, which was approved by the Senate last week with only minor revisions, closes the $800 million budget shortfall mostly through one-time revenue sources and fee hikes. He has vowed to veto any sales or income tax increases, and supports legalizing slot machines to fix the state's long-term budget woes.

Although the $23.7 billion 2005 budget approved by the Senate leaves a $170 million surplus, the state is facing a $1.2 billion shortfall in 2006. Ehrlich submitted a $13 million budget revision Tuesday, which includes additional funding for health care and juvenile services.

Busch's tax proposal, which barely avoided defeat Monday in the House Appropriations Committee after two Democrats switched their votes, also includes about $350 million in tax relief, lowering the state's property tax rate from 13.2 cents to 5 cents per $100 assessment, and increases the earned income tax credit for poor taxpayers. It also expands the sales tax to health clubs and tanning services.

The tax hikes could have political repercussions for Democratic legislators who represent moderate districts in rural areas and the suburbs, Miller said.

The plan would muster enough votes to pass the House, Conway said.

Many constituents in his rural district will accept a penny sales tax increase set aside for public schools, Conway said, and the predictions of dire political consequences for supporters of the tax hike may be overblown. But if Miller's predictions hold true, Busch would have to cobble together a narrow majority mostly with delegates from core Democratic areas such as Montgomery and Prince George's counties and Baltimore City, potentially alienating swing voters in other parts of the state.

"Voters trust [Democrats] on education and the environment," Miller said, "but they don't trust us on the economy."

Antibiotics Are Effective Against Bacterial Sinusitis

Upper respiratory tract infections caused by bacteria invading the sinuses often develop into a runny or clogged nose, symptoms associated with the common cold. Health statistics indicate that sinusitis and runny nose affect approximately 20 million people and cost the US economy nearly $3.5 billion each year. It is often a challenge for physicians to distinguish between which sinusitis is being caused by a virus or by a bacteria.

New guidelines were recently published by the Sinus and Allergy Partnership Group to help doctors diagnose and treat sinusitis. It is not uncommon for a bacterial sinusitis to be found in people who have has a viral sinus infection for a rew days that got worse and changed symptoms from the original infection. For most bacterial sinus infections, amoxicillin with or without clavulanate or cefdinir are two treatment choices often recommended. For the more stubborn infections, treatment with ceftriaxone or gatifloxacin may be used. Treatment with the appropriate antibiotic kills off the bacteria, which also decreases the chance of antibiotic resistance.

icy on terrorism. But this misses the point. Bush's policy has alienated most of the world's leaders. Counterterrorism expert Richard Clarke, a 30-year veteran for both political parties, speaking Sunday on 60 Minutes, said, "When a president starts doing things that risk American lives, then loyalty to him has to be put aside. The way he has responded to al-Qaeda both before 9/11 by doing nothing, and what he has done after 9/11, has made us less safe, absolutely. I think he has done a terrible job on the war against terrorism." He felt he had to speak out because it was unconscionable for a president and vice president to purposely mislead the American people and to send our sons and daughters to war in Iraq thinking they were avenging 9/11 when that was simply not the case.

With all due respect, I feel your editorial was a vague threat to your readers to beware of changing the U.S. government. I do not know a single leader in this country who would not be tough on terrorism, but how you go about it is a different story. I have a daughter living in Washington, D.C., and when we are on orange or red alert it is extremely upsetting. The last thing I want is our government alienating the world. What we need is nations working together: our listening to them as well as their listening to us.

What happened in the Spanish election was democracy at its finest...the will of the people prevailed. I only hope for the sake of the world that our country has the courage to do the same thing.

Main Street Manager Sets Her Priorities

Oakland's new Main Street program manager said one of her priorities is to help existing businesses in the community succeed.

"I'm already working to find out what their needs are and to help overall with improving the quality of life in the community," said Cherie Ross. Ross, who has been on the job for three months, said that she is having a great time working with retailers and other business leaders.

A registered nurse who spent many years working throughout a large portion of West Virginia teaching long-term health care, said her medical background complements a life busy in community involvement.

"I've served on Community Action boards and on boards for homeless people. I've also volunteered in programs for the elderly and helping low-income mothers. I feel all these activities helped prepare me for the type of community-involvement position that I now have," she said.

Having moved to Oakland with her husband Charles, Ross has numerous projects to develop with the assistance of the mayor and town council. These projects include the development of a "May Basket Day" during which local merchants would have bouquets of flowers in front of their businesses.

Others include the continuation and expansion of the "Wonderful Wednesday" promotion, assisting with the summer concert series, and the development of a visitors' center and retail outlet at the train station.

The Main Street program in Oakland is part of a nationwide effort to assist communities that show the leadership and the interest to improve themselves. The program makes available the expertise of community enhancement professionals as well as funding for such projects as façade renovation. In the past several years a number of businesses have availed themselves of these opportunities.

WALKING THE MAIN STREETS OF OAKLAND – Cherie Ross, the new Main Street manager, has been on the job for three months, and said she is having a great time working with retailers and other business leaders. Her biography and priorities are outlined in the accompanying story.

Local Democrats Optimistic In Spite Of Low Numbers

"We [Democrats] are small, but we're mighty," said Zelma Neary, a Mtn. Lake Park resident and registered Democrat, at a recent Democratic covered dish meeting. Eighteen of the group's 135 members attended.

Doris Goldsborough, a former Central Committee member for the group, quoted numbers obtained from the election board. "As of January of 2004, Garrett County had 9,879 registered Republicans and 4,769 Democrats," she said. Very few elected officials in the area are registered Democrats – the most known is perhaps Oakland mayor Asa McCain.

"What we have to do is to reach out to the younger people," said Neary. "The older ones are already set in their ways. We're starting a recruitment campaign, and one day we'll have more Democrats than Republicans."

Thomas Pratt of Kitzmiller said that the small turnout did not reflect any lack of interest but instead reflected the fact that much of the membership was either away for the winter months or on vacation. Pratt said there was a strengthening of the party locally that was not reflected in the number of attendees at the gathering.

DEMOCRATS MEET – A group of Garrett County Democrats, though small in number, say they plan on growing by getting young people involved in politics. Eighteen of the 135 listed members showed up for a recent meeting. Pictured above are Phebe Neary, Jackie Brady, Ellen Pritts, Annabelle Perando, Zelma Neary, Maria Handley, David W. Paugh Sr., Ron Perando, Lance Hodes, Mary Lou Bauer, Doris Goldsborough, Lynn McDaniel, George Brady, Clint Englander, S. Fritz, Susan Hertz, Thomas J. Pratt, and Tom Hertz. See story.

"We need to get the message out that we are the party that care about the working man," Pratt said. "We want a higher minimum wage, job security and health insurance of some kind."

At 27, Neary was the youngest person in attendance. She said that this country has to get back to taking care of its people rather than spending money on a war that had nothing directly to do with either terrorism or weapons of mass destruction.

Annabelle Perando expressed her concern over the new Medicare package which she said would wind up costing seniors a lot more money out of their pockets than any previous plan. She also said that many of her fellow Democrats were very concerned over the "squandering" of the national surplus, and the tax cuts for the wealthy "that is being spent for things damaging us in the eyes of the world."

A sheet of printed paper was set before each person in attendance that called to Congress to censure the president for "hyping the threat that Iraq posed." At the bottom of the page was a web page address for club members to lobby Congress for the censure.

Clint Englander, 85, of Oakland said Garrett County was not always dominated by the Republican Party.

"I remember when we had Democrats as commissioners, delegates, and a senator. We'll get there again, but it will take a lot of work," he said.

In Remembrance Of...

Pauline DeBerry or "Nana" was a loving wife, mother, sister, aunt, grandmother, and friend. Each of us will remember and share her in our own way: as a caring, religious, hard working, determined, strong willed, yet humble woman. Most will remember her with the little curled smile and "Can I help you?" or "I'm ready to go." She loved to travel–Now she is on her last journey...

If she were here I'm sure she would say a hardy THANK YOU for all your thoughts and deeds. Special thanks to Kitty Stuart, Barbara Briggs, all the staff of Rose Terrace and Mt. Glade Day Care for their dedicated care for making later life a lot easier, and the good people of Hospice, what can I say, again, thank you so much.

NANA GO IN PEACE. We love you.

We would like to extend a special thank you to the following for their generosity, kindness, prayers and love as Clark battles his illness at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Family members
Friends
Keystone Lime Co. co-workers
Flushing Shirt Factory co-workers
Those who donated personally and anonymously

Local businesses who gave donations and those who organized & made the benefit dance a success.

Your support has given us the strength and comfort we need to face the challenges in front of us

Thanking you again,

NHS STUDENTS PREPARE FOR YEAR ABROAD – Two local students from Northern High School have been selected to become ambassadors for the United States Rotary Youth Exchange for the upcoming 2004-05 school year. Throughout the current months before their individual departures, Steve Rounds and Annie Winter will attend several functions to prepare them for what they will face in the foreign countries. Rounds will head to Argentina, and Winter will travel to Germany. During these conferences, they will have the opportunity to meet and mingle with other American students headed to other countries (outbounds), as well as those students from foreign countries who are currently residing in the United States through the same program (inbounds). Under the leadership and supervision of the trained Rotarian staff, they will be asked to use logic to solve problems, use humor to dissolve barriers, and anticipate the upcoming year abroad. ## Black Bear now put through a harmless yet frightening "scare away" process involving rubber bullets and loud noises to keep them from returning to problem areas.)

Bear #90 dropped off the DNR radar for about 10 years, Spiker said, but reappeared in 2001 denned in a brush pile. A radio collar was placed on the sow in 2002, and her activities have been tracked since then.

Yesterday's process involved replacing her radio collar, checking on her general health, and tagging the ears of her four offspring.

Paul Peditto, director of the state DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Service, directed yesterday's outing, but gave credit to the bear experts for their well-orchestrated process.

"These people are professionals," Peditto said. "This is something they do on a routine basis. They know the animal, they know the risks. They are all players in a finely tuned operation."

Indeed, the process, which always has the potential for a number of outcomes, went off without a hitch. While the group of about 15 spectators waited at a nearby home, the DNR authorities found the sow and shot her with a tranquilizer gun. Because of her unusually large size (343 pounds), a second shot was needed to subdue her.

When she was safely asleep, the team allowed the spectators to hike up to the den site. There the four cubs were taken out of the den. The young animals were weighed (each were between 7 and 8 pounds), and both ears were tagged. The Wildlife Service has tagged nearly 400 bears in the last several years as the service continues its research and conservation of the bear population.

"Tagging the cubs helps us keep a history on those individual bears," Spiker said. He explained that his staff might see them again as nuisance bears, or they may travel beyond the county and be found in neighboring states. "We have found bears here who were originally tagged in Pennsylvania or West Virginia," he said.

The guests yesterday were allowed to hold the cubs while the staff worked on the sow. The cubs, born seven weeks ago, had never seen the light of day, and certainly had never been handled by humans. They grunted and squealed at first, but were quieted with gentle handling. The humans were somewhat overcome by the endearing appearance of the 7- and 8-pound cubs.

The DNR personnel reminded the guests, hov

Black Bear

ever, that the animals are indeed wild, and should be treated as such. Persons who come upon cubs in the wild should immediately go back they way they came, Spiker said, because in normal circumstances, the mother bear will not be far behind. And in just a few months, these four cubs will be out and about, growing larger and stronger.

Bear #90 is large for a sow, Spiker said, as the average weight for the females is between 200 and 250 pounds. She was lugged out of her den, and the work on her commenced quickly. Dr. Cindy Driscoll, the veterinarian for the DNR, checked the animal's vital signs, injected her with a preventive dose of penicillin, and assessed her overall health. Blood and hair samples were taken as well.

"This is a very healthy bear," she concluded. In addition to the radio collar, this particular sow has two ear tags and a lip tattoo.

DOING WHAT THEY DO – There is much work to be done on a bear who is only temporarily "out of commission." After a large bear like this one is drugged with a dart (two in this case), the window for work is about 45 minutes. Dr. Cindy Driscoll is pictured as she injects the sow with antibiotics (also shown are Rande Brown, response team member, and Paul Peditto (his back to the camera), director of the Maryland DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Service. The larger-than-average bear is shown at right as the team struggles to weigh her. Photos by John McEwen.

The cubs were also assessed and found to be in good health.

The birth rate among Garrett County bears is high, with sows producing an average of three cubs every two years. Spiker said the average in southern states is about 2 to 2 1/2, while out West the black bears "are lucky to have two," he said.

"This is a very productive region for the black bear," said Peditto. Spiker said the variety of trees, such as beech, hickory, and wild cherry, gives the bear a good diet, along with all the insects. Bears regularly consume ants, bees, grubs, and other insects, and also feast on small mammals and birds, although more rarely.

"Bears are what I call 'opportunistic' hunters," Spiker said. "If there is a small mammal available and if the bear is hungry enough, he'll eat it. But bears are chiefly herbivores."

Peditto gave credit to the Garrett County residents, who he said are generally accepting of the bear population, and who are far more "bear aware" than most people in Maryland.

"People here have responded well to living with bears," Peditto said. "There is good evidence that they are doing their best in trying to keep bears out of trouble. They take in their bird feeders and they lock up their trash. In general, I think the residents want the bears to continue to be a part of the very complex wildlife system here."

As for the bear population, Peditto said it is a "great conservation success story."

"In 1972, the black bear was endangered in Maryland. Through conservation projects and years of work, they have rebounded. The DNR Wildlife and Heritage Service is very serious about conserving bear habitat."

While the controversial issue of the proposed bear hunt was not discussed much during yesterday's event, Peditto did touch upon it while discussing the Black Bear Project work.

"A limited bear hunt is just one small part of a complex conservation and management plan," Peditto said. "We have spent years in conserving the habitat and studying the bears. We certainly don't want them eradicated. I don't know of anyone who wants that.

YES, THEY ARE CUTE, BUT black bears are wild animals that should never be approached by amateurs, especially when a sow has cubs. This was stressed several times as yesterday's events unfolded under the regulated direction of DNR officials. Harry Spiker, Bear Project leader at Mt. Nebo, is pictured in the first photo as he holds out a cub just plucked from the den. Note the claws. "They are expert tree-climbers," Spiker said. In the next two photos, Steve Bittner, area DNR biologist, and Terry DeWitt (with the beard), DNR response team, weigh and tag the ears of the cubs. Heather Lynch, public relations specialist for the DNR, is pictured in the last photo as she readies to hand the tagged cubs back to rejoin their mother. Photos by John McEwen.

Adorable Adoptables

FRIENDLY, is how a Humane Society spokesperson describes this large Doberman mix, who is available for adoption from the Garrett County Animal Shelter. "But please don't adopt him just to tie him up somewhere," she said. "Make sure you have room for him to run, and he will need shots and to be neutered." Also available is a large white female cat with orange patches. She was brought in as a stray, but acts as if she has been cared for by someone because she is very loving. Last week's longhaired tabby was adopted, but there are still many other cats at the shelter in need of good homes. Spay/neuter discount certificates are still available. Garrett County residents may pick them up at the shelter and receive $25 off the procedures for their pets. More than 100 have been given out so far. "Help end the overpopulation problem and have your pets altered," said the spokesperson. For information, persons may call the Animal Shelter at 301-334-3553.

FSU Orienteering Club Seeking Financial Support

The Frostburg State University Orienteering Club is seeking financial support needed to attend the Intercollegiate National Competition in Connecticut on April 2 to 4. The team will represent both the college and western Maryland.

The club is a recognized student organization, which exists to promote overall health and enjoyment of athletic endeavors, and to build physical endurance, mental clarity, navigation skills, self-confidence, and teamwork through the sport of orienteering.

Orienteering is a both a physical and mental sport. Participants are given a map that indicates the starting area, a course of control points, and the finish line. Orienteering competitors use the map and a compass to navigate the course, seeking to do so in the least amount of time.

This requires physical endurance to race, as well as problem solving and critical thinking to choose the clearest, fastest route to each control point and to the finish line.

Donations can be made payable to FSU Orienteering and mailed to John Gregory, 239 Moonridge Lane, Grantsville, MD 21536. Any funds received after April 2 will be placed in the club treasury to be used for future competitions.

FSU ORIENTEERING CLUB SEEKS FUNDS – Members of the Frostburg State University Orienteering Club are seeking financial support to attend the Intercollegiate National Competition in Connecticut on April 2 to 4. ## Trials To Begin On HIV Vaccine Using Protein Developed In Md.

by Alex Quinones
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – A Maryland biomedical research company said Tuesday that the Food and Drug Administration has cleared the way for human trials to begin on an HIV vaccine it helped develop.

Kensington-based Advanced BioSciences Laboratories developed a protein that – when used in conjunction with a vaccine based on the DNA of five different strains of HIV – allows the body to develop antibodies to the virus that causes AIDS. The vaccine was created by the University of Massachusetts. It takes the unusual approach of attacking several types of HIV at once, said Dr. Jeff Kennedy, who will be directing the clinical trials for the university.

"No one, up to this point, has ever tried to induce a broad immune response, where the immune response is handed a shotgun instead of an M-16," Kennedy said. "The traditional methods of creating a vaccine weren't going to work ... We needed to try the next level of vaccine development."

One advantage of the shotgun approach is that it should counter the virus's ability to evolve quickly, Kennedy said.

Last year, about 3 million people died of AIDS worldwide, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and there are about 40 million people living with HIV today. The latest figures for Maryland show that 1,854 people died of AIDS in the state during 2002, according to the Kaiser Family Foundation.

The experiments – expected to begin in April – will take place at the University of Massachusetts in Worcester, Mass., which has already begun to seek volunteers, Kennedy said. The first phase of human trials will include 36 people who will each take three doses of the DNA element of the vaccine and two doses of the protein during a 12-month period, according to CytRx Corp. of Los Angeles, which would hold commercial rights to the vaccine.

The partnership between CytRx, Advanced BioSciences Laboratories, and the university is one of four funded by a $70 million National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases project that works with private companies to develop a vaccine for HIV.

Dr. Stuart Shapiro, of the institute, said he expects about a dozen HIV vaccines to be introduced into clinical trials this year, signaling a new approach for the institute in which it is trying several vaccines instead of a handful.

"The good news is that we are priming the pump," Shapiro said. "The NIH (National Institutes of Health) has really been an organization that funds basic research. With this ... we are preparing to promote products."

Shapiro said that DNA vaccines could be a great benefit to the industry. Because the vaccines are very similar to each other, he said, it should make it easier for companies to get into the business.

"In the future, if the DNA vaccines work for HIV, people may shift to using those for all diseases," Shapiro said.

Sci-Fi Novel To Be Discussed By Teen Book Club

The Ruth Enlow Library Teen Book Club will meet on Saturday, April 10, at 2 p.m. in the Oakland library to discuss author Garth Nix's 1998 science fiction thriller Shade's Children. All students 12 and older may attend and participate.

"The key to survival rests in the hands of Shade's children," states the publisher's book description. "In a futuristic urban wasteland, evil Overlords have decreed that no child shall live a day past his 14th birthday. On that Sad Birthday, the child is the object of an obscene harvest resulting in the construction of a machinelike creature whose sole purpose is to kill.

"The mysterious Shade – once a man, but now more like the machines he fights – recruits the few children fortunate enough to escape. With luck, cunning, and skill, four of Shade's children come closer than any to discovering the source of the Overlords' power – and the key to their downfall. But the closer the children get, the more ruthless Shade seems to become...."

Shade's Children garnered an average 4½ out of a possible 5 stars in 126 readers' reviews posted on Amazon.com.

Persons may visit the Oakland library or call 301-334-3996 to reserve a copy of the book.

Rams Anticipate Continued Success On Baseball Diamond

The quest for another Western Maryland Interscholastic League title, another area title, and Southern High School's first state baseball title will begin this weekend when Coach Jim Bosley and the 2004 varsity Rams open their season at Hampshire.

The Rams' unprecedented record in recent years includes eight of nine WMIL championships, nine area championships, five regional championships, and five state tournament appearances, but that state title has remained just outside the grasp of the Rams.

With several key players back from last year's 17-3 squad, whose season was ended by eventual state champion South Hagerstown in the 1A West Region final, maybe this will be the year that the Rams will match the accomplishment of Southern girls' varsity basketball team by capturing their first state title.

Those key veterans back this year are first-team All-Area and pre-season All-State pitcher Chris Smith, first-team All-Area catcher Billy Reams, first-team All-WMIL infielder and pitcher Scott Wildesen, senior Corey Burrell (P/OF), and senior Travis Friend (1A/OF).

"Once again the strength of our team is obviously pitching and catching," Bosley said. "Chris Smith returns after a record-setting year with an 11-1 personal mark and 100 strike-outs in 60 innings pitched. His 11 wins and 100 Ks are school records.

"Scott Wildesen returns to give us a good 1-2 combo (left-hander, right-hander, respectively)," he said.

Billy Reams, Corey Burrell, Cory Bosley, Aaron Louden, Tyler Graham, and Brad Reese can all expect to see time on the mound, which rounds out a solid pitching staff for the Rams.

"Billy (Reams) is by far the best catcher in the area," Bosley said. "He possesses great hands and has a strong throwing arm, not to mention an outstanding bat."

Junior Ryan Heselbach will be Reams' backup.

"Defensively we should be very good, with these returning starters plus a strong group of jayvee players who have moved up," Bosley said.

As for starting positions, Smith will occupy first base when he is not pitching, with seniors Curt Taylor or Travis Friend holding that spot when Smith is on the mound.

Wildesen, a junior, will start at second base, with junior Brad Reese also seeing time there.

Cory Bosley, a junior who missed last season because of a broken kneecap sustained in the basketball playoffs, will anchor the shortstop position.

"Cory is a solid defensive player and his hitting is much improved," Bosley said.

Tyler Graham, also a junior, will start at third. "Tyler has a good glove and a strong arm," said Bosley.

The outfield candidates are juniors Aaron Louden, Brad Reese, and Chris Miller, and seniors Corey Burrell and Travis Friend.

Bosley is beginning his 25th year at the helm of the Ram program. His overall record is 354-110, giving him a win percentage of 76.3, by far the best among area coaches and throughout the state. He was recently named the Maryland High School Baseball Coach of the Year, which is awarded to just one coach from all sizes of Maryland high schools (1A-4A), plus private schools.

With the continued winter-like conditions, the Rams will go into their first game with little or no time spent practicing outdoors.

"We haven't been outside yet, but that seems to happen to us almost every year," Bosley said, "so we don't use that as an excuse."

The coach said he was "not big on setting goals," but he said he expects the Rams to be in the running for WMIL and area championships every year.

"The most important thing for us, especially this year, with only 13 players on the varsity roster, is to stay healthy," Bosley said, "and we want to stay focused for the playoffs and, hopefully, a trip to the state tournament."

Bosley noted that the local American Legion team that is coached by former Garrett College coach Ed Wildesen and Neal Stoner is a key reason that the Rams will be competitive this season.

"Nine of our 13 players played a lot of summer games last year against good competition," he said. "Kids who normally don't pitch or even play a lot in high school got some valuable experience. I know this will be very helpful to them, and obviously to our team, this season."

Other members of Bosley's coaching staff this year are Dan Holler, Steve Weaver, and Charles Plauger. Coaching the junior varsity squad, which consists of six sophomores and eight freshmen, are Tom Bosley and Greg Tressler. Walter Lee is the trainer for both teams.

Following Saturday's opener at Hampshire, the Rams are slated to play at Allegany on Monday and at Preston next Wednesday.

Par-Matt Bowler Rolls 300 Game

Twelve consecutive strikes rolled by Reuben Collins gave him his first-ever 300 game, and the first 300 game of the 2003-04 season at Par-Matt Lanes.

Collins, who is a member of the Monday Merchants & Club Trio Mixed League team sponsored by Team One, achieved the rare feat during league play on March 15.

Collins rolled the perfect game in the first of his three-game series, and his hot streak continued through games two and three. He finished with a 248 in the second game and a 233 in his third, giving him a set of 781.

He actually rolled 14 consecutive strikes, as he started his second game with two. He left the 8-pin in the third frame, but converted for the spare. He hit the pocket 19 consecutive times, yielding 17 strikes and two "taps" by 8 pins.

Collins' previous best game was 279, which featured eight strikes in a row. He is currently averaging 208 per game after 84 games. He recently placed sixth in singles scratch with a 699 and fifth in the all-events scratch (1,937) of the Western Maryland Bowling Association's annual championship tournament.

Collins will receive a ring from the American Bowling Congress in recognition of his 300 game.

Huskies Bring Experience To Bear In Spring Baseball Hunt

The outlook for the 2004 Husky baseball team is one of high expectations, according to Northern High coach Phil Carr, who draws on a talent pool that includes five returning full-time starters from last year's 12-9 squad. NHS opens its campaign tomorrow at Allegany in a 4 p.m. debut, then hosts Mapletown Saturday in a noon doubleheader.

"We feel real good about the nucleus of kids returning," Carr stated as he previewed the coming campaign. "This is the best group of returning players we have had in several years, because in addition to those starters we have three other players coming back who played a significant role last season."

Missing from this year's NHS line-up after graduating last spring are Jordan Brenneman, Landon Southerly, and Garrett College freshman outfielder player Dan Vagnetti, the most productive batter in NHS's order last year with a .397 average and two home runs.

The returning starters, with last year's statistics in parentheses, are centerfielder Torrey Poholsky (20 hits, 10 runs batted in, .303 average for 2003); second baseman Derek Workman (19 hits, 15 RBIs, .306 avg.); catcher Chad Carr (12 hits, three RBIs, .218 avg.); first baseman Danny Ellis (21 hits, 15 RBIs, .350 avg.), and shortstop Preston Sisler (15 hits, 13 RBIs, .227 avg.).

The trio of experienced former part-timers set to join the starting ranks is composed of rightfielder Jason Rice (6 hits, 1 RBIs, .545 avg.); leftfielder Jason Thomas (6 hits, 5 RBIs, .261 avg.), and third baseman Darrick Lowdermilk (batting stats not available), a 2003 junior varsity mainstay.

The heart of the Husky batting order will likely feature Ellis batting third, Workman at clean-up, and either Carr or Johnson in the fifth spot. Workman brings the most wallop back to the plate from last year, as he smacked two homers to tie Vagnetti for the team lead and tallied a .452 slugging average, second only to Vagnetti among the starters.

Other players expected to see action this season include infielders Kris Carr and Trevor Butler, and outfielders Matt Bass, Michael Wolf, and Michael Bergstrom. Eric Johnson is likely to get playing time in both the infield and outfield.

It's on the mound where Northern is the deepest, Carr indicated, pointing to Poholsky, Rice, Sisler, and the up and coming Lowdermilk. Each member of that quartet can be a "quality starter," said the coach.

Poholsky (3-1 record, 37.1 innings pitched, 52 strikeouts, and a 1.89 earned run average in 2003) is already recognized as one of the best pitchers in the area. A crafty southpaw with excellent control, the senior is known for a hard to hit curve ball and assortment of other off-speed pitches. Rice (2-3, 23 IP, 37 Ks, 1.83 ERA) is an overpowering righthander, who puts his 6-3 frame to good use in hurling a fastball that has a good deal of movement to it. Sisler (0-1, 3 IP, 3 Ks, 2.33 ERA) is another righty with good speed and a good breaking ball, who is coming off a superb Hot Stove League season this past summer. Lowdermilk, the new face on the varsity mound, showed excellent promise during a 6-1 jayvee campaign last season as a sophomore. The off-speed specialist's only loss came by one run to Beall.

The deep Husky pitching rotation also includes Johnson and Ellis, while JV hurlers Blake Walker and Greg Beachy may be getting some varsity work, Coach Carr said.

Another strong suit for NHS this season should be evident on the basepaths, where Northern has some excellent speed. Wolf stole 10 bases last season despite his limited playing time, and Workman purloined four bases.

The one glaring weakness of the NHS squad last year was its defense, which Carr admitted struggled at times. The Huskies have gotten in a couple of scrimmage games this month, despite the bad weather, which helped them fine-tune their fielding skills in preparation for tomorrow's

SHS Softball Team Crushes Keyser, 25-0

It was a solid opener yesterday for the Southern High School girls' softball team, as the Rams rolled over host Keyser, 25-0, in a game shortened to five innings because of the 10-run rule.

Ashley Metcalfe and Sara Mullenax combined on the mound for a no-hitter for the Rams, with Metcalfe fanning seven batters and allowing three walks, and Mullenax striking out four of the six batters she faced.

Leading the Rams 19-hit performance was Stephanie Brenneman, who smacked a home run and three singles. Kayla Nazelrod and Rebecca Flanagan each hit homers.

Southern took a commanding 11-0 lead into the fourth inning and then erupted for 14 more runs in that frame to put the game away.

The Rams will play again this afternoon at Fort Hill and travel to Hampshire next Monday.

The Rams and their coach John Coffman are off to a good start in improving on last year's record of 5-10.

Last year's graduation was kind to the program, as Amber Bernard was the only top performer in that senior class. Among the best players back this season are Brenneman, Flanagan, Metcalfe, and Julia Bosley.

"This team should be strong both in hitting and pitching," Coffman said, "and they have a very good work ethic. Our goals are to improve on last year's record and to work hard in every game for a win."

Assisting Coffman are Chris Metcalfe, Kevin Mark, and Bill Bateson.

GC Overrun By Speedy Monroe; Just Misses Downing NW Shoals

After opening with a convincing win in last Wednesday's (March 17) opening round of the National Junior College Athletic Association Tournament, the Garrett College women's basketball team ran into some rough seas this week. The Lakers were swamped by national powerhouse Monroe Community College of Rochester, N.Y., on Thursday, March 18, by a 96-55 margin, then were bumped from the post-season the following day in a narrow 77-73 defeat at the hands of Northwest Shoals CC of Alabama.

Despite going out with two straight losses, the Lakers can hold their heads high knowing that Monroe went on to claim the national championship with ease, while NW Shoals finished third in the 24-team NJCAA Tournament field. Garrett's season ended at 28-6, its best mark ever as the Lakers went further in the post-season than any GC women's hoops team had ever gone before.

"I just can't begin to say how proud I am of this team," Garrett coach Steve Willison said after the Lakers returned from the Kansas tourney site this week. "We went out there and held our own against that level of competition, proving that the whole Maryland JUCO is a strong conference. We opened by beating a tough Kankakee squad – a former national champion – lost to the eventual champs in Monroe, and had a good chance at beating NW Shoals and moving on into the semifinals. There were a lot of Division I and II schools there looking at our girls, and I can guarantee that those recruiters were impressed."

Ironically, one of the highlights of the Lakers' week came in their worst loss, the 41-point drubbing by Monroe. The 55 points GC scored against the Tribunes was the most any team scored in the tourney against Monroe, which brought the second-stingiest defense in the nation into the post-season.

Garrett held close through the first half Thursday against the Tribs, and were down by a slim 49-41 margin at the intermission. Monroe came out in the second half to record a 57-14 tally with some "incredible defense," Willison said. The Lakers hit just 17 percent of their shots from field goal range in the second half after Monroe switched to a trapping zone defensive scheme. "They were very athletic and aggressive, the best team we faced all year," the Laker skipper stated.

Sophomore LaSha Anderson scored a team-high 22 points for the Lakers, hitting 9 of 16 field goal attempts including four three-pointers. Classmate Jenna Bradford had 15 points and snagged six rebounds, while Denae Kennedy netted 9 points. Monroe was paced by Tara Walker's game-high 27 points, while Renee Taylor recorded 24 points including four straight treys in the second half that bumped Monroe into an 18-point lead with 12 minutes on the clock.

"Garrett was concerned with Renee's penetration, so they played off her and it gave her some opportunities to shoot the ball," remarked MCC coach Tim Parrinello. "Making nine 3-pointers in the first half, that's a great start. That's what you dream about doing."

The loss landed the Lakers in a consolation bracket the following night against NW Shoals, in a contest that GC showed it could hold its own against the eventual third-place finisher in the country. At the half Garrett was down 39-34, and the Patriots began to pull away from the Lakers over the course of the second half.

But GC refused to throw in the towel and, down by 9 points with just two minutes on the clock, the Lakers went to a full court defensive press that shut NW Shoals down completely. Garrett's ratcheting up the pressure unglued the Patriots, and the Lakers recorded several steals and scored seven straight points to pull within two, 75-73.

With seven seconds remaining GC made a huge play on defense by pressuring the Patriots into throwing the ball away on the Garrett end of the floor. The Lakers then had an inbounding opportunity at their own end of the floor, a play that could have either tied the score or won the game outright; however, in running a box play and alley-oop attempt, the scoring try failed when the toss went out of bounds. GC was then forced to foul, sending NW Shoals to the charity stripe to finish off the contest with a pair of successful free-throws.

"That was a tough way to end it," Willison commented. "That inbounds

GC SEASON ENDS AT NATIONALS – The Garrett College women's basketball team, which went where no Laker women's squad had gone before, was eliminated from the National Junior College Athletic Association Championship Tournament this week in losses to Monroe, which eventually claimed the title, and Northwest Shoals, which finished third. This photo essay captures action from both games, played last Thursday and Friday, respectively, in Overland Park, Kansas. Pictured above to the left is freshman forward Amanda Frantz (#20), as the former Northern High standout is triple-teamed in the corner by Monroe, leaving another Laker open under the basket to take Frantz's assist for an easy two points. Sophomore LaSha Anderson (#42), center, has her eyes on the basket Thursday; the following night she scored a team-high 22 points against NW Shoals. Classmate LaTonya Crowder (#12), right, goes up for a close-in shot against NW Shoals Friday, while Garrett coach Steve Willison is pictured below during a timeout in a courtside strategy session with Crowder and fellow sophomores Tiffany McFarland (#44) and Jenna Bradford (#23). Garrett's best-ever campaign concluded at 28-6, a remarkable run of quick and steady improvement over the three years of Willison's tenure. Photos by Bret Gustafson.

Young Northern Track Teams To Open Season At Meyersdale

Inexperience will no doubt be the biggest challenge for the Northern High School boys' and girls' track teams and their respective coaches, Ron Opel and Kelly Stewart. The young Husky squads will open their 2004 campaign next Thursday with a tri-meet hosted by Meyersdale High School.

Top athletes on the NHS boys' team who were lost to graduation last spring on the Northern boys' team include Shawn Fike, Lee Yoder, Chris Clever, Michael Guard, and Brian Covell. Among the more experienced personnel who are back this season are juniors Nick Maxim, Matt Clise, Scott Pusateri, and senior Remington Friend.

Coach Opel said that, because of winter weather conditions, many question marks remain as to which athletes will compete in which events.

Maxim will be the primary hurdler, and also run the 400-meter dash and the 4x400 relay. Clise will also run the 400 and be a member of the 400 relay, along with distance runners Pusateri and Friend, who will compete also in the 1,600 and 3,200 events.

"Our strength this year is in our numbers," Opel said. "This is the most we've had on the team in about six years. It may not seem like a lot to other schools, but for us, having 25 guys is a great luxury.

"Our chief weakness will be general inexperience," he said. "We have quite a few rookies, but by the time regionals roll around, we believe we will have worked through that problem and will be competitive when it counts."

Northern High School Track Schedule

| Date | Opponent | Loc. |
|---|---|---|
| 4/1 | Meyersdale/ Shade | A |
| 4/7 | Berlin | H |
| 4/13 | Beall | A |
| 4/20 | Garrett Co. Meet | H |
| 4/24 | Ft. Hill Inv. | A |
| 4/27 | WMIL Meet | A |
| 5/1 | Calhoun Inv. @ F.S.U. | A |
| 5/5,6 | Area Meet @ Beall | A |
| 5/11 | Southern | A |
| 5/13 | Beall | A |
| 5/21 | Region Meet @ Smithsburg | A |
| 5/27, 29 | State Meet @ Morgan St. | |

Opel believes that the strongest competition this season will come from Beall, Fort Hill, and county-rival Southern.

"Our goal for this season is the same: to improve throughout the year, do well at regions, and send as many athletes as possible to states," Opel concluded.

Even more inexperienced is the Northern girls' team, with no seniors and only one junior on the roster.

However, a strong nucleus returns from last year, including Tiffany Yoder, Sarah Stewart, April Kyle, Brittney Herring, Dana Hannibal, and Sami Frazee.

The aforementioned, plus Jessica Friend, Christy Stahl, Angela Nuñez, Shayla Rodeheaver, Carolyn Maxim, and Jutta Schoenlau, will anchor most of the events.

"Even though our team is young and inexperienced, the girls are driven and willing to learn," stated Coach Stewart. "We have some strong sprinters and throwers, and, with hard work, I see some real potential for our jumpers."

The Huskies' first home meet will be April 7 against Berlin.

GC Overrun

play had worked for us earlier in the season to win a game, but it just didn't go our way this time. I'm not disappointed, however, because our players showed some great effort and nearly pulled out the win. I think that could have given us the momentum to have gotten us the third-place spot with a win the following night in the semis. I know we are that good, if not better."

The Lakers put together a very balanced offensive effort during the contest, landing four players in the double figure scoring column. McFarland led the way with 18 points, capping a "very strong tournament" for her, according to her coach. Bradford, who earned All-Tournament honors, contributed 14 points and six steals, while Oakland native Ashley Liller recorded 13 points, handed out five assists, and hauled down six rebounds, and Anderson netted 11 points.

NW Shoals was paced to the win by Shonda Parker's 23 points, six rebounds, and five steals, while teammate Whitney Garrett scored 21 points and grabbed seven rebounds.

The Patriots went on to beat Parkland College (Ill.) the following night, 54-43, to finish third in the tournament. In the championship battle, Monroe downed Scottsdale CC (Ariz.) 63-41.

In addition to Bradford's individual All-Tourney honor, the Garrett Laker squad as a whole was presented with the NJCAA Tournament Sportsmanship Trophy following the conclusion of the post-season event.

WILLISON RESIGNS

One would be remiss not to point out that, although the end of every school's sports season is a moment tinged bittersweet as a team's graduates move on to other things, this season's conclusion is especially so for the Laker women's basketball program. Coach Willison, who took a team that struggled to a finish barely above .500 in his first campaign at GC during the 2001-02 season to the National Tournament in three short seasons, is leaving the program.

"It's devastating me to have to make this decision," Willison said this week, "but the past three years have been very tough on my family. Like many other people across the area, I have a long drive to make every day; combining the trip back and forth from my Keyser area home to my day job at Westmar High, then adding the McHenry round trip for games and evening practices often had me not getting home until 10 p.m. or later. I have a wife and small daughter, and it's not fair to them for me to be gone that much. If I could find employment closer to McHenry, perhaps we could make some other arrangements at home to make things work out.

"It's something a lot of folks have to deal with in living in this area, I realize, but it makes me sad. I want to be with my family, but I also am convinced that we are on the verge of making the Garrett College women's basketball program a national power for years to come. I'm very thankful for the time I've had at Garrett, and will miss the college very much."

Willison leaves Garrett in possession of the 2003-04 NJCAA Division II District "J" Coach of the Year Award, one of only a dozen coaches nationwide to earn the honor in the circuit's 12 districts. A photo with more information is expected to be available for next week's issue.

It's hard to believe that it's been a year
Our hearts are still heavy, but we know that you're here.
And every single day, more times than you know
We reminisce the great memories and never let go.
We know that God you chose as an angel to lead,
It was your body that failed you,
but your soul has been freed.
If only we had been given that extra day or more miles
But when we look up at heaven, all we see is your smiles.

Spring Biathlon Set At Herrington Manor State Park

The second annual Spring Run and Ride Biathlon is slated for Saturday, April 3, at Herrington Manor State Park. Planned and organized by Garrett College Adventure Sports students, the competition will feature a 3½-mile trail run and a 9-mile mountain bike event with categories for individuals, teams, and families.

While advance registration is available (see below), participants can also register on-site beginning at 7:30 a.m. race day, and the competition itself gets under way at 10 a.m. Registration forms or sponsorship packets can be obtained by calling 301-387-3335.

The Biathlon is being organized by the Adventuresports Institute of Garrett College in conjunction with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources. The process provides students with a hands-on community service learning project in applying concepts and techniques learned in the classroom, according to a Garrett College spokesperson. "They will organize and deliver a community event which emphasizes a focus on family involvement and healthy competition."

The student Race Committee Team coordinators are undertaking the entire spectrum of event planning activities that will involve marketing and advertising, solicitation of sponsors, acquiring volunteers, registration, course and athlete safety, timing, logistics, and registration.

"Herrington Manor is an ideal location for this type of event," commented Biathlon Advisory Committee member and DNR Ranger Mike Cooper.

"This event is a valuable experience for the students, and we're glad to be a part of it," concurred Herrington Manor State Park manager Steve Hamilton.

"One thing that helps this year is that we have competition at every position, which makes everyone better," commented Carr. "Hopefully our experience will pay off this season, as a number of our older kids have played a lot of baseball together through the Hot Stove League and in high school. Their leadership will be crucial to our success. Our practices have been upbeat and competitive even though we have been mainly inside, but I attribute that to our seniors leading the way.

"We always hope to be competitive and fundamentally sound," the Huskies' skipper continued. "I stress to our kids that if we can do that, we can win a lot of games, and if we can play up to our potential we can make a run at the WMIL, Area, and Region, and State championships."

Following tomorrow's opener at Alco and Saturday's home twinbill with the Maples, the Huskies will visit Westmar Monday and Fort Hill Wednesday.

Carr listed Southern, Beall, Williamsport, Westmar, and Allegany as the toughest opponents on the Northern slate this year, noting Williamsport's Wildcats feature nationally renowned pitcher Nick Adenhart, a hard-throwing senior who has wowed major league scouts for several years already. The Huskies could conceivably face the righthanded fireballer, rated the top pitching prospect in the country by Baseball America magazine, during the Hancock High Easter Tournament, slated for Saturday, April 10.

YOU GOTTA RACE TO WIN — The competitive edge of top-notch athletes from across the region will be on display at Garrett College Adventuresports Institute's upcoming Spring Run and Ride Biathlon, set for a 10 a.m. start on Saturday, April 3, at Herrington Manor State Park. Advance registration is available (see story), and on-site registration will open at 7:30 a.m. the day of the race at Herrington Manor. Pictured crossing the finish line last year is 2003 Biathlon winner Rob Rohel, a member of the West Virginia University Bike Team. Persons may call 301-387-3335 for registration forms or sponsorship packets.

Deer Hunt Kill Declines From Previous Year

There was a modest decline in the number of deer taken by Maryland hunters during the 2003-04 season from the previous year, according to the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Wildlife and Heritage Service. The agency announced this week that the state's 2003-04 deer hunt tally totaled 87,223 deer (85,352 white-tailed deer and 1,871 sika deer), compared to 94,114 for the 2002-03 hunting season.

"The overall antlered white-tailed deer harvest of 36,829 was nearly 6 percent lower than the previous season," said Wildlife and Heritage Service director Paul A. Peditto. "Many rural counties in Maryland showed even greater decline in their buck harvest, an indication that we are beginning to see real progress toward balancing our deer populations in some areas.

"The current and proposed hunting regulations encourage the taking of antlerless white-tailed deer and discourage the harvest of young antlered bucks," Peditto added. "The recent harvest data demonstrate this model works, as evidenced by the reduction in buck harvest and the anticipated decline in deer population growth across Maryland's rural regions. At the same time, the harvest regulations increase the number of older bucks in the population and a healthier deer population overall — this is a quality deer management outcome."

The total white-tailed antlered harvest was 36,829 and the antlerless white-tail take totaled 48,523. Whitetail antlered totals dropped by 5.7 percent, and the antlerless harvest dipped by 8.5 percent from the previous year. The sika deer antlered harvest dropped by 12.8 percent to 875 deer, while the sika antlerless harvest declined 4.1 percent to 996 deer. Peditto said that the DNR would closely monitor the sika harvest next season to ensure the sika remains a viable part of our lower Eastern Shore landscape.

Maryland's Deer Management Plan guides DNR to stabilize white-tailed deer populations at levels present in 1997-98, according to an agency spokesperson, who said deer seasons and bag limits are designed to meet this goal. Since 1997, DNR has expanded hunting days and bag limits for antlerless deer and moderated the taking of antlered deer. The agency is proposing additional modifications to the deer hunting regulations to further ensure the goals of the plan are met.

Maryland deer hunters spend over 1.1 million days in Maryland's rural and suburban landscapes. In addition to providing venison for their families, deer hunters also donate needed meat to charitable groups that feed the hungry.

The most recent U.S. Fish and Wildlife survey of wildlife-associated recreation found that Maryland retail sales related to deer hunting in 2001 totaled $82.3 million, up 104 percent from 1996. When purchases related directly to deer hunting are taken into consideration, the overall effect on Maryland's economy rises to $156 million annually.

Charts of current deer harvest figures compared to last year's harvest, plus additional facts regarding deer biology, deer management, hunting regulations, and deer hunting are available at DNR's Web site at www.dnr.maryland.gov.

Manta Rays To Begin Another Swim Season

The Garrett County Manta Rays swim team will soon begin its 22nd competitive swimming season. The team consists of approximately 60 members, ranging in age from 5 to 18, and is led by head coach Nan Gangler. The team competes in the YMCA Summer League at the Riverside YMCA in Cumberland. There are six other teams that also compete in this league: Cumberland, Bel Air, Romney, Keyser, LaVale, and Hardy County, some of which swim and compete year-round. Each year the Manta Rays are one of the largest teams.

The season consists of one-hour practice sessions at the Alpine Lake Resort pool in Terra Alta, W.Va., on Saturday mornings until school is dismissed for the summer. The practice schedule then changes to Tuesday and Thursday mornings through the remainder of the season. The competitions, which begin in late June, consist of four preliminary meets in Cumberland and end with the championship meet in late July. Each of the four preliminary meets focus on one of the four basic swimming strokes: freestyle, backstroke, breaststroke and butterfly. The championship meet consists of all the strokes, after which individual champions are crowned in separate age and gender groups.

Coach Gangler stresses that the Garrett County swim team is not designed for those who do not know how to swim. It is designed for the swimmer who wants to refine his/her existing skills, learn new techniques, and to compete in an enjoyable atmosphere. Practice sessions emphasize stretching, conditioning, good sportsmanship, a team concept, and the use of proper swimming techniques, Gangler said.

An organizational meeting and try-outs will be held for the team this Saturday, March 27, at 10 a.m. at the Alpine Lake Resort pool. Tryouts will test swimmers' capabilities on basic skills necessary to participate on the swim team. Swimmers need to be able to do these basic swimming skills for the following strokes: freestyle (including proper arm strokes, flutter kick, and rhythmic breathing), backstroke (flutter kick and arm strokes), and breaststroke (whip kick, arm stroke, and proper timing). Swimmers will also be tested on advanced skills such as flip turns, competitive diving, and butterfly stroke.

Those swimmers wishing to try out for the Manta Rays need to attend the organizational meeting. For more information on the Garrett County swim team, persons may telephone Nan Gangler at 301-334-3467.

In the U.S.A. Gymnastics Program, competitive levels range from Level 4 to Level 10, with 7 through 10 considered as optional levels. Gymnasts in these levels may create their own routines and select their own music. Gymnasts in levels 8 through 10 can also place for regional and national levels of competition.

Rachel, a Level 7 gymnast, competed in the 11-year-old age group, achieving an overall score of 34.125 and placing sixth. She also place third on the balance beam with a score of 8.425.

Meghan, a Level 8 gymnast, competed in the 14-year-old age group. She achieved an overall score of 31.450, placing fifth. She also placed fifth in floor exercise with a score of 8.650.

Additionally, she qualified for the Region 7 regional competition, which includes gymnasts from Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia. The competition will take place at the Prince George's County Sports and Learning Complex in Landover on May 9.

police, and possession of a stolen credit card. Police also ascertained that Coates was wanted in Alexandria and Fairfax County, Va., on burglary, possession of cocaine, and gun theft charges.

Arrested at the scene of the traffic stop were the rear seat passenger, James Edward Robinson, 19, McClellandtown, Pa., and the Dodge's driver, Darrell Shaun Thornton, 19, Clinton. Robinson faces charges of possession of marijuana and possession of a deadly weapon, with the second charge filed after a modified baseball bat that police described as a "thug club" assault weapon was found in the vehicle. Thornton was charged with possession of marijuana and a seat belt violation. The pair were both released on their own recognizance after appearing before a District Court commissioner.

Coates remains incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail on a $75,000 bond.

Why would we work so hard to build them up only to have them all taken out?

"We have years of expertise and research on the black bear in western Maryland, and we will continue to manage and conserve the bear and its habitat," Peditto said.

As the work was finished on Bear #90, she began to move her mouth slightly.

"Okay, it's time to move on out," said Spiker. "She's going to be waking up soon." All non-essential individuals headed back down the hillside and out of the woods.

The sow was put back in her den and injected with a mild "wake up" drug, the vet said, which would help her come out of the induced sleep. The four cubs were placed back with their mother. To mask the human scent, Vick's Vapo-Rub was put on their faces and on the sow's snout.

"That went about as well as it ever could," said one bear expert.

This trip was just one of about four that the team will make this spring, Spiker said, as they track and monitor the 11 bears currently radio-collared in the county.

The guests were reluctant to disperse, excited about the once-in-a-lifetime experience. And although the event was a routine process for the DNR officials, they, too, appeared to appreciate the success of the day.

"This is a great job," Spiker said. "I'm lucky to work with the great people here, and to take part in things like this."

"Golden Times" Exposition Slated; Exhibitors Sought

The Golden Times Tri-State Expo for older adults will be held May 13 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Lodge at the Wisp, McHenry. Free screenings – including vision, hearing, balance, and others – will be offered during the event, in addition to dozens of exhibits, educational presentations, and entertainment.

"If it has to do with aging well and living well, it will be there," said Adina Brode, director of the Area Agency on Aging at Garrett County Community Action Committee.

The event is currently accepting exhibitors at $50 for government agencies and nonprofit organizations and $100 for private businesses.

"This is a wonderful opportunity for exhibitors to reach a very large, regional sector of the population," Brode said. She pointed out that 21 percent of Garrett County residents are older than 60 years of age.

"Additionally, older adults from neighboring West Virginia and Pennsylvania also seek information and services in Garrett County, and the county is home to a considerable number of older part-time residents," Brode said.

In addition to the exhibits, advertising opportunities are available through the purchase of ads in an expo magazine that will be distributed to all attendees.

For more information on becoming an exhibitor or an advertiser, persons may call Ronnie Padmos at Community Action at 301-334-9431.

TRACK UPDATE

Darlington Raceway officials over the weekend showed off the new lighting system that will be used for the Nov. 12 Craftsman Truck Series race. It will be the first night race at the historic track.

The lights also could see use in the closing stages of the Southern 500 Nextel Cup race on Nov. 14 if that event were to be delayed by bad weather.

DARLINGTON REVIEW

Johnson tames DARLINGTON

Fast pit stop fuels win for No. 48 Chevrolet

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Darlington, S.C.

Sometimes Kyle Petty spices up things in NASCAR with his gift of gab. In Sunday's Carolina Dodge Dealers 400 at Darlington Raceway he made things interesting, unintentionally of course, by blowing the engine in his No. 45 Dodge with 18 laps to go.

When the caution flag was displayed for Petty's problems, it wiped out a half-straightaway lead by Bobby Labonte and put Jimmie Johnson in position to get his first win on the track "too tough to tame."

"This is the highlight of my career," Johnson said. "This is such a tough track. From the moment I drove a lap around here, I thought that to win here you've got to really be on your game.

"If you look at the people who have had success here, they're the best in the business."

Johnson, who now has seven wins on the Nextel Cup circuit, fought off Labonte, a former Darlington winner, in a spirited duel over the final laps. But the outcome effectively was decided on pit road after Petty's spin.

Johnson drove onto pit road in third position behind Labonte and Kurt Busch, but came out with the lead over Labonte, who finished second over Ryan Newman, Robby Gordon and Elliott Sadler.

The crew on Johnson's No. 48 Chevy got the credit for making a fast stop and for choosing a good pit stall.

"We had a great stop, and I just had to deal with Bobby there at the end," Johnson said, adding that having a pit stall on the fourth-turn side of pit road played into his favor.

His location actually became more advantageous as the race went on because the two drivers with stalls on either side of him — Jeff Gordon and Andy Hillenburg — dropped out early. Hillenburg's exit allowed Johnson to drive straight in and out of his pits, then steer to the outside of pit road and bypass other drivers entering and leaving their pits.

"I had a clean in and clean out," Johnson said. "I just accelerate out of my pit, hit the pit road speed and hope it all works out."

Labonte, who had to work his way around other drivers pitted near his stall, agreed that losing the lead on the last pit stop essentially doomed his chances.

"There at the end, when [Johnson] got in front of us in the pits, that was it," he said. "We couldn't get by him. We tried our best, but we just couldn't do it."

Labonte said his No. 18 Chevy was plenty fast, but there weren't many opportunities to pass with just a handful of green flag laps at the end of the race.

"We were good enough to get close to [Johnson] but not make the full pass because it's a pretty narrow place to race on," he said, pointing out that Darlington's racing surface is even narrower now that 30 inches of SAFER barrier have been installed on the outside walls.

"It was harder to pass, and you had to pick and choose your places even more," he said. "I didn't see as much passing going on as there has been. It played out that the narrower upper groove made you be lower [on the track], which made it harder for somebody to pass you.

"But I still think it was a good race."

NASCAR

A victory in the Carolina Dodge Dealers 400 at Darlington lifted Jimmie Johnson three spots in the Nextel Cup standings. Johnson heads into Sunday's race at Bristol in sixth place.

DARLINGTON NOTEBOOK

Gordon says 'fillers' don't belong on track

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Darlington, S.C.

Jeff Gordon blasted the "field fillers" in the Nextel Cup Series, saying they're to blame for causing wrecks like the one that eliminated him from the Carolina Dodge Dealers 400 after just 27 laps.

As Gordon and the rest of the lead pack were lapping Andy Hillenburg in turns 1 and 2, Hillenburg and Tony Stewart touched, sending Hillenburg into a spin.

GORDON

Gordon, whose vision was obscured by the smoke from the spin, slammed into the left door of Hillenburg's car.

"I haven't taken a hit like that possibly ever," Gordon said, adding that there were several near-crashes before that.

"There are a bunch of cars out there that do not belong out there," he said. "They're off the pace. They're in the way."

He said the problem was especially bad at Darlington, where the track is so narrow.

"I came on the radio and asked if NASCAR could take some guys off the track, not just because they're slow, but because they're in the way," Gordon said.

Hillenburg said he knows his car is slow, but he's working to improve that. "We'll try to be one of the faster cars instead of a slower one," he said.

Gordon's 41st-place finish dropped him from fifth to 13th in the points race.

Waltrip's hard luck

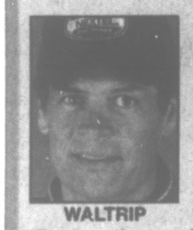
Michael Waltrip's season-long woes followed him to Darlington.



WALTRIP

He had a flat tire on Lap 9, drove to the garage for repairs, then soldiered to a 35th-place finish. He dropped a spot in the points standings to 37th.

"It's very disappointing," said Waltrip, who was a preseason pick to be a title contender. "But sometimes stuff happens in life that's crazy. We've had our share of bad luck, but there isn't anything we can do about that."

Kahne perseveres

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Darlington, S.C.

Hot rookie Kasey Kahne was impressive for a fourth race in a row, but this time he didn't have a top-three finish to show for it.

He lost ground once when he missed the entrance to pit road during a round of green-flag pit stops during Sunday's race at Darlington. He went a lap down when he blew a tire on his No. 9 Dodge, then made it up by passing the leaders under green, only to lose more ground due to a slow pit stop and a spinout after contact with Tony Stewart. Still he finished 13th.

"We had some negatives, but it was a good day," Kahne said.

Biffle victorious

It isn't really fair to call Greg Biffle a "Buschwhacker" because he's running the full Busch schedule in addition to his Nextel Cup duties. But his victory in Saturday's Diamond Hill 200 at Darlington was the fourth straight Busch Series win by a Nextel Cup regular.

BIFFLE

Biffle took the lead after a round of pits stops around Lap 105 and led the rest of the way to claim his 12th career Busch victory. It was the 13th Busch victory at Darlington for car owner Jack Roush and the ninth for Ford in the past 11 races at Darlington.

Biffle's Nextel Cup Series teammate Jeff Burton was second, ahead of Busch regulars David Green, Martin Truex Jr. and David Stremme.

— Rick Minter

INSIDE TALK

Tough day at Darlington narrows Kenseth's lead in standings

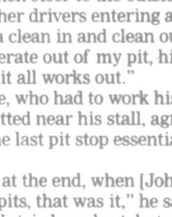
Nextel Cup points leader Matt Kenseth saw his hopes for a good finish in Sunday's Carolina Dodge Dealers 400 dashed by a spin and a disputed penalty from NASCAR.

Last year's champion was running in the top 10 when he got sideways and was hit from behind by Ricky Rudd, starting a six-car accident on Lap 161. After coming through the accident with little damage, Kenseth radioed to his crew that he wanted to stay on the track and lead a lap while the rest of the lead-lap cars made pit stops under the caution flag.



KENSETH

After moving to the head of the pack, Kenseth was hit with a one-lap penalty for passing cars under the caution flag.

Kenseth's crew chief Robbie Reiser didn't agree with NASCAR's decision.

"Don't ask me what NASCAR rules," he said. "Obviously, they've got a different set of rules for every race, and I guess I've just got to get a rule book for every race."

Kenseth later lost more ground when he, believing that a tire was going flat, pitted under green.

He finished the race 31st, his points advantage over second-place Dale Earnhardt Jr. dropping from 82 to 21.

Of Your Garrett County Forest Conservancy Board

by Paul Shogren

Your Garrett County Forest Conservancy Board met recently at the Mt. Nebo Department of Natural Resources office and took the following actions:

•agreed to purchase native tree seedlings for the Hickory Environmental Education Center arboretum and other interested school arboretums;

•set out to gain industry support to fund two scholarships at $275 to send two high school students to the Forestry and Natural Resources Career Week, scheduled for July 26-30 at the Hickory Center;

•called for a joint meeting with Allegany County Forest Conservancy Board to discuss matters of common concern;

•discussed concern that the sustained yield cut on state forest land is only half of what is allowed, due to budget cuts;

•voted to oppose HB 867 and HB 868, which would limit forest management on state lands and complicate the work of DNR in reporting the impact of logging on state land; and •agreed to change the monthly meeting date to the second Monday of each month, beginning at 9 a.m. The public is invited to attend the April 12 meeting at Mt. Nebo.

Forestry Board members also would like to inform all private forest landowners and the general public of the following:

•Arbor Day in Maryland is set for Wednesday, April 7, and National Arbor Day is Friday, April 30. No matter the date, April is a good time to plant tree seedlings;

•the deadline for submitting applications to attend the free career week at the Hickory Center (see above) is Thursday, April 15, for high school students only;

•the Maryland Forests Association (MFA) will conduct a free Regional Urban Forestry Workshop from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. this Saturday, March 27, in Room 105 of the Technology Building at Allegany College of Maryland. The public is invited, and refreshments will be provided. Learn how to make your property a healthy component of the Chesapeake Bay Watershed;

•pamphlets about forest taxation and information about burning permits can be obtained from Ernie Metz, DNR's Garrett County forest project manager at Mt. Nebo, by calling 301-334-3296. In some cases burning permits are required from both DNR and Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-7760;

•lastly, county citizens need to be aware that the spring fire season is approaching, and all should take responsibility to prevent forest fires along with Smokey Bear.

4-H Club News

SADDLE TRAMPS

Shanna Holliday, reporter

The March meeting of the Saddle Tramps 4-H Club was called to order by club president Jaclyn Skeweris. Meeting minutes were taken by Paige Wotring, and the treasurer's report was delivered by Ashley VanSickle.

The upcoming Walk for Hospice fund-raiser was discussed, and a meeting time was set for all members to sign in at the walk.

Sue Skeweris went over the record books and product record sheet with the new members. There is additional information about the record books available on the 4-H Web page.

There was no news available yet about the grant that the club has filed for.

The next meeting of the Saddle Tramps 4-H Club is set for 7 p.m. Monday, April 5, at the Extension Office.

RYAN'S GLADE

by Katelyn Gnegy reporter

The Ryan's Glade 4-H Club held its meeting on March 16. The healthy lungs program was held, sponsored by the Garrett County Health Department. Sadie Liller presented the program, and members were able to see the difference in two lungs. Ms. Liller talked about what was in the two lungs and why they were different. The members signed a card and gave maple syrup to Ms. Liller for the presentation.

Levi Lantz gave a talk on his radio spot. Aaron Lantz gave a talk on his extemporaneous topic. Levi and Aaron Lantz, along with Katelyn Gnegy, will represent our club at Regional Public Speaking on April 4 in Hagerstown.

Andrea Steyer gave a report on our sled riding party. Aaron and Levi gave a report on the vegetable workshop. Katelyn Gnegy gave a report on the public speaking contest. Tara Marple gave a talk on the computer class that some of our members have signed up to take. You have to be ages 11 to 12. Members taking this class are Katelyn Gnegy, Tara Marple, and Jessica Steyer. One person will be chosen to receive a computer at the end of the class.

Gary Pritts gave a talk on the quality assurance that you had to attend if you are planning to take a market animal to the fair.

The club planned some fundraisers for the summer. Discussed were Coke, Pepsi, and hot dog sales at Wal-Mart.

We are going bowling Sunday, March 28. Members are to meet at Par-Matt Lanes at 1:15 p.m.

We asked for volunteers to hold the 4-H and American flags and banners, and also to lead the pledges at Achievement Night April 3.

The Alternative Ag conference will be held March 27 at the college for youth sessions on marketing. Members are to meet at Yough Glades School on March 31 at 3:30 p.m. to deliver Easter crafts to Cuppett and Weeks Nursing Home and then go to Arby's.

Our next meeting will be April 20 at 6:30 for trash pick-up on White Church Road.

RED HOUSE

Brittany Green, reporter

The March meeting of the Red House 4-H Club was called to order by Stephanie Brenneman. Catlin Jones read the secretary's report, Nathan Sines read treasurer's report, and members turned in their fundraising money.

Red House Club members voted to donate $500 to the livestock association to help sponsor the rodeo. The club extends a challenge to all other businesses and clubs to match or beat that pledge. The fairgrounds are in need of more barns and repairs for the Garrett County Fair and other events. Interested persons may contact Chuck Fitzwater for more information.

Club members toured the Maple Sugar camp recently, and thank the Wotrings and Harveys for the tour.

Demonstrations were presented by Eli Green, Cody Hinebaugh, Ian Smith, Daniel Skipper, Michelle Holler, and Devin Callis. A pig workshop took place on Feb. 10.

Sturdy 'JAG' expected to return in the fall

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

David James Elliott

Q: Why do I feel that this will be the final season of "JAG"? I'm 83 years old, and I love that show! –Pete in Maryland.

A: Probably because, from where you and many other "JAG" loyalists sit, your favorite show was unceremoniously bounced from its longtime Tuesday berth and relocated into what looked like a death slot on Fridays. Given the callous way networks often give the ax to old favorites with no apparent warning, I'm not surprised you're feeling nervous.

In this case, however, the move was all part of a CBS strategy to establish a beachhead on Friday nights, something that "JAG" has accomplished very handily. CBS considers the David James Elliott drama one of its most valuable players and, barring major unforeseen circumstances, the hit series is a shoo-in to return for another season starting in the fall.

Q: Please help me remember the name of a '60s sitcom about a woman who lived above a man and came down to his place to pose as his wife whenever he needed her to. It was a very funny show. –Carol Cugliani, Columbus, Ohio.

A: It certainly was! "Occasional Wife" (NBC, 1966-67) starred Michael Callan as Peter Christopher, an ambitious young New York executive whose bachelor status was standing in the way of his getting promoted (he worked for a baby food manufacturer that was big on family values).

Peter convinced pretty Greta Patterson (Patricia Harty), a struggling artist, to pose as his wife when the occasion arose, as it often did without warning. Peter set Greta up in an apartment two floors directly above his own, which meant the two often were frantically meeting on the fire escape outside the window of the befuddled little man (Bryan O'Byrne) who lived between them.

Although NBC canceled the series after only one season, the two stars fell in love during the run and got married, but later divorced.

Callan, who created the role of Jets gang leader Riff in the original Broadway production of "West Side Story," starred in such box office hits as "Mysterious Island," "Gidget Goes Hawaiian" and "Cat Ballou" during his leading man days and, more recently, had a featured role in the Greg Kinnear-Matt Damon comedy "Stuck on You."

The enchanting Harty dropped out of the spotlight in the mid-'80s, but she has resurfaced in the past few years: Among other gigs, she appeared on "The District" in a November 2003 episode.

Q: Is NBC's "Las Vegas" filmed in that city or in California studios? –Shirley Esch, Vancouver, Wash.

A: Both. Most of what you see in NBC's Monday night drama is filmed on soundstages in Century City, Calif., but from time to time cast members travel to Las Vegas to film exteriors and pick-up shots.

Garrett County SKIES

By Dr. Bob Doyle
Frostburg State Planetarium

THE APRIL EVENING SKY – In April, the evening star groups come out as early as 9 p.m. (that's Daylight Saving Time, which begins on April 4). The western sky at dusk is dominated by the brilliant planet Venus, appearing as a blazing diamond. Venus resembles a single landing light of a plane coming directly at you. Above and to the left of Venus is the yellowish planet Mars, now being explored by NASA's two rovers, Spirit and Opportunity. Above and to the left of Mars is the bright planet Saturn. Well up in the east is the very bright planet Jupiter. The Big Dipper is now upside down high in the north with its soup drenching the North Star. The Big Dipper's handle can be extended outward to the bright golden star Arcturus and the white-blue star Spica. In early April, the innermost planet Mercury may be spied low in the west. So within 40 minutes of sunset the first days of April (about 8:20 p.m. EST) all five visible planets may be seen at dusk.

THE APRIL DAWN SKY – The 5 a.m. April dawn sky matches the 10 p.m. (DST) September evening sky. All the planets have set. Low in the west is the bright golden star Arcturus. High in the southern sky is the Summer Triangle, a trio of bright stars peaked by Vega, a white-blue star equal in brightness to golden Arcturus.

ASTRONOMY CLUB – The Cumberland Astronomy Club will host Astronomy Day (Saturday, April 24) at the Frostburg State Planetarium starting at 7:30 p.m. There will be a planetarium program followed by telescopic observing of the crescent moon and the planets Venus, Mars, Saturn, and Jupiter. All interested sky gazers are welcome.

PLANETARIUM PROGRAMS – The Frostburg State Planetarium program for April is "Asteroids, Skies of India, and Dust Clouds." Our Sunday programs last about 50 minutes and start at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. (There will be no programs on Easter Sunday, April 11.) Weather permitting, there will be telescopes set up outside for views of Saturn and the moon following our 7 p.m. program. The Frostburg State Planetarium is in the front lobby of Tawes Hall in the middle of the campus. Call 301-687-4270 for road directions and further information.

Doyle writes this column for those who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets, and sights in their backyards. To ask questions or get a free brochure or sky charts, call the FSU Planetarium at 301-687-4270 and press 4. Doyle hosts "Sky Watch," a brief program on days of the week and sky sights that airs on weekday evenings just before 9 p.m. on WFWM on 91.9 FM in western Garrett County and at 96.3 FM around Oakland. Doyle's e-mail address is rdoyle@frostburg.edu.

SWANTON

On Sunday Otterbein U.M. Church hosted the youth group from Grace U.M. Church of Keyser as guests for worship service, as the youth had their annual retreat at Deep Creek Lake over the weekend. Carrie Swayne, a member of the group, played the piano as the congregation sang "God of the Sparrow, God of the Whale."

This Saturday, March 27, from 10 a.m. until noon, there will be a listening event at Grace U.M. Church in Keyser. All church treasurers and PPR committee chairpersons are asked to attend along with pastors. The meeting concerns pension and health care proposals which will affect the apportionments and budgets of every church. All are welcome to attend, give input, and/or ask questions.

PERSONALS

Mareva Teets is a patient in Sacred Heart Hospital as of Saturday. Her daughter, Linda Fleming, and Richard Gerloch are on the way back from Florida after visiting family there.

Leslie, Tracy, and Anthony Beckman arrived from Ohio Thursday, March 18, to spend the weekend with Leslie's parents and brother, Melvin, Dotty, and Andrew Beckman, and to attend the visitation and the funeral of his cousin, Sherman Harvey, whose funeral was Friday.

Melvin, Dotty, Andrew, Leslie, Tracy and Anthony Beckman traveled to LaVale Saturday, where they had dinner in honor of Dotty for her upcoming birthday. Leslie and family returned to their home in Ohio Sunday afternoon.

CRELLIN SCHOOL HOSTS MISS MD. – Miss Maryland Marina Harrison visited Crellin Elementary School recently, where she inspired the students with a motivational talk about how to make their dreams come true. Harrison also visited each classroom, posed for many pictures, signed autographs, and let students try her crown on for size. Pictured with Harrison are the fifth grade student officers who served as her escorts during her visit; from the left are Jackie Sisler, Allison Friend, and Andy Roberts.

Squeaky Clean

Zack's bath is quite an event. The water temperature is tested and all the bath implements are lined up and ready. Actually, it doesn't take long to wash him. He's so small. Yet, how wonderful it is to gather him up in his soft "ducky" towel and hold him close. Nothing smells better than a newly bathed infant.

However, as he becomes older and meets other children from varied environments, we must take just as much care to keep not only his body clean, but his spirit as well, for youngsters tend to imitate what they see and hear. We must begin early to teach a child right from wrong.

Psalm 24:3-4 says, "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord or who shall stand in His holy place? He that hath clean hands and a pure heart."

Not only children, but all of us need to learn God's will for our lives. In Psalm 51:7 we read, "Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." Won't you worship together as a family this Sabbath? Better yet, make it a weekly event.

Mercy, Not Sacrifice

Sometimes it seems that the Christian example doesn't always rub off, and turning the other cheek just ends up getting both of our cheeks slapped. In the same way, being humble sometimes leads to getting stepped on. But maybe a true Christian is someone who can get stepped on and actually rejoice in it rather than feel rancorous about it. Perhaps the Christian sacrifice lies not only in accepting these reactions, but offering all of our suffering and trials to God. God knows when we are being mistreated, and He is aware of how we react to various uncomfortable situations. Burnt offerings are not what God wants. Our sacrifice to God should simply be to show mercy to those who have offended us, as He shows mercy unto us. Even if our example is not followed or even appreciated, and even if we get stepped on for acting with humility, we should rejoice, for our reward will be that we have pleased our Heavenly Father. More importantly, remember that God sees the innermost recesses of the heart, and the motive is often more important than the external action. True charity is the disposition to love our fellow humans, not the hope for an eternal reward.

For I desire steadfast love and not sacrifice, the knowledge of God, rather than burnt offerings.

Coral Reef: A Source of Calcium

The supplement called coral calcium is calcium carbonate. The calcium is derived from coral exoskeletons like those that can be found in coral reef systems. Because the structure of coral is similar to the spongy bone structure in humans, coral exo-skeletons have been studied for possible use in bone transplants. Transplanted coral appears to act as an adequate carrier for bone growth factors.

Although calcium is a daily requirement for humans, the calcium carbonate harvested from coral provides no real extra benefit compared to calcium carbonate obtained from other sources. However, coral calcium may contain some magnesium and trace amounts of other minerals. Currently, no scientific evidence suggests that coral calcium is effective against cancer, heart disease, obesity, kidney stones, or allergies. Coral calcium may help ease indigestion because the main ingredient, calcium carbonate, is also the active ingredient in many over-the-counter antacid products. However, calcium from coral is not any more digestable than other forms such as those found in calcium supplements.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Sport fishers, beware: Sometimes the fish fight back. During a fishing contest off the coast of North Carolina, competitor Chris Bowie was trying to reel in a giant blue marlin when his hands got tangled in the line. He was pulled 30 feet under water by the huge fish, and he drowned.

• You might be surprised to learn that the almond isn't a nut at all — it's a fruit, related to the peach.

• Campbell's is a name associated almost exclusively with soup these days. But of the first 200 canned products offered by the company, not one was any variety of soup.

• In the United States, judges start out as lawyers; in Korea, however, it's the other way around: You have to be a judge before you can become a lawyer.

• It was Aristotle who made this sage observation: "Men are divided between those who are as thrifty as if they would live forever, and those who are as extravagant as if they were going to die the next day."

• It's surprising how few people have ever heard of Belva Ann Bennett Lockwood. Back in 1879, she was the first woman to be admitted to practice law before the United States Supreme Court. Even more amazing, she ran for president — probably the only woman to do so in the 19th century.

• Everyone loves a carnival, but not everyone knows that the word "carnival" was originally closely associated with Catholicism. It's derived from the Latin words "carne," which means "meat," and "vale," which means "farewell." "Carnival" referred to the Mardi Gras festivities, when Catholics bid farewell to meat before the beginning of Lent.

• Unless your car's owner's manual specifies that only high-octane gasoline is to be used, there is no advantage to using it.

Rock 'n' Roll

Q. I have a 1975 postcard showing both John Lennon and David Bowie. Do you think it has any value? — *Victoria, Nelson, B.C.

A. John Lennon and David Bowie are, of course, two rock 'n' roll legends. John Lennon found fame as a member of the Beatles during the 1960s. He made his first solo LP, "John Lennon and the Plastic Ono Band," in 1970. Lennon was shot to death outside his New York City home by Mark Chapman in 1980. David Bowie began work as a singer during the 1960s and had some of his biggest successes the following decade.

Your postcard might be of interest to a collector of rock 'n' roll memorabilia. Jim Weaver is an advanced collector. His address is 405 Dunbar, Pittsburgh, PA 15235. One of the better clubs of Beatles fans is Working Class Hero Beatles Club, 3311 Niagara St., Pittsburgh, PA 15213. Gary Hein is a dealer who specializes in rock 'n' roll items. His address is P.O. Box 179, Little Silver, NJ 07739.

Q. I have a Little Orphan Annie decoder ring. It is in excellent condition. Can you direct me to someone who might be interested in purchasing it? — *James, Holdenville, Okla.

A. First a little history lesson, so "heads up, class." Little Orphan Annie was the creation of cartoonist Harold Gray. She made her debut on the comic pages of the New York Daily News in 1924 and continued as a syndicated strip until Gray's death in 1968. There were several decoder rings issued. I suspect yours is one that was made of brass and was sold with a "Slidomatic Radio Decoder." Most decoder rings from the 1930s sell in the $50-$100 range, depending on both desirability and rarity. Bill and Annie Campbell are dealers who specialize in Little Orphan Annie memorabilia. Their addresses are 1221 Littlebrook Lane, Birmingham, AL 35235; and www.billnanniecampbell.qpg.com.

What's in a Name?

Q: I want to name my new kitten "Cleopatra," but my brother says that's a dumb name. What can I name her instead? — *Serena Y., Burlington, Vt.

A. I think Cleopatra is a wonderful name for a cat, and probably perfect for her, too. Did you know that the ancient Egyptians, who had a great ruler named Cleopatra, worshipped cats?

What's in a cat's name, anyway? Whatever fits his or her personality, in my opinion! My cat is named Dodge, because as a rescued stray he has always been a bit skittish around humans and "dodges" away from most of them. Some cats are named after physical characteristics, such as Snowball for a fluffy white cat, or Socks for a dark cat with white paws.

If you're not sure Cleopatra is the right name for your pet, pick up a book of names from the store (there are even name books for pets). You can find an interesting name that matches her looks or personality. How about "Artemis," the goddess of hunting? Or "Jasmine," a small, fragrant flower?

You know, your brother might also be feeling a little bit jealous that you have a new kitten. Maybe he's seen something in your cat's personality that makes him disagree with her being called "Cleopatra." Try working out a compromise: Both of you write down a list of names, and then compare them. Find the name that you both like. You might be surprised how well your kitten's new name suits her, your brother and you!

Garrett's Co-Curricular Schedule Features Wide Variety Of Events

A variety of programs are being offered in the list of co-curricular activities for Garrett College students this spring semester and early summer, according to program coordinator Sally Staley.

The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival kicks off the slate with a concert of Celtic music by the Nova Scotia based-band Grand Dérangement, set for 8 p.m. Friday, April 2, in the college auditorium. Student admission is $5 per person.

A showing of the Banff Film Festival at the Metropolitan Theatre in Morgantown is scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 13. A van will depart from the GC campus's CAOS Building at 5:30 p.m., and the cost to students will be $8.

An illustrated lecture on the history of the White House will be presented by professor Beth Luers at noon on Monday, April 19, in the auditorium. There is no admission charge.

The annual trip to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., is scheduled for Friday, April 23. A bus will leave the college campus at 6 a.m., and the cost for the students will be $10, and $20 for the general public. Interested persons should sign up in the college library.

The annual "Write Away" writers' conference will take place from 9 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. on Saturday, May 15, in the Continuing Education building. As in past years, four seminars will be given: memoir writing, publicity writing, fiction writing, and poetry writing. All students will be admitted free, while others will be charged a $5 fee for one or two sessions, and $10 for three or four sessions.

This summer's Chautauqua festival rounds out the co-curricular slate with "The American Environment," which will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, July 5-8, under a tent on the college lawn. The program "Voices and Choices" will be presented by Maryland Humanities Council scholars portraying the characters Henry David Thoreau, Teddy Roosevelt, and Rachel Carson, with an evening of stories of "The Changing Environment."

Persons seeking further information about any of these co-curricular events may call Staley at 301-387-3102.

CHAMBER PUBLISHES EVENTS LIST – The 2004 Summer/Spring Calendar of Events, published by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, will be available next week, the chamber has announced. Amy Custer, project coordinator, said the response from event organizers resulted in the list being one of the largest to date. More than 150 events, in addition to ongoing activities, are included in the brochure. The listed events "range from concerts to fishing contests to festival and farm markets," Custer said. The calendars will be available beginning March 29 at the Visitors Center in McHenry, at all branches of the Ruth Enlow Library, and at various local businesses.

Virginia Man Arrested For Drunk Driving

A Stephenson, Va., man was arrested after police observed his vehicle crossing the center and white lines numerous times and nearly striking another vehicle head-on along Hutton Road Saturday night, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Michael Travis Longerbeam, 37, failed field sobriety tests and was arrested. A search of his vehicle revealed a loaded .22 caliber handgun hidden between the driver's die seat and the center console. The handgun was checked through NCIC, which revealed that it had been stolen from a location in Arlington, Va.

Longerbeam was charged with a handgun violation, theft of a handgun, driving under the influence (DUI), driven while impaired (DWI), negligent driving, and failure to drive right of center.

In a separate incident, Jason Wayne Hale was arrested after police were summoned to 87 Edgewood Drive in Deer Park for a reported disturbance Monday night.

Deputies contacted Hale, who was driving a 1988 Chevy truck. He failed sobriety tests and was arrested.

Hale was charged with DWI, driving with a suspended license, and disturbing the peace, police said.

In other police news, the weather and road conditions were factors in a single-vehicle accident Sunday morning on Ben DeWitt Road, just west of Garrett Highway.

Marjorie J. Durham, 66, Oakland, was eastbound on Ben DeWitt Road when she lost control on the road because of the snow and slush. The vehicle struck a telephone pole and a mailbox, police said.

Durham was transported by private vehicle to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

She was not cited in the 9:30 a.m. accident, police said.

CHEMICALS AND DIET

Q – I have tried all sorts of special diets, and still I can't lose any weight! Could it be that I have a chemical imbalance?

A – I'm not very good at dispensing medical advice, but there is one very important point from the field of thermodynamics that everyone needs to be aware of: The basic measurement in all diets is "calories in, minus calories out."

Restricting the intake of calories takes many forms, and the current favorite is the "low-carbohydrate" diets. Carbohydrates contain a lot of calories, while proteins do not, so by eating and drinking less carbohydrates, you presumably take in fewer calories.

On the other hand, increasing the number of calories out primarily means exercise. Walking, swimming, jogging, etc., are all ways to use up more of the calories consumed in the first place. There used to be "dietary supplements" made of Ephedra which helped people to lose weight by causing them to want to move around and exercise a lot. (Those were banned recently because of side effects.)

Children who are running around and active a lot burn away lots of calories, and so they can eat almost anything they want. Other people who are inactive need to keep a watch on the "calories in" factor.

There has been a lot written about the importance of certain elements in the human body, and the possibility of weight gain being due to a chemical imbalance. The body is made up predominantly of carbon, oxygen, hydrogen, and nitrogen, but there are many other elements that the human body needs in moderately small amounts. Sulfur and phosphorous are two familiar names.

Some elements occur in normal diet in quantities far greater than anyone needs, and those elements just pass through the body. I've never heard of anyone having a chlorine deficiency. Silicon is in sand, and everyone consumes more than enough dirt over time.

There are certain chemicals that the body needs, which are termed electrolytes. If some of these are absent or not in the proper ratio to other chemicals, weight gain and ill health can occur. For example, the ratio of sodium to potassium in the body generally remains in a fairly narrow range. If somehow you get a lot of extra sodium or become deficient in potassium, you could find your weight going up. This isn't because of the weight of the atomic sodium, but because your body will retain water in order to have a way of storing the excess sodium. Sitting in front of the TV and putting away a box of cookies or crackers is a good example of how this happens.

At different times in life, needs for certain elements vary. Children with growing bones need lots of calcium. Everybody needs some magnesium, but athletes need extra magnesium to minimize muscle cramps. The various sporting drinks (Gatorade comes to mind) all contain electrolytes to replace those lost through sweating during activity.

Certain heavier elements are needed for special purposes: Iron helps red blood cells; iodine helps the thyroid; copper, nickel, and chromium are all needed in small quantities. There are elements that are necessary at low levels, but poisonous at high levels – arsenic is a prime example. You can't "cure" a deficiency by simply piling on a lot of one element.

The "heavy metals" are elements like mercury, bismuth, lead, and thallium (to name just a few), and everybody needs tiny amounts of these. However, it doesn't take much to be harmful: The reason that paint containing lead was banned is that children would sometimes eat the paint chips that fell off old windowsills and thus contracted lead poisoning. Some heavy metals are chemically inactive and therefore aren't needed, but aren't a problem either: Gold, silver, and platinum fall into that category. To say "I have a silver deficiency" is a wisecrack meaning "I don't have enough money."

Beyond the question of weight gain or loss, other behavioral changes are known to be caused by certain chemicals. In the 19th century, the character "the mad hatter" in Alice in Wonderland made fun of a behavioral trait that was caused by mercury poisoning. The research in this entire area is very incomplete, and few doctors learn much about the importance of trace elements in medical school. About 20 years ago, there was a study of death-row inmates that found excessive cadmium in their hair – the suggestion being that perhaps the cadmium had something to do with causing violent behavior. But this was never carried to large enough numbers of people to become a reliable indicator.

Successful Spay, Neuter Month To Conclude Soon

Spay/Neuter Awareness Month is drawing to a close, and so far the Garrett County Animal Shelter has given out more than 100 $25 discount certificates to help county resident get their pets spayed or neutered, according to Lisa Baker, Garrett County Humane Society member.

This is the fifth year that the shelter, Humane Society, and local veterinarians have joined forces during the month of March to help reduce the population of unwanted pets.

"The number is not as high as last year's, but this means another 100 animals in this county will be spayed or neutered," said Baker. "The good news is there will be less homeless animals in our county, but there are many animals out there still not altered."

She notes that the number of certificates issues will probably rise before the event concludes at the end of the month, as people continue to call the Animal Shelter asking for them.

To help residents realize the ramifications of not having their pets spayed and neutered, the Humane Society offers the following information:

One unaltered female cat 6 months of age can have two litters or more a year. Each litter can consist of four to six kittens, which equals at least 10 kittens a year for each female. An unaltered male can impregnate several female cats per day, so they are an equal part of the overpopulation problem. An unaltered female and male cat, therefore, can quickly create an excess of kittens.

"Spaying or neutering is also vital to your pet's health and happiness, as well as routine examinations, good nutrition, grooming, playtime, adequate shelter, and love," Baker said. "Before you adopt an animal, you need to seriously consider whether or not you are ready to take on the financial responsibility and time it takes to properly care for one. If you have already adopted an unaltered animal, then it is your responsibility to have it spayed or neutered regardless of the cost."

Having sponsored the Spay/Neuter Awareness Month for five years now, the Humane Society members feel they are making a difference and deem this year's event another success.

"But it takes everyone to help make it work," adds Baker.

She explains that businesses and individuals donate the money, which is then given out in the form of a discount certificate to county residents. Then the residents participate in the success by requesting the certificates and having their pets spayed or neutered.

"It is up to you to call about a certificate and then take your animal to have it spayed or neutered," Baker said.

The certificates are available at the Animal Shelter until the end of March and are redeemable at all three of the county veterinarian hospitals, as well as the one in Salisbury, Pa. For further information, persons may call the Animal Shelter at 301-334-3553. Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety (PAWS) also has money available for spaying and neutering, notes Baker.

SPAY/NEUTER AWARENESS MONTH WILL SOON END, and the Garrett County Humane Society reminds local residents that discount certificates are still available from the Garrett County Animal Shelter. Certificate holders can get their pets spayed or neutered at participating veterinarian clinics and receive $25 off the cost of the procedures. See story for details. A Human Society spokesperson notes that cats can have litters several times per year. As a result, a single pair of unaltered cats may result in a population as high as 2,000 cats in just 2 1/2 years. This is assuming that breeding starts at 6 months, they have two litters per year, and that half of the offspring are females. "Many of these kittens end up homeless, roaming the streets looking for food and shelter, succumbing to diseases, or being taken to the local shelter and then possibly euthanized if no one wants to adopt them," said the spokesperson.

State Facing Major Dilemma As Senior Growth Outpaces Nation's

by Danny Jacobs
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – It's no coincidence that at the same time the Maryland Board of Pharmacy says there is a "tremendous shortage" of pharmacists in the state, advertisements for erectile dysfunction pills litter the airwaves.

The volume of prescriptions is increasing in large part because of a state population that is already aging at a slightly faster rate than the rest of the country. That, coupled with the aging of the baby boom generation, has state officials projecting the senior population will double in the next decade.

"We are planning today to meet the challenges of the tsunami that is approaching as baby boomers become seniors," said Jean W. Roesser, secretary for the state Department of Aging.

But there is still much to be done, said Donna DeLeno, advocacy representative for AARP Maryland.

"If Maryland doesn't start planning an array of long-term care options, the state could go bankrupt," she said.

The numbers bear both of them out: The Census estimated that there were 625,000 people age 65 or older in Maryland as of July 1, or 11.3 percent of the total state population. That was still lower than the national average senior population of 12.4 percent and one of the lowest rates in the country. But the number of senior Marylanders grew by nearly 4.3 percent from April 1, 2000, compared to national growth of 2.6 percent during the same period, and the number of those 85 and older grew 16 percent in the state compared to 12 percent nationally.

At the same time, Maryland's 18-and-under population grew just 0.73 percent – from 1.37 million to 1.38 million – compared to national growth of 1.04 percent in that age group. The result is an aging population that requires more services – especially health-related ones – and a smaller workforce available to help them, said Hal Sommers, a research statistician with the state Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

The state already has a shortage of nurses, Sommers said, and it will also have to answer questions about housing needs, as many of the elderly will begin to rely on family caregivers, assisted living, or nursing homes.

DeLeno said the state needs to increase funding for "infrastructure for seniors," such as transportation routes, staffing at healthcare facilities, and the quality of care there. She said most home- and community-based services for seniors – such as respite care, adult daycare, and nursing home visits by nurses – have long waiting lists. As seniors wait, they tend to get sicker and then "their only resource is to spend down" in order to become eligible for Medicaid, she said.

But Medicaid spending in Maryland next year will reach $4 billion, half of

Extension Office Says Farm Survey Response High

Participation is soaring as the Garrett County Extension office and Garrett County Economic Development are receiving surveys containing farm information from local farm businesses to develop a farm, farm supplier, and farm services directory, according to the Garrett County Extension office.

Surveys were sent out last week to hundreds of farmers across the county and in the surrounding mountaintop region. The results will be used in a directory that will make it easier for consumers to locate farm products and services they desire, as well as for farmers to locate farm suppliers and farm services.

A spokesperson for the Extension office said it is not too late to get involved. Any farm or farm business interested in participating in the survey who has not received one in the mail should contact the office at 301-334-6960.

Farms are not required to be listed in the directory, and farmers are able to choose what information will be included. Farmers are requested to complete the survey whether or not they wish to participate in the directory, so the Extension office confidential farm mailing list can be updated.

The spokesperson said that the directory will create opportunities for more profitable markets for farm businesses, "thus preserving the farmland and heritage of Garrett County." For more information or to receive a survey, persons may contact Cheryl DeBerry, agriculture marketing specialist.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Replacement Crop Sought After Buyout Cut Tobacco Production

by Jen DeGregorio
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – The state's tobacco buyout program was supposed to cut production of the crop and help farmers ease into alternate crops. It's achieved the first goal, pushing production from 8.3 million pounds five years ago to an all-time low of just over 2 million pounds this year, but experts say the second goal is still unmet.

"We have not found any ... one commodity-type product to match tobacco," said Scott Rowe, an Extension agent in Cecil County.

The buyout program began in 2001 with the promise of a decade-long subsidy to farmers who stopped growing tobacco, on the condition that their land remain in agricultural production for the years they receive payments. The program had signed up 780 farmers as of this year, 77 percent of the eligible farmers in the state.

The average farmer gets $11,000 each year, said Christine Bergmark of the Tri-County Council for Southern Maryland, but some get as much as $50,000 or as little as $30. It all depends on how much a farmer listed as his tobacco income in 1998, she said.

As long as they file taxes as farmers – even if they list annual agricultural income of $500 or less – they get the same payment for 10 years, Bergmark said. Part of that money is supposed to help farmers transition into a new crop, but critics say some farmers, particularly older ones, are cashing the checks and little more.

"That's a lot of income to just sit back and take it easy while the money's rolling in," said David Myers, an Extension agent in Anne Arundel and Prince George's counties. He said some farmers have used the subsidy payments as a sort of early retirement fund.

"It kind of became a loophole, if you will," Myers said.

Bergmark said the average tobacco grower is 62, older than the average Maryland farmer, who is about 56. Rowe said that if tobacco farmers are "looking at life expectancy in five or 10 years, people are not necessarily going to be looking into transitioning."

Buddy Hance, a fourth-generation tobacco farmer from Anne Arundel County, said that is not surprising.

"Some of them are too old to learn how to raise other crops," Hance said. He could not point to a trend, but said he thought that some older farmers would probably give up the difficult task of replacing tobacco with another crop.

Hance did turn to another crop – produce – after taking the buyout last year. But he turned the majority of the work over to his son in the process.

Bergmark said farmers are making headway, especially in nursery stock and ethnic foods. New programs like Shore-to-Store and Maryland's Best, a labeling program, are getting farmers goods to larger markets, she said.

"Age is a factor, but it's not a limitation," she said. She knows one farmer in his 80s who has bounced from crop to crop since he took the buyout, and is now successful with cut flowers.

Myers and other Extension agents said they are working to help farmers, but the transition has not been a total success.

"Finding a niche market that you can exploit" has been a problem for farmers looking to transition into another crop, Rowe said. Hance agreed.

"There's no alternative to tobacco," he said, adding that the farmers he knows are simply trying to increase production of crops they were already marketing in other seasons.

But even that has been difficult. In 2001, a market-trends analysis by the College of Southern Maryland found that farmers in the area felt they were "poorly served by production and marketing infrastructure in all agricultural sectors except tobacco."

Bergmark said that agricultural officials have been working to change that, to help farmers make a steady transition, but no follow-up studies have been done.

David Conrad, a Prince George's County Extension agent and the state tobacco expert, said he does not know what to think.

"I drive by their farms and I don't see any changes, other than there's no tobacco there anymore," he said.

Experts Say Maryland Will Be "Epicenter" Of Cicada Invasion

by Lisa D. Tossey
Maryland Newsline

COLLEGE PARK – After being buried for nearly 17 years, the crimson-eyed creatures will emerge by the millions, climbing trees or any upright structure, shedding their skins and leaving behind glassy shells of their former selves before taking flight on broad wings. Thick swarms will fill the air with a deafening chorus of mating calls.

It's not a scene from a B-movie, but it is coming soon to a back yard near you: The noisy insects known as periodic cicadas.

"Maryland will be the epicenter," said Michael Raupp, professor of entomology at the University of Maryland. "Maps show that the entire state is in the middle of the largest emergence of cicadas on the planet."

The cicadas are expected to emerge by mid-May in a larval form called nymphs and will number about 100,000 bugs per acre, Raupp said. But there could be as many as 1 million per acre in particularly hard-hit spots.

After shedding their nymphal skins, the adults will spend four to six weeks attracting mates and breeding before largely dying out by mid-July. The nearly 2-inch-long bugs, known as Brood X to entomologists, will cover most of Maryland, Delaware, Northern Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

Other periodic cicadas are found in different parts of eastern North America. But they are not as prevalent as Brood X, and they hatch on different cycles, according to information from the Maryland Cooperative Extension.

The cicadas do not bite or sting and are not harmful to people or animals, but their egg-laying practices can damage small trees.

"The females have saw-like apparatus that they use to cut into the branches," said Anthony Vlahakis, acting integrated pest management coordinator at the National Arboretum in Washington, D.C. The females lay eggs in the slits they cut, depositing rows of 24 to 48 eggs. After six weeks the eggs hatch and the nymphs fall to the ground, where they burrow into the soil and feed on small tree roots for the next 17 years.

The reproductive process can cause browning, breaking, and scarring of affected branches, which can kill vulnerable trees or stunt their growth. Vlahakis recommends not planting small trees until fall and protecting younger trees by covering them with mesh netting with holes under half an inch in diameter.

"It's impossible to protect everything, but we'll make an effort to protect more susceptible trees and valuable ones," Vlahakis said of the trees at the arboretum. "The bigger trees will have to fend for themselves. We'll watch and see what [the cicadas] hit and try to learn from it."

Maryland's orchard growers are also gearing up to protect their fruit trees from the bugs.

"It's a battle," said Robert Black, part owner of Catoctin Mountain Orchard in Thurmont. "I wish we had a bunch of birds to sit around and eat them. We'll make it; it's something we have to deal with. But at least it's only every 17 years."

Raupp said the unusual lifecycle and mass emergence of the cicadas can be explained as an evolutionary survival tactic.

"It's one way to beat the predator game. No predator can plan on a meal this big and act on it," he said.

Several factors could affect the size of this year's emergence, Raupp said, including increased use of pesticides or development that might have destroyed buried nymphs. He expects the numbers to be highly variable by location, with wooded areas and older neighborhoods possibly seeing pockets of high concentrations.

Cicadas last hit Maryland in 1987, when the bugs disrupted outdoor events like weddings and graduation ceremonies. While some venues plan to move events indoors this summer, one will embrace the noisy critters with an outdoor concert planned around the bugs on July 29.

"It's exciting," said Jennifer Buzzell, manager of marketing and promotions for Strathmore, an arts center in North Bethesda. "We have commissioned a cicada symphony, which will incorporate the sounds" of the bugs.

Strathmore is also sponsoring a juried exhibition of bug and animal-themed works by local artists opening July 1.

For those considering outdoor events, Raupp suggests that they ask longtime locals about past cicada outbreaks in the area, to gauge what to expect.

"We're saying kick back and enjoy it – it will make it that much more memorable," he said. "This is an amazing, unique biological event that will only happen a handful of times in a person's life."

PAWS Again Offering KIND News To Schools

For the third consecutive year, PAWS (Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety) is offering Garrett County teachers in grades kindergarten through six a free year's subscription to the *KIND (Kids in Nature's Defense) News*. The publication promotes kindness toward animals.

PAWS is now taking subscription requests for the 2004-2005 school year. Through its Adopt-A-Classroom program, PAWS was able to make this monthly education resource available to 68 classrooms in the county for the current school year. That is more than double the number subscribing in the previous year, a spokesperson noted. PAWS hopes to increase the number of classrooms "adopted" to begin receiving the publication next fall.

The KIND News is an award-winning newsletter published by the National Association for Humane and Environmental Education. The articles advise children to treat each other, animals, and the environment responsibly and with kindness, respect, and compassion, the spokesperson said.

"Written in a captivating, lively style, the paper fosters a love of reading, and provides opportunities for children to utilize their math, language, and writing skills," the spokesperson said. "Projects, celebrity interviews, and fun activities round out the publication and make it one children look forward to receiving each month."

PAWS continues to receive very positive feedback from teachers and students currently enrolled in the Adopt-a-Classroom program, the spokesperson reported.

"Some classrooms have even been inspired by the paper to find ways they can actively become involved in animal welfare and support the work of local animal welfare groups and agencies," she said.

Any teachers interested in having classes "adopted" by PAWS and getting a subscription, or in receiving a sample copy of the KIND News and more information about the program, may call 301-334-2699. Callers should leave a message stating their names, the grade they teach, and their school. The information will be mailed.

Teachers currently receiving the publication are reminded to return their subscription renewal forms to PAWS by April 1. The address is PAWS, P.O. Box 745, McHenry, MD 21541.

STUDENTS, VOLUNTEERS HELP THE BLIND – Thirty-four Northern High School students participated in the blind skier guide program recently. This program is sponsored by the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club, and offers the opportunity for students from the Maryland School for the Blind to come to Deep Creek Lake for four days and to ski and tube at the Wisp. "These students gave up personal days at school to earn service learning hours for this worthy cause," said Barb Law, NHS coordinator. They totaled over 650 service learning hours being BOLD (Blind Outdoor Leisure Development) guides for the program. They become the "eyes" of a blind student for the entire day, teaching them to ski, eating lunch with them, tubing with them, or doing anything else that may be required of them, said Law. There were also four other students who participated in the program, as well as local adults. Persons interested in helping with the program next year may contact the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club in McHenry. Local volunteers were Odette Lueck, Bob Luers, Pam Taylor, Bill Walton, Paul Winkelvoss, Cinda Sebastian, Trudy Pickeral, Lee Pickeral, and Adam Pratt. ## State Facing which is state money. That is 8.1 percent higher than the current year and 28 percent higher than in 2002, according to state budget projections. Enrollment in the standard Medicaid program is also expected to grow by 4.5 percent next year, part of the reason Maryland will have a $25 million Medicaid shortfall, according to the state Department of Legislative Services.

The solution, in addition to continuing cutting costs, is to increase funding for home- and community-based services, which saves Medicaid money by avoiding institutionalization, DeLeno said.

The state also faces increased demand for prescription drug assistance for its aging population.

"There is this expectation that there will be drugs to fix everything and a tremendous pressure on drug companies to come out of research and development with new drugs," said Robin Vahle.

Vahle, a registered nurse, is also the senior project manager overseeing the senior prescription drug program at CareFirst. Members of the program, who must be Maryland residents on Medicare with no other form of health insurance, receive pharmacy benefits for a nominal fee. The program has 33,200 members and continues looking for new members, even though the Maryland Health Insurance Plan, which oversees funding for it, would like to limit plan membership to no more than 37,000, Vahle said.

"I'd love to see us reach the 37,000 mark, but I doubt if there will be more funding available" after that, she said.

But not all seniors are a burden on the state. AARP reported that more Americans work past retirement age, some because they need the money or health benefits, but most do it to remain physically or mentally active. The organization also devotes a page on its web site to grandparenting and developing relationships between young and old.

The state Department of Aging is promoting healthy lifestyles among "younger" seniors, including a newsletter that offers fitness tips and healthy recipes.

"Even as Maryland protects the frail elderly with vital programs, we are trying to help the younger aging population in Maryland stay as healthy and active as possible," Roesser said.

Vahle said it is encouraging that so many groups are concerned about the future of the aging population.

"This is a huge bubble of people, but it seems to be a value of healthcare providers and people that the elderly have something to give," she said. "Warehousing is not an option."

The goal, Roesser said, is to allow seniors to "live with choice, independence, and dignity, and to remain connected to their communities for as long as possible."

TRADE UP OR TRADE IN?

If you're ready to upgrade to a larger home, or need to relocate, you're presented with a dilemma. You can't simply "trade in" like an automobile, so your choice is 1) sell your existing home first, or 2) own two homes until the first one sells.

But what if you can't find another home? Will you be left on the street? Or how can you afford to own two homes at one time? What is the answer?

If owning two homes is out of the question, explain this to the agent who lists your home. It's a good idea to begin looking for your next home before you have a buyer for your old one, but not necessarily wise to attempt a purchase.

If you find another home, and make an offer contingent upon the sale of your present one, sellers are less likely to accept your offer. But while your home is for sale, continue looking at others. Try to select two or three that meet your needs. Then, as soon as you have a contract on your present home, begin negotiations to purchase your favorite. If by chance, it is already sold, you will still have the opportunity to purchase one of the others.

Ask your agent to explain this situation in more detail. The more you know, the more comfortable you can be with your decision.

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

During the month of March dead deer parts start to appear in a dog owner's lawn. I guess as the snow melts all dead deer leftover casualties of last deer season appear. Or maybe like the horrible sight by the Glades on Mosser Road where a deer carcas is in the road. It is a shame that a snow plow did not push it off the road, as it is still there today about four days since I first saw it, and with two nights of snow, too. As the weather warms so does the smell of the dead deer. Boo likes to sleep with me, and I am not looking forward to the dead deer breath he will have as he drags in a couple leg bones and pieces of meat or organs of a long-dead deer. I guess I should be grateful that she does not roll in it, as some former dogs we had loved to do during the summer, making for a pretty smelly dog.

It does not look very much like spring is here in Bittinger with a new layer of snow and more ice, just like January. But the bottom below the Beitzel farm is in a full spring-flood condition. It is full now with more water than I have ever seen. But I did see more unwise robins around here digging through the snow trying to find a worm.

On the bright side is the early sunrise by about 6 a.m. So the Spring Equinox lives up to its name – equal days and nights. Goodbye to those endless nights.

But it is still cold, and the cold winter wind howled during church service Sunday morning. Pastor Pat claimed it was the wind of the Holy Spirit. I thought that the Holy Spirit involved some fire(?) However, Bittinger Lutheran Parish enjoyed a visit of the "Bishop Road Show," meaning a visit by our Bishop Ralph Duncan.

Today, Monday, March 23, is quite a birthday in Bittinger, as two of our top matrons celebrate their birthdays, namely Audrey Brenneman and Leora Yaste. I hope that I will have as much energy as they do at their age, not that they are that "old."

Basketball season is pretty much finished for the families around Peat Bog, as the Sussman, Bass, and Glotfelty families said "Amen" to the Maryland Terps season with a heartbreaking two-point loss to Syracuse on Saturday. The Southerly family will probably have to face a NIT loss for their W.Va. Mountaineers. Sheila was not very optimistic about tbeir chances for a win, as they have already lost twice to Rutgers this season.

Landon Southerly was in the crowd in Raleigh, North Carolina, at the regional WCAA actioh Thurday and Saturday.

Tyler Southerly, Matthew and Scott Bass, and Torey Poholsky are busy gearing up for another season of Northern Huskies baseball action. In fact, Matthew and Torrey already had their first scrimmage game in Boonsboro last weekend. They played a good game, according to Sally.

The Poholsky family took in the chance to swing by Winchester to watch the baseball team of the college from Greensboro, North Carolina. Torrey is interested in attending the college. It was a pretty chilly day to watch a game, as Sally confirmed.

It was quite a weekend for anyone who loves buckwheat cakes. On Friday evening the Bittinger 4-H Club held its spring buckwheat/pancake, sausage dinner. I was very surprised that none of the many cars parked in the field by the fire hall in several inches of heavy slushy snow got stuck when the fire hall cleared out. It was close to a miracle.

If you did not have your fill of buckwheat cakes that evening, you could catch another of the all-you-can-eat brunch at NHS cafeteria benefiting the NHS Marching Band on Sunday. I went to both meals and both were excellent. I do have high standards for buckwheat cakes. But still, my mother's cakes were the best I ever ate, both thin and tangy.

The congregation of Emmanuel Lutheran Church will spend this coming Sunday afternoon visiting the residents of Cherry Hill Assisted Living Home, including some of our members, Marvin Beitzel and Harriett Buckel. I think the Beitzels are planning on also celebrating Edna Beitzel's birthday on Sunday. Edna will be 95 years young. Harriett Buckel will be celebrating her birthday on Sunday also. She was a guest of her family last weekend for dinner.

Ida Reckner celebrated her 99th birthday on Saturday with a family gathering at Penn Alps in Grantsville. She expressed her thanks and gratitude to all her friends and family for all the cards, flowers, gifts, visits, phone calls, and well-wishes she received, and is looking forward to an even larger celebration next year when she reaches her 100th birthday.

Deputies Arrest Driver, Passenger After Traffic Stop

A driver of a 1997 Nissan truck and her passenger were arrested after the vehicle was stopped on High Street in Oakland for inoperable tag lights Sunday evening, according to Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Alicia Huffman, 23, Aurora, W.Va., was arrested after she failed field sobriety tests. A search of the vehicle revealed suspected marijuana and other paraphernalia inside the vehicle. As a result of the items found in the vehicle, the passenger, Jessica Gaither, 21, Bayard, W.Va., was also arrested.

Huffman was charged with driving under the influence (DUI), driving while impaired (DWI), and DUI per se.

Huffman and Gaither were both charged with possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia.

In a separate incident, Eric J. Miller, 29, Friendsville, was arrested for drunk driving early Tuesday morning after his vehicle was stopped on West Liberty Street north of Bartlett Street for speeding, police said.

Miller was arrested and charged with DUI and DWI. It was also discovered that he had an expired Maryland driver's license and his driver's privilege was suspended in the state of Virginia.

The vehicle Miller was operating displayed an expired registration that belonged to another vehicle.

In other police news, an Oakland woman was cited

A GRAY WORLD – Springtime in Garrett County looks a lot like this photo rather often, much to the sighing of residents. Cold rain and gray days have been the theme this week, and there's not much change predicted for a while. Taking a hike in the drear is not all that bad, though, as there are always interesting things to see. Spring blossoms are coming up, despite the unwelcoming atmosphere, and they promise that warmer weather is on the way. No matter what the weather is like this weekend, there are a multitude of events for the kids, including the Celebration of Assets at Garrett College, a carnival-themed event by Kids First focusing on resources for children and families at Broad Ford School, and Easter egg hunts in several towns, to name just a few. Come out and have fun, and remember that April showers do indeed bring May flowers. Photo by Glenn Tolbert.

Discovery Of Disabled Vehicle Leads To Arrests

The investigation of a disabled vehicle on Route 135 east of Swanton Hill Road Wednesday morning led to the arrest of two people, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

It was discovered that Gerald Toothman, 37, Morgantown, W.Va., was operating the disabled vehicle on a suspended out-of-state license. A search incident to arrest revealed that Toothman was in possession of suspected crack cocaine and related paraphernalia, police said.

Toothman was charged with possession of CDS not marijuana, possession of paraphernalia, and driving on an out-of-state license.

A passenger in the vehicle, Ammamoo Spenola, 27, Staten Island, N.Y., was found in possession of suspected cocaine and marijuana. Spenola was charged with possession of CDS not marijuana and possession of marijuana.

Hearing Slated For DC Sanitary Dist. Annexation, New Water/Sewer Rates

The Garrett County commissioners will hold a public hearing on Tuesday, April 6, at 10 a.m. in the courthouse, Room 209, on adopting a resolution for annexing the Shingle Camp, Stockslager Road, Sandy Shores, and Penelacre areas into the Deep Creek Sanitary District.

The officials want to change the Deep Creek Sanitary District boundaries in order to provide sewer service to the proposed areas.

A copy of the resolution and a plat showing the boundaries of the proposed service area will be presented at the hearing. The plat is also available for public inspection at the Public Utilities office, 2008 Maryland Highway in Mountain Lake Park, during regular business hours.

A proposed resolution to adopt a new water and sewer rate structure for all Department of Public Utilities Sanitary District customers will also be discussed. The resolution would allow smaller and larger water and sewer projects to be consolidated into one user fee, debt service, and one rate to pay for them.

Specific information regarding the new water and sewer rates, as well as ad valorem taxes, will also be presented at the hearing.

Md. Delegates Pass Wind Bill On House Floor

The Maryland House of Delegates voted overwhelmingly this week to approve the Maryland Renewable Energy Portfolio (HB 1038), which would require Maryland utilities to obtain 7½ percent of their electricity needs from renewable sources within a decade. With less than two weeks remaining in the current Maryland General Assembly session, which adjourns Monday, April 12, the legislation has been forwarded to the Maryland Senate for consideration as SB 896.

Fourteen states, including Pennsylvania, have already instituted measures similar to the legislation, which was approved by a Monday vote of 108-29 with the entire western Maryland house delegation – Republican Minority leader George Edwards of Garrett County, and Democrat Kevin Kelly and Republican Leroy Myers, both of Allegany County – voting affirmative.

Informally dubbed the "Western Maryland Economic Revitalization Act," the bill would mandate that renewable energy sources be utilized more in order to promote such power generation sources as wind, solar, and biomass. The western Maryland reference is indicative of what wind power advocates claim is this area's status as a prime location for electricity generation by the use of large wind turbines, such as ones already standing near Salisbury, Pa., and Thomas, W.Va. Both of those "wind farms" are visible from locales within Garrett County.

The bill has drawn the support of the wind power

Man Charged In Garrett Hwy. Crash Saturday

An Accident man was charged following a two-vehicle collision Saturday morning on Garrett Highway south of the Deep Creek Lake bridge. The 9:30 a.m. mishap sent one person to the hospital, according to Maryland State Police troopers stationed at the McHenry barrack.

Kevin Jones, 17, was traveling south when he failed to negotiate a curve between Lake Shore Drive and Trader's Landing, police said. His 1995 Subaru Legacy traveled across the center line and into the path of an oncoming 1998 Plymouth Neon operated by Sharon Kelley, 44, Oakland. Kelley attempted evasive action by driving onto the shoulder, but Jones's Subaru sideswiped her car, sending it into an embankment. Jones's car traveled all the way back across the

DC Lake Growth Issues Identified In ERM Release

Environmental Resources Management, the firm contracted by the county to study growth trends and development issues in the Deep Creek Lake area, has authored a summary of information gleaned during the consultants' initial Garrett County visit of early March.

The report is available for viewing by consulting the Web site of the Garrett County Planning and Zoning office at www.garrettcounty.org/pandz/index.html. A printout of the draft issues summary portion of the release, 13 pages in length, is also available upon request from the Planning and Zoning Office at 301-334-1920. That section of issues identified in interviews and in a March 1 meeting at Garrett College that drew over 100 citizens will be further detailed in next week's issue of The Republican.

Hafer's Bus Bill Wins Approval Of State Senate

An amended version of Senator John Hafer's bill to increase penalties for motorists who pass school buses with activated flashing red lights won unanimous approval of the state Senate recently.

Originally, SB 280 would have increased the number of points assessed against a driver who fails to stop for a bus with activated flashing red lights from three to five, and from two to five, the points assessed against a driver who fails to remain stopped. The amended version of the bill deletes the point increases, but retains provisions for increasing the maximum fine for both violations from $500 to $1,000.

The bill received a favorable report earlier this week from the House Environmental Matters Committee and must now be approved by the entire House.

The bill was also cross filed in the House as HB 1223 by Delegates Karen Montgomery, District 14, and William Bronrott, District 16. That bill was also amended and won unanimous support of the House. It is currently being considered by the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee.

This is the third year that Hafer has introduced the legislation. Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of Garrett County Schools, has testified in Annapolis on behalf of the bill. He said he was "cautiously optimistic" that the legislation would pass this year.

Commissioners Hear Staff Reports; FY '05 Budget To Be Unveiled June 1

The Garrett County commissioners held their monthly staff meeting this week, hearing reports from 15 departments and agencies. Among the topics discussed this month were the FY 2005 budget, a leadership training program at the county high schools, the Garrett College Athletic Center, the new touch-screen voting system, state cutbacks to health programs, municipality code regulations, and Overlook Judy Center funding.

Financial Services

Director Wendy Yoder, Financial Services, reported that her department had been working hard on the FY 2005 budget. The public announcement for the budget will be Tuesday, June 1, at 10 a.m. in the commissioners' meeting room at the courthouse.

The date is about two weeks later than the budget is usually presented, she noted, because of new elements that will be added this year, including Public Utilities' new rate study.

Yoder said 360 delinquent tax notices were recently mailed out, compared to the 269 that were delivered at this time last year. The county's sale of delinquent properties will be held Friday, May 14, at 10 a.m. in the courthouse rotunda.

The director noted that many property owners have used her department's new credit card payment system to pay their taxes. About $22,000 of real property taxes have been collected through the system so far.

"Most pay over the telephone or the Internet," she said, noting that many of the credit card users were upset with the surcharge fee that was added to their bills. "They think it goes to the county," she said. Yoder stressed that the extra fee goes to the credit card company for its services and not the county.

For more information about paying county taxes with a credit card, persons may call the Garrett County Tax Collection Office at 301-334-1965 or visit online at garrettcounty.org/financialserv/tax-collection.html.

Board of Education

Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of schools, said an ROTC (Reserve Officer Training Corps) program will be in place at Southern and Northern high schools in 2005. The board has been working on getting a program in place for about five years.

Teets said the program would really help to keep some students in school and to give others leadership training.

Economic Development

Director Jim Hinebaugh, Economic Development, that he, Commissioner Ernie Gregg, and Garrett College president Dr. Steve Herman met recently with Gov. Robert Ehrlich. They discussed funding for the Garrett College Athletic Center.

The facility would be run by the college, but would be a community recreation center. "Like a YMCA," said Hinebaugh.

The local officials discussed funding for design work in 2006 and construction in 2007-08 with the governor.

Of the $23 million needed for the project, $13 would be needed from the state. Hinebaugh said the governor noted that it was a lot of money, but he appeared to favor the idea. "I'm optimistic that we'll get his support for this," said Hinebaugh.

Gary Mullich, director of General Services, also noted that contract negotiations were finished with the architectural firm that will design the county's trade/exhibit hall.

Board of Elections

With the Maryland primary election completed, voter registration is open again for the general election on Nov. 2, reported Director Steve Fratz, Garrett County Board of Elections. The official tabulation from the primary will be released April 12.

Fratz said the new Die-Bold touch screen voting system that was used for the first time in the county during the primaries was well accepted by the polling place judges and voters.

"It's a good system," he

STATE CHAMPIONS RECOGNIZED – The Garrett County commissioners this week recognized the Southern High School girls' basketball program for receiving its first state championship. The Rams claimed the title on March 13 by defeating Southside Academy of Baltimore 41-31 in the Division 1A finals at the University of Maryland Baltimore Campus gymnasium. Commissioner Dave Beard, a former SHS teacher, said he has seen many ball games over the years, but no season was more pleasing than this one. Commissioner Fred Holliday noted that the girls took academics as seriously as they did sports, as many of them are on the honor roll. "They strive to achieve in all they do," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg. Head coach Don Stemple thanked local residents for supporting the team. He noted that the team not only had the most fans at the finals, but it was the only one with its local radio station, county commissioners, and superintendent of schools in attendance. "I'm tickled to death to live in Garrett County," Stemple said. The team was also recognized by the Maryland General Assembly in Annapolis this week. Pictured, left to right, in the front row are seniors Becca Flanagan, Robbin Gregg, Justine Pagenhardt, Sabrina Scheffel, and Roxann Hoalcraft. In the back row are assistant coach Fred Gregg, Commissioner Gregg, assistant coach Jason Shank, Julia Bosley, Ashley Stuck, Kendra McLaughlin, Caitlyn Brown, Kayla Nazelrod, Stemple, Beard, and Holliday. ## Salem Students Testify Again On School's Behalf

A bond bill to provide funding for design and construction of a new school building at the Maryland Salem Children's Trust received its second hearing in the Maryland General Assembly Saturday when children, staff, and friends appeared before the House Appropriations Committee to testify on behalf of HB 809.

Introduced by Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer, the legislation received final approval in the Senate on Friday in the amount of $425,000, according to a Salem spokesperson. The legislation still needs to be approved by the House and the governor.

"We are so very grateful to Senator Hafer and Delegate Edwards for their sponsorship of this bill," said Salem executive director Louise Richards, who witnessed its passage in Annapolis. "Our children urgently need a new school, and their leadership is both crucial and encouraging."

Salem School programs currently operate in temporary facilities consisting of a former residence and two detached mobile units on Lower New Germany Road.

"Educators work valiantly to provide top-quality schooling in crowded, inadequate facilities," said the spokesperson.

Testifying in support of the HB 809 were David, a sixth grader at Salem School, and Makia, a graduate of the school who is now an eighth grader in public school. The students had testified previously before the Senate Budget and Taxation Committee on March 8 in support of the Senate version of the legislation.

"When we read or work in the library," said David, "people are always going in and out the front door of the school. They almost bump into us. It's hard to concentrate.

"We also don't have a kitchen in the school," he continued. "We have to cross the road to get to class and to lunch. People drive really fast through there. Last year one of our vans got hit when it was turning into the driveway. Please help us get a real school".

Makia recalled Christmas programs performed in a classroom. "Kids shouldn't have to go to school where it's so crowded," she told the Appropriations Committee. "There's no room for all the books and computers and music. I sang in the choir, and we had to give our Christmas program in front of the blackboard, and the adults were sitting in our desks and standing around the room. It's embarrassing! Kids want to feel like they're in a real school."

A total of 13 persons traveled to Annapolis from Garrett County to support the bill.

Salem School provides transitional education and full-day special education to children from western Maryland and across the state who are not ready for public school.

"Despite inadequate facilities, the school received highest ratings from the Maryland State Department of Education during its on-site monitoring visit last fall," noted the spokesperson.

In addition to granting a perfect score on compliance, according to transitional classroom teacher Phyllis Jordan, "the agency was impressed with both the structure and the level of teaching that was taking place . . . and with the relationships between the teachers and students . . . it was obvious there was care and mutual respect in the interactions."

MARYLAND SALEM CHILDREN'S TRUST SUPPORTERS traveled to Annapolis again on Saturday to testify before the House Appropriations Committee. They asked the committee to approve a bond bill which would provide funding for design and construction of a new school building on their campus, located along Lower New Germany Road. The group had previously testified in the Senate on behalf the legislation, which was sponsored by Sen. John Hafer and Del. George Edwards. See story for details. Pictured above, seated left to right, testifying before the Appropriations Committee are Gary Harriger, former Salem student Makia, current Salem student David, and Louise Richards, executive director of Salem. Standing are Jay Sauder, Clare Cooper, Bill Stimmell, Yvonne Burroughs, Kurt Sauder, Sam Reckley, John Potts, Carolyn Harriger, and Edwards. Pictured below are Makia, Edwards, and David.

Saturday's "Celebration Of Assets" To Feature Speaker Bobby Petrocelli

Bobby Petrocelli

A nationally known motivational speaker will be giving presentations in Garrett County this Friday and Saturday. Bobby Petrocelli will be speaking to students at Northern and Southern high schools on Friday, April 2, and is the keynote speaker on Saturday at the third annual Celebration of Assets, held at Garrett College.

"Petrocelli's story is one of personal triumph and hope following a tragedy in his life," a spokesperson said. "One night he went to bed in suburban America, a happy man with a loving wife. When he woke up, dazed in his kitchen, his wife was dead and his life forever changed."

A pickup truck, driven by a man whose blood alcohol level was more than double the amount to make him legally drunk, had crashed through his bedroom wall, killing his wife.

"Petrocelli shares how he fought through the darkness to triumph, how he drew upon his faith and his friends, and how he came to love again. As a high school teacher and coach, his love for youth inspired him to take his dramatic story to audiences nationwide," the spokesperson said.

Diane Lee, highway safety coordinator at the Garrett County Health Department, heard Petrocelli speak last year at Frostburg State University.

"His effect on the students was amazing," she said. "He speaks from the heart about making good decisions, and about the consequences of making bad ones. He's an excellent speaker who makes his presentation come alive."

For more information about Bobby Petrocelli, persons may visit his web site at www.10seconds.org.

Saturday's Celebration of Assets theme is "Sailing Into Your Future."

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m., and the conference kicks off at 10 a.m. All sessions are free, and preregistration is not required.

"All ages are welcome at the Celebration," said Venessa Stacy, event coordinator. "We are hoping that entire families join us for the day."

There will also be "funshops" at the Celebration, including puppetry, scrapbooking, music, drumming, jump-roping, and magic, as well as a showcase of local youth talents.

"Assets are building blocks of healthy development that help young people grow up healthy, caring, and responsible," Stacy said. "Examples of assets are family support, service to others, adult role models, and self-esteem."

Petrocelli's presentations are being sponsored by the Garrett County Highway Safety Program through funding of the Maryland Highway Safety Office at the State Highway Administration.

The Celebration of Assets is supported by the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention through the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc./Local Management Board, Garrett County Health Department, University of Maryland, Garrett County Extension Office, Garrett College, and Garrett Youth Council.

For more information, persons may contact the health department at 301-334-7730.

Ideas Shared By Municipality Representatives

Approximately 60 people representing municipalities from the state's two western most counties gathered at the Oakland Golf Club last night to share ideas and concerns that many of them have in common.

Known as the acronym "Al-Gar," the group is an Allegany/Garrett County Chapter of the Maryland Municipal League. Its president is Oakland city councilman Jay Moyer.

"This evening is a chance for all of us to compare notes," Moyer said. "We can also work on some things together. I'm proposing tonight that the group combine its efforts to request that the legislature work on the utility companies to provide us out here with a real presence and not just a phone number and an answering machine when we have an emergency."

Moyer's proposal was well received by the group, especially after hearing of two cases in Garrett County that could have proved deadly.

"In one case, snow fell from the roof of a building and knocked loose some meters. It resulted in a serious gas leak. We were just lucky that a utility employee was in the county at the time and happened to hear what was happening on his radio," Moyer said. "The same type of scenario works for a downed power line. Our fire department gets called out and waits to hear for a response from their telephone call. The call is answered by a machine. It just isn't safe. There should be an office or a representative for each of the utility companies somewhere here in western Maryland."

Other Garrett County officials attending included Commissioner Dave Beard and Oakland mayor Asa McCain.

Beard said he thought of the Al-Gar group as an opportunity to expand the "Mountain Maryland" concept, which is a marketing device spawned a few years ago by regional retailers and artisans.

"We need to look at our whole area as a single region. That way we can expand the work done at the annual PACE meetings," said Beard.

The acronym PACE stands for Positive Attitudes Change Everything, and centers around a day in Annapolis when representatives from Allegany and Garrett counties fill a room with exhibits and other displays that state officials view as they tour the numerous presentations. Beard also said he saw an opportunity for the two counties to work together on plans and construction for the long discussed North/South Corridor.

"KICKING BUTTS" IN GARRETT COUNTY – Yesterday, March 31, was National Kick Butts Day (KBD), an annual celebration of youth advocacy, leadership, and activism in helping to stop the use of tobacco products. According to a spokesperson from the Garrett County Health Department, thousands of kids in every state are "standing out . . . speaking up . . . and seizing control in the fight against 'Big Tobacco.'" Locally, KBD shirts, sweatshirts, and hats are being given away in conjunction with a trivia contest going on all week on the radio stations WKHJ and WFRB. Pictured above are members of the Southern STEAM group modeling the KBD giveaway gear. In the front from left are Emma Ringer, Terri Tasker, and Holly Sauder. In the back from left are Jason Sines, Chaz Lantz, and Lacey Glotfelty. Funding for the KBD gear was provided by the University of Maryland Statewide Health Network in partnership with the Garrett County Tobacco Free Coalition and the Garrett County Health Department. ## Easter Egg Hunt Slated At Broadford

WKHJ and 92.3 The Train radio stations will hold their 5th annual Radio FX Easter Egg Hunt at Broadford Lake Park on Saturday, April 3, starting at noon.

The event is free to area children, ages 2 to 10. Last year, around 400 children searched for eggs.

"We would like to thank the local businesses and organizations for the monetary, candy, or prize donations they have given for use toward the purchase of eggs and prizes," said a radio spokesperson.

Last year, around 2,500 eggs were hidden, with each egg containing either candy or a prize. This year, they plan to stuff more than 3,000 plastic eggs. There will be three $50 savings bonds, one per age category, donated by various local banks.

"We hope to build on the success of the previous four years with just as many or more young people enjoying a fun and safe Easter Egg Hunt," said Pam Trickett of WKHJ. "Each year, we've been lucky – as the number of children participating has increased greatly, the community financial support comes in as well.

"We would also like to have a few planned activated before the hunt begins this year. It is great that we have been able to grow the event each year. We would also like to thank Mayor McCain and the Oakland Town Council for the use of Broadford; it's the perfect park to stage a 3-age group egg hunt with lots of parking."

The rain date is set for Saturday, April 10.

Mayor McCain provided the group with an update on progress for opening the Third Street bridge. He said some plans call for tearing down the old bridge within three weeks, a prediction he said was difficult for him to believe because of the ongoing process of permits and the existence in the area of gas lines.

McCain urged the group to look into the possibility of securing highway user funding and to request an update on recommendations for zoning ordinances regarding junk.

Moyer closed the meeting reminding the membership that this year's annual convention is scheduled for June 27-30.

Grantsville Man Arrested For Drunk Driving

A Grantsville man was arrested on drunk driving charges after his vehicle was observed crossing the center line and onto the shoulder of Amish Road about two miles south of Rt. 40 Saturday night, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Robert G. Spiker, 41, failed field sobriety tests, and was charged with driving while impaired (DWI) and driving under the influence (DUI).

A metal pipe containing suspected marijuana residue was found in the vehicle, police said. Spiker is facing drug charges in addition to the drunk driving charges, police added.

In a separate incident, Duane Herbert Maust, 34, Meyersdale, Pa., was arrested after he failed field sobriety tests early Saturday morning.

His truck was stopped after police noticed it was missing a tail light lens. He was charged with DUI, DUI per se, and DWI.

Planning Meeting Slated By Mtn. Fresh Producers

The Mountain Fresh Producers Association will begin its 16th season by meeting on Tuesday, April 6, at 7 p.m. at the Garrett County Extension Office, 1916 Maryland Highway, Mtn. Lake Park.

The meeting will be a general membership meeting to discuss plans for the 2004 season, a spokesperson said. Anyone residing in Garrett, Allegany, Preston, or Tucker counties who may be interested in joining for the 2004 season or learning more about membership is invited to attend.

Applications and copies of the Mountain Fresh Producers rules and regulations may be obtained at the meeting. The membership dues for the 2004 season is $25 until June 1 and $30 thereafter.

Membership allows producers to set up at the Mtn. Fresh Pavilion in the Oakland town parking lot and the McHenry Market location during the market season, July through October, on Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays. The daily set-up fee for both the Oakland and McHenry markets is $10 for members and $15 for non-members.

The Oakland pavilion has tables for vendors to use to sell their own produce, baked goods, crafts, and/or cut and potted flowers and herbs. Members are also invited to set up on special days such as Christmas in July, the Ice Cream Social, the Customer Appreciation Corn Roast, and Autumn Glory Festival markets.

Persons who are unable to attend the meeting but would like an application for membership may contact Cathy Sanders, Mountain Fresh Producers Association market coordinator, at the Extension Office, 301-334-6960, or visit the association online at www.MountainFresh.org.

Driver Injured In Two-Vehicle Mishap Tuesday

The driver of a 1999 Dodge truck was injured when his vehicle struck the trailer portion of a tractor trailer that had pulled into his path at the intersection of Route 135 and Route 38 around 8 a.m. Tuesday morning, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Brian Paul Roderick was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Gerald William Chapman, the driver of the tractor trailer, was cited for failure to yield the intersection right of way to another vehicle.

In a separate incident, Eric Roscoe Chapman, 32, Elk Garden, W.Va., was arrested after his tractor trailer log truck was stopped for speeding early Monday morning on George Washington Highway.

Chapman was charged with driving on a suspended out-of-state license, displaying registration tags issued to another vehicle, and exceeding the maximum speed limit.

Every time I'm thinking of you,
My saddened heart still cries.
But I know you are now at peace,
Resting in God's Heavenly skies.
The pain you had was left behind,
Once you entered Heaven's door.
Held in the arms of God Almighty,
You will never feel pain anymore.
Your beautiful soul now flies freely,
Reaching down from Heaven to mine.
Always to keep you so close to me;
Bonded through the passage of time.
Your loving heart is remembered;
It holds a special place in my heart.
And I will always keep it held within,
Through every day that we are apart.
It still hurts so much to think of you,
Because I'm missing having you here.
Yet I know that in the Heavenly skies,
God's gift to me, is to keep you near.

Thanks, Erick...

There are thousands of violinists in the world, and scores of them are considered by critics to be outstanding. But Erick Friedman was ranked among the top 10.

A child prodigy, Erick made his New York solo debut at age 14. At 17 he began studying with Jascha Heifetz, considered by most to be the absolute greatest violinist of all time. Erick not only studied with him, but he was also selected by Heifetz to record with him Bach's Concerto for Two Violins.

Erick's recordings were nominated for Grammys several times, and he received the coveted award in 1996. He was not only an amazing performer, but also a teacher of great violinists, having taught at Southern Methodist University, the North Carolina School of the Arts, the Manhattan School of Music, and for the past 15 years, at the Yale School of Music. Young students moved to the United States from many different countries just so they could study with Erick.

It was in 1986 that Erick first came to Garrett County with a dear friend from Mtn. Lake Park whom he had met at SMU. He was so taken by the area and the people here that he wanted to bring top-quality orchestral music to the area in the form of concerts, instruction, and competition. It was from that idea that the Symphony at Deep Creek was born in 1987, not to mention the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival as an organization. A number of local music/arts enthusiasts quickly jumped on board, and GLAF was launched.

With Erick as music director and conductor, there were chamber performances and full orchestra concerts, featuring solos by Erick and many other outstanding musicians. The artists who filled the chairs of the orchestra were the cream of the crop, handpicked by Erick, and literally from all over the world, all converging in Garrett County to produce music of incredible, unprecedented quality. There were also cello competitions, and many private lessons provided to younger, promising musicians. It was a marvelous run that was, in more ways than can be listed here, a blessing, both to local folks who were fortunate enough to hear that music, and to the musicians who participated over the years.

Erick died from lung cancer (he never smoked) on Monday at age 64, leaving this world far too early for someone who brought so much value into it. He was still teaching, still working hard to pass along his invaluable gift, right up until his final week.

GLAF lives on, and while Erick's involvement ended several years ago, there is now a new Symphony at Deep Creek, which in the past three years has also produced some fabulous music here on the mountaintop. We're disappointed, though, that on the GLAF web site there is not a single mention of Erick Friedman, co-founder of the symphony, and at least to our recollection, his name has not even been mentioned at any of the concerts by the "new" symphony. Surely this year, at least one concert, if not the entire week of performances, will be dedicated to Erick's life and memory.

Thank you, Erick. Thank you for so much. May you now rest in a peace even more wonderful than that which you provided to Garrett County, and the world, with your violin.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The March 25 issue contains two different news stories that are actually very closely related. Atop page 1 there is mention of the increase in fees for launching a boat into Deep Creek Lake. On page 5 is an article about the state legislature's struggle with possible new tax increases.

The proponents of raising the state sales tax advertise it as "we'll only increase your taxes by a penny," whereas those who can do arithmetic recognize it as a 20% increase in the sales tax. In opposition to this idea, Governor Ehrlich has instead proposed installing slot machines at race tracks, so as to take more money away from people who enjoy gambling.

But the overriding point is that the money has to come from somewhere. The increase in boat-launch fees is just one single example of the attempt to increase revenue without having an across-the-board tax increase. There are a hundred other minor ways to increase taxes, each one of which hits a small and narrow group that has an insufficient constituency to blockade the idea. For example, one suggestion that appeared a couple months ago was to tack a hefty fee ($100 ?) on top of a speeding-ticket fine. This is acceptable in Annapolis because the people who get speeding tickets do not have an organized lobby. Another example is the way professional licensing fees have gone way up. In every case, the key to acceptability is that the opponents are not organized.

The opposition to slot machines comes primarily from people who fear for the morality and spending habits of somebody else. For most of us, slots are okay because they raise state revenue, as long as they're "not in my back yard." However, without them, there will continue to be additional little taxes slipped in this way or that (such as the increased boat launch fee) until the budget balances. The old adage "divide and conquer" is the successful prescription for raising taxes.

To the Editor:

It surely is regrettable that we are living in an era of so much antagonism between "religious" denominations, and also between atheists and Christians. From what I'm reading it can likely be correctly assumed that the media, the NEA, the FTA, many (not all) liberal politicians, the public schools and universities, and the philosophy of the United Nations (among others) are all spending untold billions of dollars in a grand effort to establish a new paradigm of thought regarding what is most important for lasting world peace and prosperity. (Two research sources: former Judge Robert Bork's books and research compiled by Dr. James Dobson and his staff of some 1,500 scholars "Focusing on the Family.")

For some 250 years America willingly and eagerly relied on involvement with a living God and a "Godly science." Presently it appears that scientists (again, not all) want the "entire pie." In all their brilliance they cannot believe in anything but laboratory "proofs." Carl Sagan and his "private faith," which will not allow proselitization except by selected groups, has stolen the day. It's perhaps well that Mr. Sagan is no longer on God's earth.

But you know, now a growing number of scientists of integrity are claiming that God's omniscience (omni science) has more going for it than man's Godless science. Consider: Among the billions of persons on this earth, each has individual DNA and finger prints. Since we cannot possibly know exactly how many people are on earth at any given moment, we cannot hope to figure the odds on that happening by chance. Omni science declares that our bodies did not evolve. Witness: How do evolving bodies survive through untold eons of time while appendages and organs are shaping up? To say nothing of the many (count them? ) abstract aspects that are so vital in human relationships? (Love, conscience, instincts, skills, and reasoning are a few.)

Need we say more? I very much believe that "proud scientists of evolution" have caused more problems in human lives and world turmoil than any other single factor. Should we not teach Godly creation and the theory of evolution and assume that our young people have sufficient intelligence to choose what they believe? Students' familiarity with His omnipresence, omnipotence, and omniscience would surely have an early advantage in achieving an understanding of the Christian faith.

Sincerely,
Paul A. Eary

To the Editor:

Garrett County Lighthouse Inc. has been providing mental health services to citizens of Garrett County for 12 years. We have survived many managed care changes over the years while diligently working to safeguard mental health services to people of all ages.

Services are and always have been for children, adolescents, adults, and the elderly. In February, the Mental Hygiene Administration drastically reduced the number of rehabilitation and support services an individual can use. Psychiatric rehabilitation providers are paid for six services for adults and three services for children per month as a case rate. More than six or three services are not eligible for any payment. The negative impact on patient care is that Lighthouse serves patients with schizophrenia and multiple functional problems that require more than six services to remain stable. The cuts in services were not by diagnosis or severity of mental illness, but by an across-the-board reduction to every individual in the public mental health system.

In spite of these deep financial cuts to our budget, which have far exceeded the proposed 10 percent, we have persevered in our efforts to care for our most vulnerable Garrett County citizens. With notable effort by all personnel, we have continued to maintain the quality of our care, as well as preserve our support service network. Because of our personnel's commitment we have ensured that individuals with mental illness receive the services that are necessary for patient safety, as well as prevention of clinical deterioration.

We have not refused patients because they do not have insurance, nor have we denied service to our most chronic patients. We believe that maintaining the appropriate level of care is ethically responsible for the well-being of the patient. However, over time it will be financially impossible without a state budget that funds more than six or three services monthly, some type of local funding, or in-kind services.

While we are waiting for next year's state budget information, we are actively searching for resourceful solutions to support people with mental illness. One of our solutions was to establish "The Beacon." The Beacon is an outreach and support service which operates every Friday. It is a peer support service, but as of this date it has not been granted financial support from any government agency. It is a program that has survived on its own through fund-raising and minimal sponsorship by Lighthouse. It is a place for comfort, relaxation, and conversation, and it does not require managed care authorization for services to attend. It is designed by consumers of Lighthouse services, and it is beginning to blossom. We are proud of this program, and the consumers that have worked many ours to develop it.

Budget cuts may have abated our spirit, but like the ocean tides, it always returns. As a result, we publicly pledge to remain faithful to Garrett County and patients we serve. Our roots are firmly planted here.

If you have any comments, questions, or would like to voice your encouragement, please do not hesitate to call us at 301-334-9126. Thank you, Garrett County citizens, for your ongoing support of our organization during these turbulent times.

Debbie Jo Adams-Noroski
CEO of Garrett County Lighthouse Inc.

To the Editor:

I must respond to the last line in Bill Thomas's cute, but devoid-of-substance, limerick in last week's letter section. He wrote: "Regime change is scheduled for later this fall. Let's send them to Texas; it's best for us all."

There's no doubt, Bill, that you, John Kerry, and foremost, Osama bin Laden, al-Qaeda, Jemaah Islamiya, al-Aqsa martyrs brigade are wishing the same thing.

Next up is Robert Vagnetti, who writes regarding Spain's elections: "They kicked out the old government and voted in a new one. I think we should follow Spain's lead."

Following Spain's lead and voting for a socialist government as was elected is not for me, Robert, but if socialism is your cup of tea, John Kerry may be your man. Mr. Kerry has stated over and over how he will roll back the Bush tax cut and redistribute the wealth as he sees fit. But I say, Mr. Kerry, keep your hands out of my pocket; that is my money you want to steal.

Last was Susan Bell's letter. With all due respect, as a young boy of 10 years, I witnessed live terrorism on the TV screen: the 1972 Olympics massacre of the Israeli athletes by agents of the PLO, sanctioned by their leader Yasser Arafat. Less than 20 years later, I see this same man on the steps of our White House, hand in hand with then-president Bill Clinton; hand in hand with someone who sanctioned the killing of innocent men, women, and children. Did he (Clinton) not know that American citizens also died when those homicidal bombers did their despicable deeds of blowing up buses and teen dance clubs and pizza shops in Israel? It makes me sick to think that a known terrorist was wined and dined in our White House.

Some may not know also that the Iraqi government under Saddam paid the families of those homicide bombers $25,000 with lavish ceremonies, praising their heinous act. I praise my president for taking a stand against evil.

Chance and the Brucia Kidnapping

by John Ducoli

Chance is such an integral part of daily life that it has become virtually platitudinous. "What if" discussions are so commonplace that most are quickly relegated to the bin of reminiscences, resurrected only on a convivial evening (often as a compliment to a martini). Yet it is not always so.

A classic example of that of a world-famous 19th century Russian novelist who devoted a considerable number of pages of his masterpiece to explain that Napolean's invasion of Russia and a Russian general's response could have altered the course of European history had chance not intervened. If the general had taken a different route to meet Napolean's forces, the latter would have won.

My own recent interaction with chance occurred through a concatenation of events that propelled me into Sarasota, Florida, during the recent kidnapping and murder of 11-year-old Carlie Brucia. I was then occupying a house eight miles from the abduction area, and my favorite walking route stood a scant three miles from the car-wash where the videotape of the kidnapping was made.

My customary walk took place between 5 and 6 a.m. in a mall, well lighted and patrolled by guards in marked and unmarked vehicles. Initially my exercise seemed unobserved, though that was highly unlikely, as upscale department stores and boutiques occupied the rectangle. The guards kept a respectable distance while I hugged the perimeters of the mall. But the kidnapping altered the routine.

During the search for the perpetrator(s) I was approached by two pickups and a car at different times, which presented a sense of being caught in an armed camp. The first truck was driven by a youngish female, who puzzled me, for, while I expected an in-your-face-treatment, I heard a voice that would have done justice to a superior telephone receptionist. Her queries were simple: she was lost, how did she get to I-045 (non-existent), was I from around there, etc., etc. As I unsuspectingly explained she was about 10 miles from her objective, which I thought was I-75 N, she appeared to become disinterested. Apparently, I was later to think, I did not fit the profile of a suspect. As she departed, I observed that her vehicle did not take the turn that would have started her carrying out my suggestions.

A day or two later, I was back at the mall at my usual time when another pickup, possibly the same one (non-descript, black) stopped beside me, and an aggressive young may asked me about the location of Sears in the mall. Making a delivery was his objective, he said. My suspicions were aroused, for the department store was not located in the mall, but in another area — another mall — about 15 miles away. My instructions in this case were uninvolved and, as the truck departed, I noticed that the only thing in the truck bed was a well used ladder, though I rationalized he could have been hauling diamonds in the cab. By this time I began to feel a certain apprehension about the area and decided to alter my route.

The next day I headed for the Sarasota Bay Harbor via downtown, a well-lighted area with restaurant employees making arrangements for their early al fresco coffee drinkers and later diners. Homeward bound and two city blocks from my residence, I sensed flashing car lights from behind me, and when the vehicle caught up to me, it speeded up and stopped abruptly about 50 feet beyond me. A well dressed individual of about 40 exited and started toward me, pretending he was checking house numbers.

Taken aback and engulfed by a mild paranoia, I decided to take a friendly approach. If I were to be bludgeoned and/or robbed, I wanted it to be attenuated. So I said quite pleasantly, "Hey, buddy; you lost? Need some help?"

He peered at me, and again the pretext of looking for a house number. His response, a casual "No; looking for a certain place."

My deduction, given his well-made suit, matching shirt, and appropriate cravat, an FBI agent.

The experiences that were packed in just a few days were based on chance. Had I varied my walking routes, there is little doubt I would have encountered other events.

Exercises involving "what ifs" are about as useful as trying to un-ring a bell. But life is a series of memories — the Sarasota affair now vivid, but, like life, doomed to fade.

Oakland Man Arrested For Fraud, Perjury

An Oakland man was arrested and charged with welfare fraud and perjury following a weeklong investigation by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation.

The investigation revealed that Michael Stephen Anderson, 49, completed and signed numerous documents claiming pertinent issues regarding his household income when he applied for state assistance (Food Stamp Program), police said.

Those claims were later proven false by GBI detectives.

Anderson was transported to the Garrett County Detention Center and held on $100,000 bond, which was later reduced to $50,000. He posted $50,000 and was released pending trial, police said.

said. Despite what critics have said about the system, Fratz said, that it was almost impossible for hackers to get into it.

To help residents learn more about the new system, the Garrett County Board of Elections will arrange outreach demonstrations for local groups. To arrange a demonstration persons may call 301-334-6985.

Health Department

Health officer Rodney Glofelty, Garrett County Health Department, reported that the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene was working on its budget and trying to sort through what the General Assembly was doing. With the state's budget woes, cuts are expected.

"It looks like the Cigarette Restitution Fund will be cut 13 percent," said Glotfelty. The Health Department's Smoking Cessation classes operate with CRF monies.

MedBank of Maryland funding is also expected to be cut 50 percent overall. The health officer said that was bad enough, but even worse is that Garrett County Health Department's share of the funding would probably be cut 66 percent. Its $96,000 budget is expected to be reduced to $32,000.

Maryland residents who have no prescription coverage and who not eligible for other programs receive help in getting their prescription medications filled through the MedBank program.

Glotfelty also reported that the transition of the local core service agency, Mountain Mental Health Associates Inc., to the Health Department was "moving along." Phone lines and a data support system need to be installed yet before the May 1 move.

Municipal Assistance

Mike Mullan, municipal assistance coordinator, noted that Accident was still waiting for funding approval from the Maryland Department of the Environment for its sewer project. He added, however, that he was still confident that the town would get the money.

Mullan also reported that he has been meeting with state officials on code enforcement issues for local towns. He said the goal was to have a standard set of codes for all the towns, so when a code enforcer is hired, he or she can enforce issues such as derelict buildings, junk, trash, and barking dogs.

Community Action

Funding appears to be forthcoming for the Overlook Judy Center child care program, reported Duane Yoder, president of the Garrett County Community Action Committee. He said he did not know exactly how much money would be available, but it appears that the funds would be channeled through the Garrett County Department of Social Services.

"We've been up and down on this," Yoder said about getting funding for the high priority program. The center serves about 60 families with 80 children. Because of state funding cuts, the center almost closed last year, but the state later allocated enough money to keep it running for at least another year.

industry, the Chesapeake Bay Foundation and Chesapeake Climate Action Network environmental groups, the Johns Hopkins University Center for Health Preparedness, power utilities including Baltimore Gas and Electric, and a coalition of the state's largest manufacturers, who gave their support after a compromise measure capped their potential future costs under the bill.

Supporters have cited the potential for decreased dependence on both foreign and domestic oil and coal sources, reduced pollution emissions of mercury and compounds such as carbon dioxide and carbon monoxide, and potential increased employment and economic activity.

Supporters presented the House with over 10,000 petition signatures, a letter signed by over 100 Maryland businesses, including companies located Oakland, Frostburg, and Cumberland, and 5,000 signed postcards from residents across the state that asked for the bill's passage.

The legislation is opposed by a lobby of environmentalists, small business owners, and the Maryland Chamber of Commerce, which takes the position that the "goal of the bill is a worthy one, but it translates into increased, and for some substantial, costs for Maryland businesses as consumers of electricity, which, in today's economic ,environment, businesses cannot afford."

Opponents also argue that some types of renewable energy, especially wind power, are overrated as a means of electricity production; legislation and tax credit proposals in support of wind power stymie competition, are fiscally irresponsible, and provide an unfair advantage to the industry; and that large wind turbines pose hazards to birds while imposing large wind turbine structures on widely visible ridgelines.

The Sierra Club has not taken an official stand on the bill.

Approximately 95 percent of electricity generated in Maryland comes from conventional energy sources such as coal or oil, according to HB 1038 sponsor Mike Busch, the speaker of the Maryland house. The remaining 5 percent comes from renewable sources such as solar, biomass, or municipal waste. The U.S. Department of Energy lists 46 renewable energy facilities are currently in operation in the state, broken down as 31 solar energy producers, seven biomass producers, seven hydroelectric producers, and one wind power producer.

At this point there is just one proposal on the drawing board at this point for a wind power facility in Garrett County: a string of up to 67 turbines that Clipper Windpower hopes to construct along Backbone Mountain.

Please don't feed the bears!

Letters

the 1993 World Trade Center bombing, the previous administration did nothing. Clinton sends our troops to Somalia, where we were all sickened to watch the bodies of our soldiers dragged through the streets. The administration turns tail and runs. That was certainly a good lesson for the terrorists watching.

Next, our embassies are blown up in Africa, the administration sends cruise missiles to hit al-Qaeda training camps in Afghanistan, and instead blows up an aspirin factory in the Sudan.

When the USS Cole is bombed in 2000, and the 9/11 attacks are being planned under the Clinton/Gore watch, what did they do and where was this 30-year veteran counterterrorism "expert" Richard Clark during these horrific crimes against our nation? Don't you think it was time to take a stand?

On the Iraq issue, since the end of the Gulf War the Hussein government had not abided by the ceasefire agreement, they had habitually denied inspectors unrestricted access to suspect areas, his anti-aircraft guns continued to target American pilots, and after 12 years of brazen disregard of the aforementioned treaty, the U.N. still would not enforce their own resolutions.

As far as I'm concerned, the first and foremost job of our government is to protect its citizens and our shores. President Bush begged for U.N. involvement, but they would not act. So our government did.

Miss Bell, protecting our nation should be this government's #1 priority, and are you not belittling those nations who have joined in this long struggle when you claim we have "alienated the world"? We cannot and will not turn tail and run from this fight.

Miss Bell, you say a daughter of yours is in Washington, D.C., and it is extremely upsetting to you when the terror alert level is on orange or red. No disrespect is intended here, but your daughter is highly more likely (God forbid) to become a victim of violent crime in that cesspool of liberal politics than to become a victim of terrorism.

She also ends her letter with "the Spanish election was democracy at its finest." Once again, I never much cared for socialism, which is just a nice word for communism.

God bless George Bush, God bless and watch over our men and women in the military and their families, God bless American democracy, and God bless America.

THE NACILBUPER

VOLUME 1 | APRIL FOOL'S DAY, 2004 | $60.00 PER PAGE

Nuisance Tourists To Be Trapped And Released

After receiving the very first complaint call from a black bear this month, the local Dept. of Irritation Regulation (DIR) has decided to initiate a trap and release program for nuisance tourists.

"The bear was a good mother, and she was truly worried about her cubs," said Thomas Burrsocks, a DIR officer. "She said she was sick of pulling her toddlers off of piles of tourists' garbage and that their teeth were rotting from the bait those tourists keep leaving outside. And once they go for the bait, the paparazzi is just relentless. So she suggested that the DIR start trapping the few tourists who really cause problems."

Burrsocks said the number of nuisance tourists was hard to determine, but felt that it was small compared to those who cause no problems.

"Most of them pass by and you don't even know they're there," he said. "Sure, they have weird accents and they might tend to look down their noses at the natives a little, but they are good for the tax base. We at the DIR have no intention of completely removing the tourists. What would be the sense in that?

"It's just the ones who keep leaving the trash out, who tear up our roads with their Hummers, and who are overly rude to our hospitality people," Burrsocks said.

The nuisance tourists will be lured, he said, by following signs to phantom shops, such as Tiffany's, Neiman Marcus, or Bloomingdale's. (Burrsocks offered no comment on whether or not tranquilizer darts will be utilized.) When they are trapped and secured, they will be transported to Montgomery County or similar locales.

"Let the city folks handle them a while," Burrsocks said. "If they find their way back, so be it. But at least for a while our bears can go about their business in peace."

SPACE GOING FAST — Is your religious, political, or fraternal organization represented here? If not, you should hurry, according to the Powers That Be, the local religious/political agenda-furthering group almost not at all connected with the town council. In a statement issued this morning, it was noted that the Oakland Overlook, the newest advertising/witnessing forum in the county, is almost completely sold out, but a few spaces still remain. The agency is selling land by the square yard so that everyone who wants to exercise his right to free expression may be satisfied. "Won't it be nice," a PTB spokesman stated, a large cigar protruding from his gold tooth-filled smile, "to look up at the overlook and see the symbols that are most important to us?" However, he did warn, while counting an impressively large stack of 100-dollar bills, that the current appearance of the overlook may be deceptive. The only reason that there is still some visible landscape, he stated, is that large parcels have been purchased by some local groups who have not yet submitted proposals for their advertisements. "We've had land purchased by the Citizens Against Rude Eyesores (CARE), the Associated Hedonistic Heathens of Garrett and Allegany County (AHH-GAC), and the Mountaintop Society for Not Shoving Their Beliefs Down Other People's Throats (no acronym available). We don't know yet what sort of signs they're going to put up, but they've already paid, so we're not concerned." Sales continue at a brisk pace.

Hungry Holler Home Schedule Of Events Noted

The schedule of events for this Saturday, April 3, for residents of the Hungry Holler Nursing Home, Rosedale, was released this morning by the activities department.

The rugby match between the third-floor Coots and second-floor Codgers will kick off at 1 p.m. It was noted that the Codgers' star forward, Edsel Malone, 83, is listed as "doubtful" for the match, having had double-hernia surgery this morning.

The women of the first floor will host their semi-annual Jello wrestling tournament at 3 p.m., or as soon as the rugby match is over. All competitors are reminded that they must remove all dentures before stepping into the ring, and then use the outside showers at the conclusion of the event.

Millie Turnbull of second floor will conduct a seminar at 4 p.m. titled "100 Other Exciting Uses for the Bed Pan." Participants should BYOP.

Happy Hour, featuring complimentary hot toddies, will be served in rec room from 4:30 to 5:30. (Limit 5 per person.) Designated wheelchair operators will also be available for a fee of $1 ($2 for third floor residents).

Dinner with a luau theme will be served from 5:30 to 6:30 in the cafeteria. All members of Helene's Hula troupe are reminded to be in costume and ready to perform by 5:20.

Strip Bingo will get underway in the community room at 9 p.m. (All players must be at least 81 years of age.)

For night owls, Midnight Disco will kick off at 11 p.m. in the community room, featuring the home's own musical combo, Charlie and the Catheters. (Anyone under 70 must be accompanied by an adult.)

OBITUARIES

BERTHA BIGBELOW

Bertha Bigbelow, who was 99 years, 11 months, and 28 days old, traveled to the Pearly Gates late last night after demolishing one final box of Nip Cheese crackers and a six pack of Pabst Blue Ribbon beer.

She was born in a van down by the river.

Her friends and family will also remember her "cheesy" smile as she drifted off to "the other side." Miss Bee, as she liked to be called, was also fond of taking cold showers and talking to her plants.

Her hobbies included creating dinnerware out of balls of wax, crafting famous people out of different types of pasta, and collecting anything that had a flamingo on it.

She is survived by too many people to list. Her siblings and children reproduced faster than rabbits, according to a neighbor.

Friends and family are invited to a BYOB celebration of her life in the parking lot of the Moose Lodge.

In lieu of flowers, her friends request that memorial contributions be made to The Plastic Lawn Flamingo Foundation, c/o P. Gross, 101 Flamingo Lane, Pattiville, Hawaii.

Someone Mighta Gotten Hurt; We're Not Sure

A three-car pile-up was reported this week to the crack news team at the Nacilbuper. But because of the recent crack-down on information being released, details are sketchy.

Here's what we know: A vehicle skidded off the roadway and hit the back of another vehicle, which crossed the center line, hit a black bear, a bobcat, a wolf, and four gray squirrels (must have been a whole family) before coming to a stop on its top on a picnic table in a state park. The third vehicle was dented by the bear, who was really ticked off, apparently. Whew.

However, information about injuries or charges was awful hard to get. We're pretty sure it was Elva Blindbat who started the crack-up (you know her — she lives up there next to the tracks, behind Arnie's barn — you know), and we think one of those kids from uptown was in the middle car. Blabby Townboy told us that he was pretty sure it was Alex Trebek in the third vehicle, but we aren't saying that.

When asked if there were injuries, the policeman paused.

"Well, um . . . yes. Yes, there were. Indeed. Yep, some ouchies for sure," he said. "Can't tell you more than that."

The hospital people weren't much clearer.

"Well, some people came in, yes. And I think a bear and a squirrel or two, and maybe —"

"Shuttup, Elsie! Don't tell them about nuthin! We might get sued," said someone in the background.

So, that's it. There was a wreck. And some people and other species of mammal got hurt. That's all we got.

Uncovered-Dish Dinner Slated By Radical Group

The Nontraditional Evangelical Gnostic Nondenominational Nonchurch will hold its annual uncovered-dish dinner on Thursday, April 1, at 6:15 p.m.

The event started 11 years ago as a protest against the traditional covered-dish dinner that most groups hold. "We wanted to be different, daring, and defiant," said an unofficial nonchurch spokesperson. "We're hoping that the Health Department busts us for food-safety violations."

The public is not welcome to attend, so it doesn't matter where the nonchurch is located. For more information, don't bother calling anyone at any number.

Beauty Salon Naming School Notes Graduates

Three local beauticians graduated recently from the Catchy Phrase Beauty Salon Naming Academy. Two earned recognition for their efforts.

Tracey Clippers took high honors for her Achievement in Naming A Business by calling her salon The Splitting End.

"After months of poring over a thesaurus and surfing the Internet, I finally came upon my best name. It was such a rush, and to win the award was just frosting on the practice head," Tracey said.

Buffi Coznose came in second in the 2004 graduating class with her title, Hair Apparent.

"I don't really know if it makes any sense," Buffi conceded, "but it sounds cool."

Salon names not so warmly received included Get a Trim While I Chew My Gum, Leave Me Bob Your Do, We'll Put Your Hair In a Pun, Perma-Frost, and Dye, You Furrball, Dye!

Correction Noted

A correction is needed concerning last week's "Correction Noted." Please note that the correction was incorrect last week and that the original article was indeed correct after all. The Nacilbuper regrets not making an error.

Candidates Flock To Garrett County In Search Of Votes

Just as the buzzards return to Hinckley, Ohio, each spring, candidates vying for various state and federal offices have been flocking to Garrett County in recent months in hopes of securing western Maryland votes. But first the candidates face the formidable task of locating the county.

"I'm running to represent Maryland, not West Virginia!" said candidate W.E. Dolittle when asked if he plans to make a campaign stop in Garrett County. His opponent N.O. Clue said, "I'm running for an office in Maryland, not Pennsylvania!"

The Nacilbuper, however, did locate one informed politician. "Of course I know where Garrett County is!" boasted Bigwig Hornblower Sr. "That's the place that wants to kill all the bears!"

His wife Buffy, apparently, is also well aware of this area. She is the founder of "Help Those Poor Hicks," a relief agency aimed at helping Garrett County residents.

Mrs. Hornblower said her group shipped more than 30,000 pairs of shoes to the county last year, a pair for each resident. The group's next project will be installing indoor plumbing. "Everyone in Garrett County has to use an outhouse," she said. "Oh, those poor people!"

Mr. Hornblower said he and Buffy would visit the county just as soon as they could hire a Sherpa guide and purchase the necessary expedition gear. They said if they do survive the trek to Garrett County, local officals plan to take them on a snipe hunting trip.

"We're really looking forward to the hunt," said the Hornblowers. The county officials said they were too.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I'm tired of having my press releases edited by you people. I send in perfectly written, flawless items about how our business is booming, how good we are, how everyone should do business with us, how all other such industries are oh-so-lame, how we should be wearing halos because of how much money we bring in to our company each week, and so on.

But no. You edit my stuff down to nothing, or you don't print it at all. Who do you think you are? A private company or something? Making your own decisions about what you print or something? Wow, you sure are presumptuous, aren't you?

If you don't start printing my stuff, I'm telling.

Haughtily,
Puffy Jawbs

To the Editor:

Why, I oughta . . .

To the Editor:

I want you to write to the people who make cereal boxes and make them do something about how hard it is to open that clear plastic inside the boxes that holds the cereal. I just got finished sweeping up three different boxes of spilled cereal off my kitchen floor after trying to open those rotten bags.

Please don't tell me to use scissors the next time, because I can't find mine. There were right there in a jar with some pencils beside the lamp on top of my desk against the wall in my den on the second floor, but I went to get them and they weren't there anymore. (When you say scissors, do you say them or it?)

And please don't tell me to try using my teeth because I only have one on the top and one on the bottom, and they don't even match up.

I tried using my chain saw, but it made an even bigger mess.

So, please do something about this. If you don't, I'm not going to buy your paper anymore. I might even sue you.

To the Editor:

I would like to register a complaint about the obituary published last week for Etta Entireham. While it contained much accurate and praise-worthy information about the woman, there was one major flaw that I must point out.

As far as I can tell, I'm still breathing.

Etta Entireham
Alive and, Okay, Not So Well, But Still Kickin'

To the Editor:

Look, I don't know who thinks this is funny, but it's snowing again today and I've had it up to my ears with that. I sat quietly by while the winter wore on and on, ice and snow, drifts and slush, and I didn't complain. But spring started last week, I'm told, and more snow is simply not right.

So please, Mr. Editor, get on the stick. We need an end to this misery and only you can bring that about.

Melly Shivers

To the Editor:

You are such a jerk. Why don't you do what you always say you're going to do — just sell the Nacilbuper and open a hot dog stand? You'd sure be better at that than editing, you reeking, claw-footed slug. Then all you'd have to do is order hotdogs, ketchup, and mustard. No more telling us your stupid opinion about anything. Gad, you make me want to chuck up my lunch, you miserable, mewling, festering ratboy.

When can I send my recipes for the Christmas tab, though? I love that.

Affectionately,
Peevie Cross

BEAR PROBLEM SOLVED! After years of haggling over what to do about the increasing black bear population in the county, a permanent solution has been found by biology students at a local elementary school. Principal Dana Banana announced this week that her youngsters have developed a miniature black bear. A cub is pictured above as it balances on Banana's palm. And not to worry! The cub will only grow to be the size of a fat ferret, so all fears will be allayed concerning bear trespassing, garbage defiling, growling, and just general bigness. And golly, isn't he cute? Well done, kids!

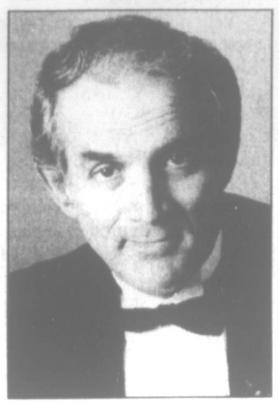
Erick Friedman, Famed Violinist, Co-Founder Of GLAF, Dies Of Cancer



Erick Friedman, hailed by international critics as one of the world's finest violinists, died Tuesday morning of lung cancer. The musician was 64.

Friedman was locally known as one of the founders of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival. He is also the founder of the Symphony at Deep Creek, and was the conductor of the orchestra from its launch in 1987 through the summer of 1999. Friedman & Friends, a chamber group he organized, produced programs in Garrett County in 2000 and 2001.

Friedman and Kathryn Sincell-Corwell, another founder of GLAF, initiated the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival's Classical Music Series in August of '87. For several years, the series involved solo and chamber presentations over one weekend, followed by orchestra productions the next weekend.

The series attracted musicians from New York City, Pennsylvania, Baltimore, and Washington, who spent up to two weeks in Garrett County, staying with families and experiencing life in a rural area. The festival quickly became a favorite event for most visiting musicians, who applied to return year after year.

Friedman and Sincell-Corwell planned the programs, operated rehearsals in New York before coming to the county for the series, ran the series for 12 years, and produced the Friedman & Friends concerts for two more years until Erick became ill in 2002.

Numerous local families took the musicians into their homes for the duration of the music festivals, and lifelong friendships were established. Volunteers cooked meals for the musicians as well.

In addition to conducting the orchestra, Friedman gave master classes and private lessons during his stays in Garrett County.

A child prodigy, Friedman studied with Ivan Galamian at Juilliard and made his New York debut age 14. At 17, he began studying with Jascha Heifetz, with whom he recorded Bach's Concerto for Two Violins. He won the 1996 Grammy Award for Best Historical Album for his participation in The Heifetz Collection.

"Erick's playing was characterized by the most elegant phrasing, borne on a sound of rare beauty and purity, coupled with extraordinary technique," said violinist Jesse Levine, a friend and Yale colleague. (Levine was also a featured violist with the Symphony at Deep Creek.)

In his long career as guest soloist, Friedman appeared with most of the world's great orchestras: the New York Philharmonic and the National Symphony; the orchestras of New Orleans, Pittsburgh, Miami, Detroit, and Indianapolis; the Berlin Philharmonic; Orchestre de Paris; and many other major orchestras throughout the world. Karajan, Stokowski, Steinberg, Leinsdorf, Previn, and Ozawa are some of the renowned conductors with whom he collaborated.

Friedman's recordings with Andre Previn of the Bach Sonatas for Violin and Clavecin and the Franck and Debussy sonatas won Grammy Award nominations.

In November 2000, he received the Ignace J. Paderewski Award for Distinguished Contributions to Society and Culture.

The violinist was featured playing the Bartok Violin Concerto in an A&E Television production on Béla Bartók, which was released worldwide. Friedman has an extensive discography, including many solo and concerto recordings on the RCA label. His first recordings of these works were with Seiji Ozawa and the London Symphony in the 1960s. Other RCA recordings include the Boston Symphony, Chicago Symphony, and London Symphony.

His most recent releases included a CD of some of the major violin works of Ezra Laderman, and a new recording of the Mendelssohn and Tchaikovsky concertos with Laurent Petitgirard and the Orchestre Philharmonique de Monte Carlo. In a review of this CD, the London Daily Mail wrote: "[Friedman was] a pupil of Heifetz, but for many years he has been acknowledged as a master in his own right." Friedman first recorded these works with Seiji Ozawa and the London Symphony in the 1960s.

Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco, Isadore Freed, Ezra Laderman, and Laurent Petitgirard are some of the internationally celebrated composers who have written and/or dedicated compositions to him.

At the time of his death, Friedman was a full professor of music at Yale University.

"The artistry of our esteemed colleague enriched all of music and touches countless thousands of people across the globe," said Robert Blocker, dean of the Yale School of Music.

Friedman began teaching violin at Yale in 1989, and continued in that role until last week.

He previously held teaching positions at Southern Methodist University, the North Carolina School of the Arts, and the Manhattan School of Music.

He performed, conducted, served on competi-

OTT Announces Auditions For Play Titled Proof

Our Town Theatre will hold auditions for the play Proof on Sunday, April 4, from 2 until 5 p.m., and on Monday, April 5, 7-9 p.m.

"Four adult actors are needed for this very powerful production," said Jane Avery, director.

One of the male roles is for a senior citizen; the other roles are one male age 30s to 50s and two females age 30s to 50s.

"Proof is about a troubled woman named Katherine who has spent years of caring for her brilliant but unstable father, a famous mathematician. Now, following his death, she must deal with her own volatile emotions, the arrival of her estranged sister Claire, and the attentions of Hal, a former student and colleague of her father's who hopes to find valuable work in the 103 notebooks that her father left behind," Avery explained. "Over the long weekend that follows, a burgeoning romance and the discovery of a mysterious notebook draw Katherine into the most difficult problem of all: How much of her father's madness – or genius – will she inherit?"

Proof is tentatively scheduled for production during the third week of May. Avery cautioned that the play contains "scurrilous" language and is "not for the faint of heart or for children under 18 years of age."

Questions may be directed to the theatre at 301-334-5640.

OTT To Host Theatre Classes For Seniors

Everyone is welcome, Avery said. For additional information, persons may call 301-334-5640.

Shakespearean Tragedy Othello Slated At FSU

Frostburg State University's Cultural Events Series will present the Aquila Theatre Company's production of Othello at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 14, in the FSU Performing Arts Center Drama Theatre. This Shakespearean classic is presented in partnership with FSU Department of English.

The play explores the destruction of a noble spirit, according to an FSU spokesperson. Othello, a Moor and mercenary soldier for the Venetian army, secretly marries Desdemona, the daughter of a powerful senator. Iago, Othello's ensign, plots revenge after he is passed over for promotion. Envious of Othello's conquests, he begins his revenge, cunningly using his position as confidant to plant seeds of jealously and doubt in Othello's mind about his wife's fidelity. "The audience becomes a part of the drama as Iago confesses his villainous plan to make 'the net that shall enmesh them all' (Othello, Act ii, Scene 3)," the spokesperson said.

The New Yorker has described Aquila's productions as "beautifully spoken, dramatically revealing and crystalline in effect." Founded in 1991 by producing artistic director Peter Meineck, the Aquila Theatre Company has also won both critical and academic kudos for its work worldwide, and is the Company in Residence at the Center for Ancient Studies at New York University.

This presentation is part of "Shakespeare in American Communities," a national theater touring initiative sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts and the Sallie Mae Fund, in cooperation with Arts Midwest.

For further information, or to purchase tickets, persons may contact the FSU Cultural Events Box Office at 301-687-3137, or toll free at 1-866-TIXX-CES, or consult the Web site ces.frostburg.edu.

Rams Open With No-Hitters Over Hampshire And Allegany

What better way to open a new baseball season with not one, but two no-hitters?

That's precisely what the Southern High School varsity did this past week, as the Rams whipped host Hampshire on Saturday, 8-3, and blanked home-standing Allegany in a Western Maryland Interscholastic League contest on Monday, 13-0, with pre-season All-State selection Chris Smith on the mound.

Scott Wildesen pitched into the sixth inning against Hampshire, and Smith took over to complete the victory.

The defending area champion Rams were led in hitting against the Trojans by Billy Reams, who smacked three singles and had three RBIs. Tyler Graham finished with two singles and an RBI, while Brad Reese plated runs with a single and a sacrifice fly.

Wildesen struck out nine and issued four walks. A total of six walks were allowed in the sixth, which gave the Trojans their three runs.

It was originally reported that Wildesen had allowed one single to J.D. Largent in the third inning, but it was officially ruled an error that put Largent on first base.

Taking the loss on the mound was Trojan starter Anthony Lewis, who gave up four runs in the second inning and two in the third.

The loss was the second in four starts for Hampshire.

The Ram junior varsity also played and came away with a 13-5 win over the Hampshire jayvees. Winning pitcher Bret DeWitt drove in three runs with a pair of doubles, and teammate Tim Reams stroked a double and a single. Tyler Lambert rapped two doubles for Hampshire.

Not only did Chris Smith fire a no-hitter on Monday against Allegany, he also led the Rams' 11-hit attack by hitting a home run and two singles.

Smith struck out nine batters, walked one, and hit one, and the game was called after five innings because of the five-run rule.

Cory Bosley went 3-for-3 at the plate for the Rams, and Billy Reams and Curt Taylor each hit a home run.

Taking the loss for the Campers (0-4) was starter Shane McDade.

The Rams were slated to play at Preston yesterday, but that contest was postponed because of rain. They are slated to play at Keyser this Friday, travel to Fort Hill next Tuesday, and play at Westmar next Wednesday.

CRAFTY POHOLSKY CRAFTS A GEM — With his trademark control in full evidence on opening day, Northern High senior Torrey Poholsky, above, kicked off the Huskies' baseball campaign in style Friday with a no-hit masterpiece over host Allegany. The lefty's curveball was dropping right into place time and time again, as he struck out 13 Campers while giving up just one walk to hurl NHS to an 8-0 victory. ## NHS's Poholsky Blanks Alco; Huskies Take Three Of Four

Some stellar pitching by Northern southpaw Torrey Poholsky got the season off on the right foot for the NHS varsity baseball team this week as the senior tossed a no-hit gem against Allegany in Friday's season opener. The Huskies took that debut contest 8-0, then went on to open Saturday's doubleheader against Mapletown with a 5-4 win on junior Darrick Lowdermilk's clutch two-run single in the bottom of the seventh inning, but then dropped the second game in a 10-1 loss. Northern roared back Monday to wallop Westmar 10-2 to finish the opening week with a 3-1 record.

Poholsky was superb against Allegany, whiffing 13 batters while issuing just one walk over his complete game masterpiece. A pair of NHS fielding errors allowed two additional runners to reach base, but that's likely attributable to the Huskies' rusty gloves. Northern has been seriously hampered by wet weather that has prevented the squad from getting much-needed fielding practice.

Northern scored one run in each of the second through fifth innings, then capped the game with a four-run flurry in the top of the seventh.

Lowdermilk had a field day at the plate, ripping a pair of doubles and a single in four at-bats. The third baseman drove home two runs and scored twice. Outfielder Matt Bass stroked an RBI double and a single. Northern rapped out 10 hits overall off a quartet of Alco pitchers. Justin Llewlyn was tagged with the loss.

Senior catcher Chad Carr helped Poholsky blank the Campers by calling the pitches for the first six innings. Junior Michael Wolf came in for the final stanza at the backstop position.

The Huskies' home opening twinbill against Mapletown started off with a pitchers' duel that ended in Lowdermilk's game-winning hit.

NHS's Preston Sisler, who worked the first five innings, and reliever Lowdermilk combined to hold the guests to just four hits, while the Maples' Jay Corso held the Huskies to five hits.

The contest was a scoreless deadlock until the top of the fifth, when the Maples scored one run. In the Northern half of the inning, Eric Johnson singled, and eventually made his way around the horn on two passed balls. Jason Thomas then lofted a sacrifice fly to push Johnson home and knot the score at 1-all. Sisler singled and Poholsky walked, and the pair advanced on the stanza's third passed ball by the struggling Mapletown catcher. Sisler scored on a failed pick-off attempt.

The Maples vaulted back on top with three runs in the following inning that made the score 4-2. A Husky RBI single by Carr drove Lowdermilk home in the bottom of the sixth to cut the deficit to one run.

In the Northern seventh, Sisler singled and advanced to second on Poholsky's sacrifice. Sisler advanced to third on a passed ball, and after Derek Workman drew a walk, the Huskies had runners on the corners. With one out, Workman stole second to place himself in scoring position and set the stage for Lowdermilk's game-winning two-run single.

Lowdermilk, who came to the mound in the sixth, got credit for the win, while Mapletown's Corso drew the loss in his complete-game effort.

In the second game, the Maples got all the runs they needed in the top of the first inning when they scored three times. After NHS answered in the bottom of the first inning with its only run of the contest, the guests went on to score twice in the second and four times in third, then added their tenth and final run in the fifth.

Mapletown's winning pitcher Ray Dillinger held the Huskies to three singles as Workman, Poholsky, and Bass rapped out one apiece. Dillinger helped his own cause with a two-run single.

NHS rebounded to capitalize on eight Westmar errors Monday in grabbing a come-from-behind win in Lonaconing. Senior Jason

Lakers Sweep Anne Arundel, Improve Overall Record To 7-3

A Maryland JUCO doubleheader sweep of host Anne Arundel Community College on Sunday upped the overall record of the Garrett College baseball team to 7-3, and the Lakers' conference mark to 5-2.

In fact, the Lakers have now won seven straight after losing their first three games.

The Lakers, under new coach Lee Bradley, topped the Anne Arundel 10-8 in the first game, and won the nightcap by a 13-11 margin. In the process they recorded two dozen hits, 12 in each game.

Getting 25% of those hits was sophomore outfielder Giancarlo Silvestri, who smacked three singles in each game to finish the day with a 6-for-8 mark at the plate.

Laker Jason Savage hit a home run and a single for four RBI in the first game, Taylor Billingsley recorded two hits and two RBI, and Jarod Bennis had two hits.

Earning the win on the mound was David Rosario, who pitched into the sixth inning before being relieved by Travis Cooke.

Wissman led Anne Arundel with two doubles and three RBIs, while McCormick hit a homer.

Besides Silvestri's three singles in the second game, Danyel Arenas stroked a homer and a single for the Lakers, Billingsley went 3-for-5 with a triple and two singles, and Aaron Lowden added a triple.

The Lakers had a 9-1 lead after just 1½ innings of play, and then held on for the victory.

Bennett had a three-run homer to highlight Anne Arundel's seven-hit effort.

The Lakers were slated to play host Baltimore Tuesday, but that game was postponed because of weather conditions. They are scheduled to play a single game at CCBC Catonsville this Friday, a doubleheader at CCBC Dundalk on Saturday, a single game at home against Allegany College of Maryland next Tuesday, and a single game at Potomac State College next Wednesday.

SEASON OUTLOOK

The 21-man Laker roster includes 13 freshmen and only four returning starters from last season's squad. But Coach Lee Bradley is anticipating a "fun and exciting" year.

Anchoring the pitching staff is former Southern High standout Tobi Stoner, with David Rosario, a hard-throwing right hander, Dylan Lindsey, Travis Cooke, and lefty Jeff McVicker rounding out the rotation. Relievers are sophomore Nico Morris and freshmen Dan Vagnetti, Cliff Everett, and Ricky Vickers. Vagnetti and Everett are Northern High grads, as are sophomore infielder Greg Whittemore and sophomore catcher Bryan Lenhart.

Manning the corners are Whittemore, Alfonsos Fortunato, and Danny Arenas. Jason Savage will anchor shortstop, and Stoner will be at second when not pitching. Brandon Benson will back up Stoner at second.

Catchers include Aaron Lowden, Morris, and Lenhart.

"I'm a little surprised that our pitching has not been as strong as I expected, but thank goodness we have been putting the ball in play and scoring some runs," Bradley said, adding that he believes the Lakers will be competitive every time they step on the field.

"Our winter workouts and indoor program were tremendous this past winter," he said. "We've been outside only seven days, and six of those days were when we played. So we are extremely excited about our progress and our success so far, considering the kind of weather we have had to date."

Bradley is being assisted by Seth Hansen.

Garrett's next home encounter will be a big challenge from Allegany College, slated for next Tuesday at 3 p.m.

Huskies Take

Rice earned the win by working the first six innings on the mound, recording nine strikeouts along the way with his overpowering speed. Poholsky got the save by capping the game with one inning of relief duty. The Wildcats' Andy Morgan, who relieved starter Trent Morris in the fifth, was handed the loss.

Northern scored first with one unearned run in the fourth inning, then went up 6-0 by adding five runs in the sixth. That flurry got under way when a Wildcat outfielder muffed a fly ball, then Morgan issued intentional walks to Poholsky and Lowdermilk to load the bases. Johnson then took advantage of the situation by stroking a two-run double, although he was tossed out at third trying to grab an extra base on the play. Workman doubled home Lowdermilk, and Carr followed by doubling home Workman. A Bass RBI single capped the stanza with its fifth run.

Westmar scored twice in the bottom of the sixth, but Northern finished the 'Cats off with four runs in the top of the seventh.

Overall, Carr had two NHS doubles and Workman had one double, while Johnson doubled and singled, and Bass singled twice. Dan Duncan doubled and singled for Westmar.

A scheduled road game at Fort Hill was rained out yesterday.

The Husky varsity will visit Beall tomorrow for a 4 p.m. match-up, and Bishop Walsh Tuesday for a 4:30 p.m. outing. NHS will end the week with a home contest set for 4:30 p.m. Wednesday in a rematch with Beall.

Rams Stung By Sentinels; Flanagan Blasts Hampshire

It's been a season of extremes so far for the Southern High School girls' varsity softball team, to say the least. After opening their campaign last week with a 25-0 romp over Keyser, the Rams were demolished in a 10-0 loss at Fort Hill on Thursday, March 25. Southern did yet another 180-degree turn on Monday in an 11-0 triumph over host Hampshire as senior Becca Flanagan hammered out two home runs and junior Julia Bosley twirled a four-hitter to give the Rams a 2-1 season mark.

Fort Hill ace Cari Reed just missed a no-hitter last Thursday as she held Southern hitless until the final inning when Stephanie Brenneman doubled to right field with two outs. Reed struck out 12 without walking a single batter, and the Sentinel defense committed one error.

Fort Hill scored four runs in the third and six in the fourth before the 10-run mercy rule was invoked after the Rams' top of the fifth. Ashley Metcalfe started the game on the mound for SHS, and Bosley was summoned for relief work in the fourth. The Sentinels recorded seven hits overall.

Bosley drew the start Monday at Hampshire and responded with a stellar four-hit shutout, striking out eight batters in five innings while issuing just one walk. She got all the offense she need when the Rams scored five times in the first inning. Southern went on to score one run in each of the next three stanzas before closing out with a three-run fifth. The game was halted after the Trojans' half of the fifth inning.

Southern's 11-hit tally was paced by Flanagan, who went 3-for-3 at the plate with two homers. The shortshop had a field day in driving home five runs and scoring four times.

NHS Jayvees Debut With Win Over FH

The Northern High School junior varsity baseball team took a 6-5 victory in its season opener last Thursday, March 25, at Fort Hill. The Huskies, who carried a 6-2 lead into final inning, staved off a three-run Sentinel rally to hold on for the win.

NHS's Corey Carr showed his power by blasting a home run and a triple to drive home four runs, and Brock Glotfelty swatted a homer and a single to send two runs home. Teammate Greg Beachy ripped a double.

Fort Hill's Jordan Wills homered and singled to account for three runs.

NHS's jayvees are slated to visit Beall tomorrow in a 4 p.m. contest. The Huskies open at home Monday in a 4:30 p.m. rematch with the Sentinels.

Risks of Antidepressants in Children Evaluated

The parents of many children and teenagers with depression should consider the treatments prescribed for their children. So far only one antidepressant drug has been government approved for depressed children, and that drug is fluoxetine. Other antidepressants like sertraline, venlafaxine, and paroxetine have been used extensively in adults and, in some instances children. Some medicines are broken down differently in children, and officials are concerned that not enough studies have been conducted regarding their use in pediatrics. An expert panel recently commissioned to look into the safety of antidepressants in children concluded after reviewing trials involving over 2000 patients that no significant increases in suicide attempts or suicidal thinking were related to the use of these drugs. It has been theorized that the suicides that did occur may be due to the drugs not working at all in certain teens.

Clinical depression occurs in about 10% of youth, and in some situations it can lead to suicide. Specialists say that there are 10 to 20 suicidal attempts for every completed suicide. However, whether this suicide rate is helped or hindered by antidepressant medicines has been a source of continued controversy.

HUSKIES DEFEAT HOST ALCO — The Northern High School boys' varsity tennis squad evened its record at 1-1 with a 5-2 win over Allegany Monday in Cumberland. NHS senior Garrett Devore, left, who is playing high school tennis for the first time this year, took a thrilling 9-7 singles win over his Camper counterpart, while top seed Husky Zach Bruch, right, netted an 8-4 singles triumph. Bruch also teamed up with Robbie Glotfelty to pace Northern to an easy 8-1 win in top-flight doubles play. Scoring from the NHS girls' win over Allegany was not reported by the Husky girls' tennis program.

Northern Boys' Netters Regroup To Down Alco; Girls Triumph Also

The Northern High School boys' tennis team rebounded from a season opener loss last week to defeat host Allegany 5-2 Monday at Cumberland's Constitution Park. The win evens the Husky boys' record at 1-1.

The NHS girls' squad, which is going after its second straight Bi-County crown, downed Alco the same day. Details of that girls' match were not made available.

Playing without two of its top five seeded team members, the NHS boys took three of five singles matches and both doubles outings. Northern's top seed, Zach Bruch, netted an 8-4 win over Alco's Mike Lewis, while fellow Huskies Brent Housley and Garrett Devore were also victorious in singles play. The Campers' singles winners were Mike Rollins and Samin Jafri.

In doubles competition, NHS's Bruch/Robbie Glotfelty duo romped to an 8-1 triumph over Rollins/Dustin Keller, and Northern's second seeded duo of Mike Moyer/Abe Folmsbee downed its Allegany counterpart.

The Huskies have a break until Tuesday, when they host Allegany in a 4 p.m. match at Northern. The following day NHS travels to Beall for a 4 p.m. match-up.

NHS BOYS' OUTLOOK

"We continue to be in a rebuilding process after not having a team two years ago," stated head coach George Lander, whose assistant coach is Rick Kenney. "We're fortunate to have lost only one senior, Matt Younkin, to graduation last year, but we still have a fairly young team.

"Just like last year, and the weather earlier this spring was not cooperative. Many of our players have not had any competitive tennis experience prior to this year. Our first match was at Fort Hill (where it was below 30 degrees) after only three practices. We were fortunate to use the Rawlings Athletic Complex to practice on two occasions.

"With good weather this past week, we feel more confident going into our upcoming matches," Lander continued. "We had an opportunity for all team members to play at Fort Hill, as we were able to get in exhibition matches. Hopefully, we will continue to improve all season and be ready to challenge other area teams at the Bi-County Tournament in May."

NHS GIRLS' OUTLOOK

The NHS girls' squad, coached by Linda Wengerd, is coming off a superb 10-0 season last year that netted the Huskies the 2003 Bi-County title.

Despite the loss of top seed Heather Lander and third seed Andrea Green to graduation last spring, the nucleus of another top performing team is still in place, according to Wengerd. Senior Miriah Fletcher moves up to the top seeded spot to anchor the program, while junior Amy Brenneman assumes the second seed position. Rounding out the Huskies' top seven, in seeding order, are junior Lakin Weimer, senior Heidi McMillan, junior Erica Maust, and sophomores Jessica Fratz and Keri Bachtel.

Like the boys' team, the NHS girls have been hampered by restricted outside practice time so far this spring. Another item the Huskies are working to address is the promotion of two of last year's doubles players to seeded singles competition, where they join three returning seeded players for their first consistent solo play.

"We're going to give every member of the team some playing time so everyone can work at improving their skills," commented Wengerd, who listed Fort Hill and Preston as Northern's likely toughest opponents. "Our goal is to repeat as Bi-County champs, and send our players on to the Region Tournament next month."

Just what is Occupational Therapy?
Occupational therapy is a rehabilitation profession that helps people regain, develop, and build skills that are important for independent living, health, well-being and happiness. This profession is based on individuals performing meaningful "occupations" related to self-care, work, school and playtime. Occupational therapists work with people of all ages who need specialized assistance in learning skills to enable them to lead independent, productive and satisfying lives. People that can benefit from occupational therapy (OT) would include, but are not limited to those who have an illness, had an injury, or have a specific developmental or psychological impairment. Occupational therapists also work with people with disabilities. They help to prevent injury or worsening of the existing conditions, and work with the individuals' abilities. Occupational therapists go beyond and look at the individual with their abilities, the psychological elements, the task to be performed, and the environment for which the task will be performed. OT promotes independent functioning in individuals that may otherwise require institutionalization or other long-term care. Occupational therapists work in a variety of settings such as hospitals, nursing homes, long-term care facilities, rehabilitation hospitals, community-based facilities, early intervention, school systems, home health, and private practice.

Agency.

The report was partly based on undisclosed EPA data that the U.S. PIRG obtained through a Freedom of Information Act request.

"This is the point: These reports were obtained from EPA's records. The EPA has known about what has been going on but has not been doing anything about it," said Ellen Silbergeld, a professor at the Johns Hopkins School of Public Health.

But an EPA spokeswoman said that "the PIRG report makes no distinctions between significant violations and insignificant violations."

Cathy Milbourn, the spokeswoman, said the agency has not fully reviewed the report, which was released Tuesday. But she said that EPA actions against clean-water violators have increased in the last year and that the agency plans to compile a "watch list" in the next year to monitor repeat offenders of the Clean Water Act.

MaryPIRG named three companies that had the worst violations of federal water regulations between January 2002 and June 2003: the Naval Surface Warfare Center in Charles County, which exceeded its permit by 6,317 percent on one occasion; the Havre de Grace wastewater treatment plant, which went 3,500 percent over its limit; and Mettiki Coal in Garrett County, which exceeded federal permit limits for fecal coliform levels by 300 percent in July 2002.

But Mettiki spokesman David Thomas said the report gave a slanted view of the corporation's one-time violation. Thomas attributed the coal company's violation to an unusual malfunction in the ultraviolet-light system that detects fecal discharge. He said most of the polluted water was caught in control basins before it got near the Youghiogheny River.

"There was no adverse effect on human health," Thomas said, adding that companies must report even minor violations to the EPA – which Mettiki did in this case. Thomas said the infraction was minor enough that the EPA did not fine the company.

To Brad Heavner of MaryPIRG, that lack of punishment is the problem. "There are some places in the report where there are one-time spikes [of water pollution] ... and sometimes that does get dealt with," Heavner said. "But there are other cases where there are other violations that don't get dealt with strictly enough."

But Thomas said that while the public has a right to know about incidents like the discharge at Mettiki, it should know the whole story instead of obscure statistics that are not placed in context – which he said the MaryPIRG report does.

"It's one thing to raise your effluent levels and it's another thing to pose a threat to human health," he said.

Compared to the rest of the nation, Maryland did not do too badly. The U.S.PIRG report said that 60 percent of U.S. facilities violated clean-water standards in the 18-month period, and those facilities exceeded their limits by an average of more than 600 percent.

for failure to control speed to avoid a collision following a two-vehicle accident Monday afternoon at Rt. 135 and Youghiogheny Drive.

According to police, Connie Green, 33, Oakland, was stopped in the eastbound lane on Maryland Highway attempting to make a left turn when she was struck from behind by a vehicle driven by Cheryl DeBerry.

DeBerry was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by Southern Rescue Squad.

Oakland firefighters assisted at the scene. DeBerry was cited for failure to control speed to avoid a collision.

In a separate incident, Edith Evelyn Wildesen was traveling south on King Wildesen Road when she lost control of her vehicle and ran off the road into a ditch, hitting a large rock and tree, police said.

Southern Rescue Squad transported Wildesen to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and admitted for her injuries, police said.

No charges are pending.

The entire 26-page document is part of the ongoing DCL Watershed Economic Growth and Planning Analysis Study. The ERM study is projected to conclude by the end of the year with a full report that will provide alternatives and recommendations for the county commissioners to consider as they plan for the lake area's future.

The ERM report is composed of five sections: a draft issues summary of topics identified during the consultants' March 1 and 2 meetings with the DCL study citizens' task force, the county commissioners, county staff, lake area business interests, and the general public; a list of potential lakes and resorts around the country that face issues similar to those of Deep Creek Lake that ERM will study; an August 2003 Urban Land Institute article titled "Resort Survival"; a revised schedule of study tasks; and an agenda for the upcoming DCL study task force meeting, slated for 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 13, at Perkins Restaurant in McHenry.

21 GRAMS

Rated R - Running Time: 2:05 - Released 12/26/03

Mexican director Alejandro Gonzáles Iñárritu is probably not very well known in the U.S. yet, although he received numerous awards and nominations around the rest of the world for his 2000 debut thriller, Amores Perros. He should have little difficulty getting work now, however, after releasing the gritty drama 21 Grams starring Sean Penn, Naomi Watts, and Benicio Del Toro. Filmed entirely with handheld cameras and apparently undoctored with regard to grain and color saturation, the film is as viscerally real as they come, and features fine performances by all involved (Watts and Del Toro both received Oscar nominations for their work). Telling the story of three people who are brought together by a tragic accident and are each forced to deal in their own ways with its repercussions, it is a powerful and moving drama whose story (written by Guillermo Arriaga) is not as neatly resolved as some may prefer, but certainly pulls no punches with regard to the realities of life—and of death.

The first half hour of this movie skips around the timeline with such a dizzying pace, it seems to have been edited using a random number generator. This "nonlinear timeline" technique, used notably in such films as Memento, Once Upon A Time In America, and Mulholland Drive (in which Watts had the starring role) forces the audience to pay close attention to things that don't make a bit of sense until you see what happened before them—an hour later. Some moviegoers will dislike this style; it happens to be one of my favorite conventions, but it does make it difficult to establish a bond with characters who are seen early on dealing with extremely tense situations, the details of which are yet to be known. As we eventually learn, Paul Rivers (Penn) is a heart patient waiting for a transplant while his estranged wife (Charlotte Gainsbourg) tries to convince him to have a baby with her before he dies. Jack Jordan (Del Toro) is an ex-con and recovering alcoholic who has found Jesus and is trying to walk the right path for his wife (Melissa Leo) and children. And Cristina Peck (Watts) is a wife and mother with a drug problem whose life was just getting back on track when her husband Michael (Danny Huston) and two daughters were killed by a hit-and-run driver.

At this point I must warn readers that it is impossible to further summarize without revealing details which are not apparent at the beginning of the film. If you are afraid that this might spoil the movie for you, I recommend that you simply skip the next paragraph until you've seen it.

Although the hospital authorities deny Paul's request to know whose heart he has been given, he hires a private investigator who discovers not only that it was Michael, but also the tragic details of his passing. Unable to reconcile his guilt at profiting from someone else's downfall, he seeks Cristina out and establishes a bond with her just when she was about to despair and dive back into her old ways. He also investigates the identity of Jack Jordan, the man who killed Cristina's family, who is suffering his own sense of guilt about the incident, not to mention rage that God would let this happen. Eventually all three parties occupy the screen at once and we come to understand not only the full depth and breadth of their relationships, but the separate ways in which each of them handles the situation.

I suppose one way of ensuring a first-class production is to assemble an absolutely top-notch cast, and director Iñárritu has certainly done that. Penn, Watts, and Del Toro have each proven themselves over and over again, and their work here is as good as anything they've done before. Penn's role, unlike his Oscar-winning part in Mystic River, is more of a character one can get behind; Paul is not perfect, but he's a man who cares about people and tries to do right by those who have helped him. Watts is fantastic as Cristine—she is constantly on the ragged edge of sanity after losing the three people most important to her, the people who had been her salvation from her former life. And Del Toro is no less stirring in his portrayal of a man struggling with control issues, who tries against his every impulse to do the right thing, and is still betrayed by the God in whom he has put his faith.

21 Grams is about how life doesn't always work out like it does in the movies. It's about how bad things sometimes happen to good people, without any explanation or reason. And although it's not a particularly uplifting film, it is intelligent, well-written, and told with a unique style, and it features some of the best acting presently available. ★★★★½

Ehrlich, House Hit Impasse On Taxes, Slot Machines

by Stephanie Tracy
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – With 12 days left in this year's session, House Speaker Michael E. Busch, D-Anne Arundel, Wednesday demanded Republican Gov. Robert Ehrlich forge a compromise between slot machines and taxes to fill the state's $800 million budget hole. The governor quickly responded with his own news conference and said House members should be talking to Democrats in the Senate, not him.

"Last time I checked, House Democrats are going to have a very difficult time with the Democrats in the Senate," Ehrlich said. "I don't believe a lot of senators are anxious to vote on a tax package."

Last week, the House narrowly passed Busch's $1 billion tax package by a 10-vote margin. But Ehrlich and Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert, have both staunchly opposed any increases in the sales or income tax.

During his afternoon press conference, Busch waved a copy of the state's budget with a hole carved in it.

"There's a hole in the budget that no one wants to address," he said.

Charts displayed around the room showed an $839 million budget gap in fiscal year 2006 even with slots revenues.

Flanked by House leaders, Busch railed against Ehrlich's threats to fund education by cutting health care and social services in next year's budget if slots fail again. The governor announced the possibility of more cuts Tuesday during impromptu testimony before the Ways and Means Committee hearing on his slots bill.

Ehrlich defended his slots package Wednesday as the solution to budget problems, and said there was no "hostage crisis." "If they kill slots, they kill slots," Ehrlich said. "This is a spending problem."

The slots bill before Ways and Means calls for 15,500 slot machines at three racetrack locations and three other sites elsewhere in the state. The administration has estimated slots will fund up to 97 percent of the remaining money needed to fund education reforms.

Miller agreed with Ehrlich's assessment of the situation, and placed the blame for the budget gap on Busch.

"There's a hole in the budget because the House didn't pass slots last year," Miller said. "The bill's been sitting over there for a month ... they haven't done diddly. It's time to do what the people want instead of what a few misguided people think."

But Busch and other House Democrats have insisted that taxes are the fiscally responsible solution.

"We have put responsible revenue sources on the table, but [Ehrlich] hasn't entertained it," Busch said.

House Health and Government Operations Chairman John A. Hurson, D-Montgomery, reminded the governor and his fellow lawmakers the state's constitution requires a balanced budget.

"We're looking for a conversation [with the governor]," Hurson said. "The governor needs to sit down with us and tell us what he can sign."

While the 2005 budget is balanced with a series of one-time revenue sources and without slots, most of the debate has centered on funding landmark education reforms in future years. The two major solutions under consideration are tax increases and slots.

After grilling the administration during slots hearings Tuesday, Ways and Means Chairwoman Sheila E. Hixson, D-Montgomery, said she would hold off on any slots decision until the governor makes it clear how slots and taxes could be combined to solve the budget gaps.

"Why should we subject the House to a vote if there's no chance for compromise?" Hixson said. Hixson has insisted slots have no chance of surviving her committee – which killed Ehrlich's first bill last year – without including other revenue.

A statewide poll released Wednesday showed 54 percent of respondents favor legalizing slot machines in Maryland. And while the poll indicated an overwhelming 79 percent of participants would favor a referendum to decide the issue, Ehrlich and some lawmakers have called such an idea a cop-out.

Gonzales Marketing and Research Strategies conducted the phone poll March 19 to 24 among 825 registered voters. It carried a margin of error of 3.5 points, with a 95 percent confidence rating.

In the next 12 days, slots and taxes must run the gauntlet in both chambers of the General Assembly.

And Ehrlich did not express much optimism for the success of the House's tax proposal, saying, "before any elements of a tax package receive consideration [from the governor's office], they need to survive the Senate."

Small Business Loans Could Dry Up Without Senate Action

by Hazel Feigenblatt
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – Some Small Business Administration loan programs could grind to a halt Friday without congressional action, a possibility that Maryland officials said could have serious consequences on small businesses in the state.

The House voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to pump enough funding into the loan programs to keep them going at previous, higher levels, through June. But without Senate action, the cash-strapped programs could run out of money to lend by Friday, or be forced to severely restrict the amount of loans they make. And the Senate does not currently have any action scheduled on the issue, said Craig Orfield, a spokesman for the Senate's Small Business Committee.

That would be a problem, said SBA spokesman Doug Heye.

"We're certainly concerned that if the Senate doesn't act soon, some programs will have expired," Heye said. "We may even lower the cap on the program."

Heye said one of the most important types of loans – 7(a) loans, in which a bank lends money if the SBA provides the guarantee – would likely not be frozen yet. But other options, such as co-sponsorships, small disadvantaged programs, and maturity bonds, will end soon.

Congress has already stepped in once this year, approving $470 million at the beginning of the year to keep the SBA going, after it ended 2003 with a funding shortfall that forced the agency to shut down for a week. When it reopened with the extra money, it was forced to cap the size of the loans it could offer, dropping the maximum from the previous $2 million to $750,000. Because of that, several businesses in Maryland had to reapply or look for loans elsewhere.

"But small businesses are not likely to get other financing, most likely most of them weren't able to secure the loans," said Damon Penn, a counselor in the Maryland Small Business Development Center.

Penn said another shutdown of SBA lending programs would affect the state because most of new jobs here are created by small businesses.

Bill Badger, president and CEO of the Anne Arundel Economic Development Corp., said the SBA funding problem is a concern for lenders as well as the businesses seeking loans. He said his corporation has not been affected because it deals in loans of $300,000 and less for Anne Arundel businesses. But Badger said other lenders have had to readjust the size of their transactions, in contrast to previous years when the transactions were growing.

Even with those restrictions, however, the SBA was still able to give almost 500 loans to entrepreneurs in the state between October and February, said Raul Latoja, a loan processing assistant in the SBA Baltimore office.

Despite what SBA supporters claim, however, Orfield said funding for the SBA has already been approved through the end of the fiscal year on Sept. 30, and it will remain whether the Senate acts or not. The House bill merely authorizes extra funding, he said.

The House bill would allow loan sizes to return to a maximum $2 million, triple the loan guarantee limit a lender can provide from $562,000 to $1.5 million, and let the SBA back $3 billion extra of 7(a) loans, among other changes.

Rep. Nydia Velazquez, D-N.Y., said the objective is to "make the 7(a) loan program whole again" for the small-business owners who have been affected by the restrictions.

Mass Sending Of Unsolicited E-Mail Deemed Crime By House

by Marc Lightdale
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – The Maryland House of Delegates voted unanimously Wednesday to curtail "spam" by criminalizing the sending of mass unsolicited e-mail.

"This legislation is trying to move in the right direction," said Delegate Anthony J. O'Donnell, R-Calvert. "Some of these [spam] messages deal with sexual conduct and they are inappropriate and offensive."

The legislation penalizes senders of spam based on a sliding scale of the number of mailings sent, which would determine whether charges should be misdemeanors or felonies.

The Senate last week passed a version of the spam bill, SB 604, which was considered by the House Judiciary Committee Wednesday. The federal government has cracked down on unsolicited, mass e-mail with the CAN-SPAM Act of 2003. It requires commercial e-mail to be labeled and prohibits using deceptive subject lines. It also authorizes the Federal Trade Committee to establish a "do-not-e-mail" registry.

Delegate Neil Quinter, D-Howard, House bill sponsor, said spam costs businesses approximately $10 billion dollars a year. He said he hopes to duplicate the success of Virginia's spam law, which is similar.

"The problem of spamming is growing exponentially," he said.

The Senate bill sponsor, Rob Garagiola, D-Montgomery, said he expected Wednesday's hearing would lead to a combined bill that both chambers could support.

"We're going to make the bills conform," said Garagiola. The bill has the support of Time Warner/AOL, Earthlink, and Microsoft, according to the legislators.

Quinter has said his bill would provide the Attorney General with more specific tools to prosecute spammers in civil court.

Spam is more than just an annoyance, said Delegate Don Dwyer Jr., R-Anne Arundel. Dwyer, and some other lawmakers, had his computer overtaken by spam to the point where it damaged computer files and sent out pornographic messages with his e-mail address. These kinds of egregious violations he said are calling out for legislation.

"I don't have a problem receiving junk mail," said Dwyer. "But when somebody takes control of my files, that ought to be a criminal act. I know that it has affected many of those who run for elected office."

Assembly Tables Fetal Crime Bill

by Sara K. Clarke
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – A bill to make assault against a pregnant woman a double crime ended its roller-coaster escapade through the Senate in a dead end Wednesday, as lawmakers narrowly decided to indefinitely postpone a vote on the bill.

The Unborn Victims of Violence Act, which would make assault or murder of a pregnant woman a crime against both the woman and the fetus, was approved by the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee, but its success ended there. The bill spent a week on the Senate floor, before an amendment was brought by the bill's sponsor, Sen. Leo E. Green, D-Prince George's.

At that point, the bill had been stripped of any fetus protection, but opponents had agreed to institute harsher penalties for assaults against pregnant women. Green's amendment kept the tougher penalties for women fewer than 20 weeks pregnant, but reinstituted the double crime for later-term pregnancies.

Under that amendment, harming a fetus after 20 weeks would count as two felonies, but have varying consequences up to 10 years in prison if prosecutors couldn't prove intent to cause a miscarriage and up to 25 years in prison if intent could be proven.

The bill's two-tiered system confused many lawmakers, who said assaults during late-term pregnancy would result in more lenient penalties. The amendment's implications befuddled even Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert, who rescheduled the bill so lawmakers could get the story straight. Confusion remained even after a letter from Assistant Attorney General Kathryn M. Rowe.

With only 12 days left in the legislative session, opponents grabbed at the chance to dismiss the bill, saying kinks could be worked out after lawmakers left town.

"While this bill might have merit to some people on this floor, it's not ripe, and it's not ready for prime time," said Sen. Lisa A. Gladden, Baltimore City. "The attorney general's opinion was conflictual and there's work that needs to be done."

A sister bill in the House was knocked down by committee last week, 13-11. The combination of actions virtually eliminates the possibility of the legislation resurfacing this session. The motion to indefinitely postpone was introduced by Sen. Nathaniel J. McFadden, D-Baltimore.

It's a tactic that hasn't been used for years, said Sen. Andrew P. Harris, R-Baltimore County, who criticized lawmakers for not taking time to deliberate the issue.

The bill reopened the issue of Roe vs. Wade with its use of the term "unborn child." Many legislators said it was a step toward chipping away reproductive rights. Others argued that cases such as the slaying of Laci Peterson and her unborn son in California in 2002 prove an unborn victim's statute is necessary.

A federal Unborn Victims of Violence Act, which passed Congress last week, is awaiting a signature from President Bush. It applies to victims of federal crimes and to federal employees assaulted while at work.

"We're creating two classes of people," said Green, arguing that all Maryland's citizens should be protected, not just federal employees.

Md.'s Sex Offender Registry Web Site Now Has More Info

The Sex Offender Registry (SOR) on the web site of the Maryland Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services (DPSCS) now enables searchers to find names and locations of sex offenders, their category of offense, and other useful information within seconds.

The Information Technology and Communications Division of the DPSCS recently upgraded the site, www.dpscs.state.md.us, and introduced a new search page for the registry. Users can click on the "Sex Offender Registry" link in the "Quick Links" box to the left of the home page to go directly to the SOR.

The public can now search through the list of 3,683 registered sex offenders by the following criteria:

- First and/or last name
- ZIP code
- Registrants employed or enrolled at Maryland institutions of higher education
- Registrants that are not Maryland residents, but who have business in the state
- Category of offense

"With these new features on the Sex Offender Registry, parents can get information more quickly, and become better informed about sex offenders in their communities," said Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. "Now you can get information about these types of offenders in a matter of seconds, which makes a big difference in protecting our children."

Before a search engine of this kind was developed, users would have to conduct their own visual search through five different groupings of the SOR. "These new functions cut down the search time significantly, and the online data is now updated daily instead of weekly," said a DPSCS spokesperson.

"Maryland's citizens are entitled to fast, accurate information about sex offenders," said Mary Ann Saar, secretary of DPSCS. "Providing this information in the best possible way has been priority of our information technology team, and with this new search capability, they have really delivered."

The SOR contains such information as the offender's last reported address, category of offense – such as "Child Sex Offender," "Sexually Violent Offender," or "Sexually Violent Predator" – photographs, and list of convicted crimes. The revised interactive onine version of the SOR complements an existing service that provides Portable Document Format (PDFs) containing the same information.

A passenger in Kelley's sedan, Mtn. Lake Park resident Barbara Porter, age not reported, was transported by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company also responded to the accident scene.

Jones was charged by state troopers, but the exact nature of the charge was not listed in the barrack report.

In other state police accident investigations, a deer was cited as the cause of a 7:30 p.m. single-vehicle crash Friday just north of Northern High School. Michelle Bender, 17, Accident, was driving north on Garrett Highway when the deer jumped in front of her 1995 Ford van near Collier Road. Bender struck the deer in the travel lane.

The Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad transported Bender to Cumberland Memorial Hospital for treatment. No charges were filed by state police.

Adorable Adoptables

"THESE BOOTS WERE MADE FOR WALKING, right out of the Garrett County Animal Shelter and into a loving home," says Booties, a female tuxedo feline with only a partial tail. She was given up by her owner and needs a second chance. Charlie, a large orange/white tabby that was recently featured, is still looking for a home. He is already neutered and ready to be adopted. "Charlie was a town stray," said a Humane Society spokesperson, "so we don't want him to end up back on the streets. His new owner needs to try to keep him inside, or he may like to be an inside/outside cat at a home with a large yard. Remember, the new cat ordinance takes effect July 1, so get your animals spayed/neutered to save on the license cost and put a collar on your cat so your neighbors know it belongs to someone and is not a stray." There are also two dogs available for adoption at the shelter – the Doberman mix that was featured last week and a black German shepherd mix. For more information, persons may call 301-34-3553.
